Forward for the English translation

The author of this book is Iranian and grew up in Iran, a country victim of the evil sect of Islam. This book was mainly written for Iranians to inform them of the fabricated history and the evil nature of Islam. Iran, however, is not the only country that has been ruined by this sect, the entire world should be aware of this dangerous mafia-like cult, and this is why this book is translated in English to reach a larger audience.

This is what Islam does to their occupied lands: destruction of their beautiful land turning it deserts, destruction of culture, art, science, eliminate elites and the return to Khalifate era of early Islam 1400 years ago. Fast trains will be replaced by chain of camels, Churches and tall building turn into Mosque minaret, music of all sorts will be banned and opera singers will have to sing call for prayers three times a day, women should be covered head to toe, banned from attending school and forced to stay home, disobedience will result in death without being bothered to take any legal process....

After a long crusade which started because of Islamic countless crimes and expansion against Christians, it is surprising to see its return to the heart of Christian lands where Muslims could never have even imagined setting foot in during the time they were victorious in their countless wars. Have Christians and Europeans forgotten all about the past 1000 years and the reason behind crusades? If the alarming signs of Muslim infiltration have not already awakened western countries, they will soon be woken up to the call for prayer from churches turned to Mosques very early in mornings.

Foreword

If this book or a variant of this was in the hands of Reza Pahlavi or Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, we would undoubtedly have another Iran today which was one of the most beautiful countries in the world, the Iranian elite would not leave the homeland and the foreign elites would also come to Iran, trade in Iran would be like the developed countries, education and research in Iran would be one of the most advanced in the world, the people would be rich and wealthy, Iran's space programs in exploring the cosmos and launching spaceships were known to the world, people from different countries traveled to Iran, airports were built in every cities and villages and traffic was smooth in them, Iran's agricultural and livestock products were abundant and cheap, tourism in Iran was booming, and the proud Iranian history from the Achaemenids to the Sassanid could be seen, many children were born in Iran and their joyful innocent laughter filled the space, art, sculpture, painting, and music also developed in Iran, and the beautiful melodies and voices of musicians and singers were played and whispered by the people.

Today, Iran, with all its territorial and peopley strength, is a backward country, equal to the poorest countries in Africa. The basis of this backwardness can be summed up in one word: Islam. The sect of Islam is like a destructive storm that has no end, and wherever it sets foot, it leaves nothing but misery, backwardness, and desert. Today, when science and technology have made significant advances, there are still two billion Muslims in the world who believe in what Islam forced them to believe in, and they are illusional. The key to liberation from Islamic backwardness is to know this evil sect and enlightenment to get rid of its bondage. Islam is a mechanism by which the thugs as rulers over the elites of a society, and the strategy of ruling in Islam is based on illusion, fear and crime. Islam labels the intellectuals and scientists apostates and dissidents, kills them recklessly, and makes thugs run the society.

Muslims have kept themselves in a prison whose bolts and screws are Islamic orders, and they not only take this prison with them wherever they go, but they also try to bring others into it. In Islam, art in any form is forbidden, such as sculpture, poetry and singing, painting, music, etc. On the contrary, the killing of people who don't agree with Islam (whom they call infidels, or kafar) is encouraged. For example, a scientist who discovers a cure for an incurable disease and does not believe in Allah is considered an infidel and it is the duty of a Muslim to kill him. The wife of that scientist also becomes a slave of the Muslims, and sleeping with her does not require marriage. In other words, in Islam, it is possible to kill and rape, but it is not possible to make a work of art. Muslims have used these instructions many times over centuries, and this is one of the reasons why Muslims are so backward. The ISIS group, for example was created to obey the pure Muhammadan Islam. ISIS, following their Prophet Muhammad, wherever it set foot, resulted in murder, looting, rape and destruction, all of which are sincere adherence to the teachings of Islam and the Qur'an. It is very surprising that such groups and sects still exist in the world. Boko Haram in Nigeria and the Taliban in Afghanistan are other examples. Another example is the Islamic republic in Iran, whose human catastrophe is too great to be included in this introduction.

Iran was one of the first lands that suffered a severe damage from the evil cult of Islamic. The story of Iran is like a beautiful princess who is enchanted by an evil (Ahriman). She loses her beauty, youth, and wealth, and becomes wrinkled, blind, deaf, and incapacitated. Years pass, and she forgets that she was once a princess and that her beauty was the envy of the envious. After many years, a prince from the depths of history arrives, casts the spell away, and the princess regains her beauty and possessions, her eyesight and hearing also improve. The princess begins to remember that her father was once the ruler of half the world. Ahriman was sitting in ambush on the sidelines, sometimes whispering in her ears, and she, who had become accustomed to the evil words of the devil, still believed his words. The princess slowly opens her eyes and the first thing she saw was the prince combing her hair, but she thought he is the one who cast spell on her. She pounced his face and forced the prince to leave. Ahriman reappears and casts the princess into a spell again. This time, he multiplies his spell hundreds of times so that the prince can never dare to return. The princess loses her beauty and possessions again, and she becomes more and more powerless every day.

Islam is the foundation of ignorance, illiteracy, disease, backwardness, and fragmentation of Iran, which began after it set foot in the land. It intensified during the Safavid and Qajar dynasties. Islam has also tried very hard to make people forget their nationality and history of pre-Islam era, and if it were not for the research of European explorers, we would still not know anything about the glorious history of the Achaemenids, Cyrus, and Darius the great. The Pahlavi dynasty tried to get Iran out of Islamic superstition, but it needed more time. In addition, it was necessary to remove superstitions from the people by more force, because Muslims have no shame in their backwardness.

In Iran, Islam reappeared in the guise of a republic, in a country that was just getting rid of the poverty and calamity of the Qajars, in which the Shiite sect and religious orders played a fundamental role, and in the Pahlavi period, it was returning to its Iranian identity. During the four decades and the establishment of Islamic orders and Sharia, Iran has become one of the poorest countries in the world, has no role in the global economy or in any of its leading indicators in the world, and has practically been excluded from global trade. Instead, elite migration and escape, executions, poverty and hunger, illiteracy, and the number of political prisoners rank highest in the world. These are all consequences of following the evil sect of Islam.

What is this destructive Islam? In recent years, many scientists, historians, and linguists have conducted prominent research on the beginning of Islam, its prophet, the Qur'an, and its location, Mecca. Islam is based on three pillars. First, it has a prophet named Muhammad. The second is a book, sent by Allah and it is called the Qur'an, and the third is that it has a place in the city of Mecca in the Hijaz (today's Saudi Arabia).

One question of researchers raised is who is this Messenger of Allah, called Muhammad? The word "Muhammad" is mentioned only four times in the Qur'an, which refers to a title and not a name, while the names of prophets such as Jesus, Moses, and Noah are mentioned several times in this book. Therefore, Muhammad is not a name, and the real name of the Prophet of Islam has been consciously omitted from the Qur'an, and he is always referred to in this book as "the Messenger of Allah" and not Muhammad. Before Islam, no Arab had the name Muhammad. In the Semitic language, Muhammad is an adjective that means the praised one, which can be the praised Jesus, the praised Moses, or the praised Noah. Some researchers believe that the Messenger of Allah mentioned in the Qur'an was Jesus Christ because parts of the Qur'an are copied from their Gospel. In pre-Islamic Christian and Jewish writings, the gospel spoke of the coming of a praised one (Muhammad) who would save the world. Now, someone appears and names himself Muhammad and claims that he is the same praised person that the ancients prophecy. Therefore, the very name of the Prophet of Islam, "Muhammad", is an insult to the listener's intellect. Some scholars believe that the real name of the Prophet was Ayyas ibn Ta'i, the appointed governor of Yazdgerd (the Persian Sassanid king) in Hirah (near Najaf in Iraq today), who was born in the city of Latakia in present-day Syria.

About the city where Islam emerged two names are mentioned in Qur'an, Mecca and Bekkah only once. By looking closely at the qiblas (direction where Muslim face during prayers) in various countries from China to Africa to Europe, researchers have found that in the first two centuries of Islam, the directions were not to Mecca of Hijaz but to Petra. Petra is a city in southwestern Jordan that was hidden for centuries and was discovered by a European tourist in the 19th century. This city was destroyed by an earthquake in the eighth century AD or one hundred and fifty years after what is called Hijra or the beginning of Islam, and it fell out of prosperity migration happened.

If you look closely at history, all the Muslim caliphs, of whom the Umayyads are mentioned in the official history, were in Kufa, Damascus, and Baghdad, and only in the sayings or hadiths, which cannot be proven from a historical point of view, Mecca is mentioned. Mecca in the Hijaz was "constructed" after the Petra was abandoned and did not exist before that. There are no records of Mecca in the history of pre-Islamic Greek and Persian writings, and it is not mentioned in any of their maps. Even in the Bible and the Torah, Mecca is not mentioned. What existed in the Arabian Peninsula in the maps of the ancients was the city of Yathrib or Medina, but not Mecca. In the recent excavations around the Kaaba in Mecca for the construction of skyscraper hotels, no traces of the Islam or what Muslims claim about Mecca have been found. Researchers have shown that Mecca was built more than 100 years after what is called the Hijrah (740 AD), and that is why the direction of the Qiblas is turned to Mecca of Hijaz after two centuries from the beginning of Islam.

The origin of the Qur'an itself is one of the myriad questions that Muslims are unable to answer. The first question is: Which Qur'an? There have been and still are many different versions of the Qur'an. Hafez says this poem seven hundred years after the emergence of Islam

Love is the only thing that comes to your rescue, even if you memorize 14 versions of Qur'ans, like Hafez

Hafez says love is only the only thing that rescue a person, and the Qur'an does not show the way to salvation in all its "various narratives" or in other words, love is not found in the Qur'an. Hafez says that he has memorized all fourteen different versions of the Qur'an.

Historic researchers discovered the Qur'an was a pre-Islamic script that has been erased and rewritten several times. Many of the writings of the Qur'an were the prayers of Christians, and since there were no dots and fractions on the alphabet in the old script, they were written in such a way that they could have several meanings different from each other. The Qur'an is indeed a misrepresentation of the writings of the Bible of Christians or Jews and Zoroastrians. Another example is the word "Magi" which appears once in the Qur'an. In European languages, the word "magi, Zoroastrian monk" is the root for magic, each of whom was not a cleric in the style of today's mullahs, but they were scientists of their time, and in fact knowledge itself is like magic. Pireh-Moghan is the same as Zoroaster in Hafez's poems. The presence of the same word "Majos" in the Qur'an indicates that it is copied from Western Christian writings, for example, the story "When the three Magi go to see him on the day of Christ's birth" is mentioned in the Bible. Since Arabic does not have the alphabet and pronunciation "gh (like guitar)", it is called Majos in the Qur'an.

In summary, the prophet of Islam is unknown, the place where it originated is a fabrication, and its book, Qur'an was a plagiary of the stories and prayers of other religions. The response of Muslims to such questions and clarifications is to frighten the questioner and threaten to kill. They always try to hide the truth.

In this book, in seventy-two parts we describe how the destruction of Iran and the world was done by this evil sect of Islam. Attempts have been made to keep each section in this book like women's skirts; Short enough to attract attentions and long enough to cover the main point. The text that is frequently referred to is the Qur'an itself, as well as hadiths (narratives) and historical research books with solid backing from world's researchers of the past decade. In the first sections, we will deal with the roots of Islam. Then the role of Islam in transforming man into slavery for the imaginary Allah. In the later sections, we will talk about the role of Islam in the backwardness of Iran and other Muslim occupied countries and in the disintegration of Iran. In the last section, some solutions have been presented to get rid of this evil sect. Today's battle is between progress and knowledge, regression, ignorance, and Islam. The author's name has not been revealed because the terrorist nature of the evil sect of Islam in response to such enlightenments is only one thing, and that is to destroy the book and kill its author.

Foreword to the Second Edition

After the distribution of the first edition of this book, many changes took place in West Asia (Middle East), most notably the replacement of Bashar al-Assad with Tahrir al-Sham in Syria, which has an Islamic nature but whose future form of rule is still unknown.

Also, the Islamic-terrorist groups Hamas and Hezbollah are close to being destroyed, and the Islamic Republic will soon be overthrown. It is very good that the evil Islamic groups are being destroyed one after the other, because the lands are coming out from under the clutches of Islam.

Islam acts according to this pattern: First, the Islamists dominate a land through deception, killing, fear, and superstition, then educated people of that land are either slaughtered or forced to stay at home or flee from their homeland, then ignorant and the thugs (Muslims) become rulers and managers, they treat the people very harshly, they believe they are the representatives of Allah. They turn land into desertification. People become inactive and lose motivation to progress. At this time, powerful foreigners appear, overpower the Islamists, and colonized the illiterate people and plunder the land, again. This trend has indeed occurred several times in post-Islamic history, and examples are in Indonesia, India, Nigeria, the Arab and North African countries, and Iran itself, and they are written about in this book. It is believed that this pattern may occur for post-Islamic Republic Iran, but in any case, this is better than living under the clutches of Muslims.

For this reason, such writings should be disseminated more and reach the people so that they know the history of the evil sect of Islam and that it has no goal other than destruction. Our children should also be reminded of what we have learned from the wickedness of Islamists several times.

Muslims are idolaters unknowingly

In the distant past, people worshipped idols, each a symbol of a personality. Yahweh, who later became the God of the Jews, was an idol with violent nature and loved gold. Allah was an idol that the Arabs worshipped, and in the Kaaba (in Mecca), which was a place where idols were kept, and Abdullah, who is introduced as the father of the Prophet, was one of the keepers of those idols.

The Muslim Prophet chose Allah as his greater god. Allah-o-Akbar means Allah is bigger, or greater than other idols. Muslims go to Mecca every year and circumambulate the Kaaba, not knowing that it is indeed a temple for idols. God does not fit in such a small box.

Allah himself is the idol of the moon, whose crescent is depicted on the flags of some Islamic countries, and the Arabs based their calendar is lunar based. Allah also had daughters named Lat, Mena, and Uzza. Lat was the jealousy idol. Mena was an idol of faith, and Uzza was a garden worshipped by the Quraysh tribe. Each of these idols had a temple that the Muslim prophet destroyed.

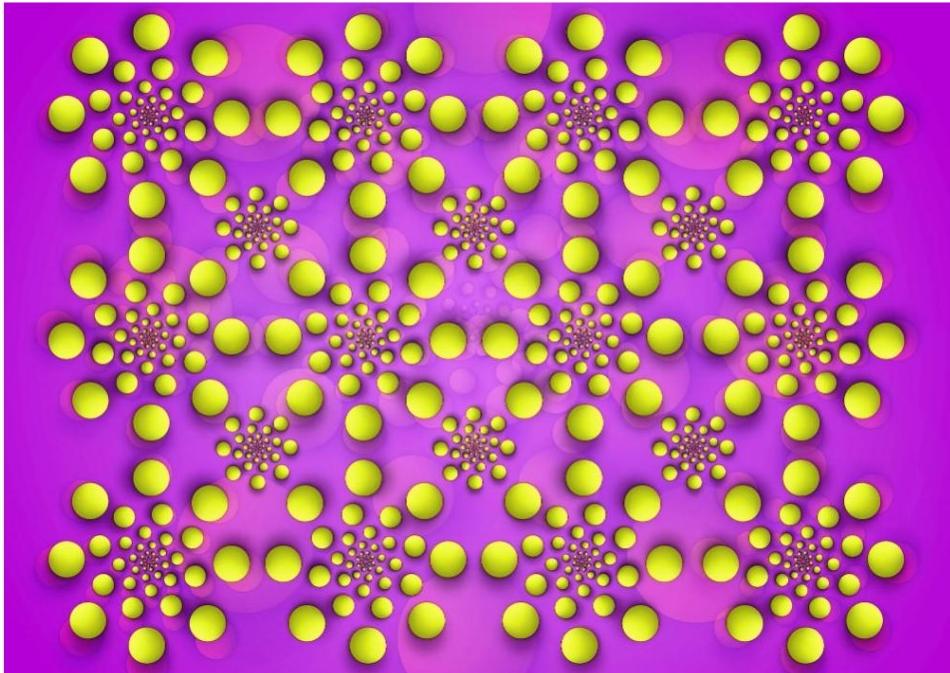

Allah's status in Islam was elevated from a simple idol to the unique God through the Prophet. The characteristic of Allah is that he neither begot nor begets. He forced everyone to worship this creation of his mind, otherwise they would be considered infidels. Those who believe in this imaginary Allah are called faithful.

Muslims believe that Mecca is the holiest place in the world. Previous prophets were buried there, and their bodies remained intact. Mecca is where Adam and Eve descended from heaven, it is where Abraham and Ismael built Kabba, and where the Prophet of Islam was born. However, there are no indications that other prophets visited Mecca, and there is no mention of Mecca or the Kaaba in the Torah or the Bible. Even Abraham himself never went to the Arabian desert and performed the Hajj. The Kaaba was a place that could attract pagans to perform their pilgrimage. But the Qur'an in Surah At-Tawbah 28 asks pagans to stop coming to the Grand Mosque. In addition to the Kaaba and Allah, Muslims also worship the Black Stone (Hajar al-Aswad) which is placed next to the Kaaba. One of the reasons why the Kaaba is in present-day Mecca is that the Black Stone was brought there. Muslim pilgrims every year kiss this stone during the Hajj rituals.

Islam is a lie and an illusion in an illusion

In one of the stories in the Epic of Gilgamesh, which is a translation of inscriptions found in British archaeological excavations in what is now northern Iraq, there is a story of a great flood and an ark that saves people from the flood. The Gilgamesh inscriptions were written two thousand years before Christ, or more than four thousand years ago. The Jews create the story of a fictional character named Noah and consider him the builder of that ark of salvation, and then the fabricated sect of Islam also copies the stories and introduces Noah to us as the prophet of Allah. Even Moses himself is a mythical creature and has no reliable history for him. Islam, like other religions, introduces a fictional character named Abraham as its father and considers him a Muslim. Other fantasies such as Allah, jinn, the Day of Judgment, the existence of a world after death, hell and heaven are also creations of the Muslim imaginary world. The history of the Prophet of Islam himself is also shrouded in obscurity, which some researchers (such as Robert Spencer) have come to believe did not even exist. In the business of the illusion-making house of Islam, illusions are created over previous illusions. For example, the twelfth Imam, who was never born, is sold to us in Shiite illusion as the absent Imam, who is still alive after twelve centuries and may sun himself again every Friday on his white horse! Today, with this vast world of knowledge and data, man cannot take the fantasies of the ancients seriously. Muslims believe in illusions of illusions whose stories are completely fictional and for which there are no historical sign has ever been found. The reason for this is also interesting. If we attribute miracles and wonders to the past, it becomes much easier to convince an uninformed audience. Convincing by what is hidden behind the fog of history always has buyers.

The Messenger of Allah was and still is a criminal

The historical records and the Qur'an itself are full of stories of the Prophet's criminal temperament. One of the poets of the time of the Prophet was a woman named Asma bint Marwan who rebuked the Prophet in her poems after his army stole the plunder of Badr and blamed the men of her tribe. The Prophet ordered one of his followers, Umar b. Adi, to kill him. Umar went to Asma's tent at night. Asma and her children were asleep and her baby was suckling from her breast. Umar plunges the sword into Asma's chest and kills her. The Messenger of Allah gave Umar the good news of Paradise in the afterlife! This story is mentioned in the books of the life of the Prophet and the book of al-Tabaqat al-Kabir by Ibn Sa'd.

It is also mentioned in historical books<sup>1</sup> that the Prophet sent his former adopted son Zayd b. al-Harith to Wadi al-Qura, where they encountered the Banu Fazara tribe and engage in a fight. The Muslims were severely defeated and Zayd was wounded, but he was able to return to Medina. Ummah Qarfa was the head of the Banu Fazara tribe, who was famous for her nobility, and had twelve sons and a very beautiful daughter. Zayd was ordered by the Prophet to revenge the defeat and because he could not bear the victory of a woman, he ordered another attack on Banu Fazara. In 629 AD, the army of Islam suddenly attacked the Banu Fazara at night and started killing the people with the call of Allahu Akbar (Allah is greater). Those who resisted their head was cut off and others were captured in handcuffs. Zayd gave Ummah Qarfa to an Moslem soldier named Qays bin Mansur to kill her. Qays tied the old woman's hands and feet on both sides and dragged with camels, and to the astonishment of the tribesmen, they cut her in half. Then the Muslims decapitated her. After plundering the tribe's possessions, they brought the decapitated head and other captives to Medina. The captives were sold as slaves. On his return, Zayd went to the house of the Prophet and saw him naked, he was surprised, he told him about the victory of Allah. The Prophet embraced Zayd and kissed him. The Prophet ordered the head to be turned around in Medina. The Prophet gave the daughter of um al-Qarfa to his uncle Hazan ibn Abi Wahb, who had a child after raping her.

The Banu Qurayza were a Jewish tribes living in Medina and they were advanced in agriculture. In the midst of Muslim conflicts with others, they did not involve themselves, but they did not take sides with Muslims either. After the battle of Badr and Uhud, Abu Sufyan with Banu Nadir and Banu Qaynuqa besieged Medina in order to crush the Muslims, which was built at the suggestion of Salman al-Farsi. Abu Sufyan was defeated in this battle and the Muslims attacked the Jewish strongholds. The Jews surrendered and requested permission to leave, but Muhammad ordered them to be killed, and up to 800 men of that tribe were beheaded by Ali ibn Abi Talib in one day. Children and women were also taken captive by Muslims. Thus, those who survived embraced Islam.

The Qur'an 9-5 says: "... Kill the disbelievers wherever you find them...". So just not believing in Allah or whatever the ruling Muslim one can be labeled as infidel, and his death sentence given in the Qur'an itself.

Beheading 800 innocents from a Jewish tribe in one day on the orders of the Messenger of Allah

The Messenger of Allah was a womanizer

Stories in the Qur'an are like Hollywood movies scenarios, with violence and mating stories, and it is accompanied by scenes of explicit sex, although in the Qur'an everything is found but love! In 53-50, Allah gives the Prophet the glad tidings that he can mate or marry any woman he wants, from the relatives to the stranger, and whomever is available: "O Prophet, We have made lawful for you the wives to whom you have given their dowry, and the slaves whom Allah has given you from the spoils of war, and the daughters of your uncles, and the daughters of your aunts, and the daughters of your uncles. Yours is the daughters of your aunts who have emigrated with you, and the faithful women who give herself to the Prophet, if he desires to take her as a wife."

The versus of the Quran, 66-1 says it all: " O Prophet, why do you forbid that which Allah has made lawful to you. Do you seek to please your wives? ' Allah is the Forgiving, the Most Merciful. " It is narrated in Tafsir that one day, the Messenger of Allah went to his wife's (Hafsa) home. Hafsa had to leave her father's home Umar. The Prophet remains alone with Mariyah, who was Hafsa's female slave. Hafsa returned home since she had forgotten something. She finds the Messenger of Allah and Hafsa in her bed! Hafsa screamed: my night, my home and my bed? Prophet excused "I have forbidden Mariyah to myself, but keep this secret with you, do not tell anyone." But Hafsa immediately told Aisha, the child wife of the Prophet as well. The Prophet swore to leave Mariyah. The two women rejoiced, and this verse was revealed.

The Prophet asks Hafsa to keep this secret to herself, and when Hafsa refuses, Allah reveals 66-2 to 6 to the Messenger in which he threatens his wives to divorce them and get younger wives in their place. This is when the Messenger of Allah was more than 55 years old, and Allah performed his duties as a shameless mother-in-law or a pimp and saved the Messenger of Allah from disgrace.

The Prophet commands "believers" to attack caravans and plunder their property, i.e., to steal and kill their men or take them captive, and then to take their wives as their sex slaves, i.e., to rape them without marriage while they have husbands. In the meantime, younger and more beautiful concubines were given to the Prophet himself.

The Prophet did not show mercy to the wife (Zeynab) of his adopted son, Zayd, also. First, he asked Zaynab to become the wife of Zayd, who had previously been his slave. Zaynab refused to accept. Then Allah sends this versus 53-36 who compelled her to do so. Then one day, he went to her house and saw Zaynab naked in Zayd's absence, and the Prophet became horny. Again, Allah has fulfilled the role of pimp for His Messenger, and sends this verse 53-37 to 40, which says that Zayd must separate Zaynab. Then Zaynab also entered a marital bond with the Prophet. This verse also does not allow Muslims to have adopted children.

Prophet of Islam was a pedophile

Khadija, the first wife of the Prophet, was fifteen years older than him, and after her death, the Prophet was left alone. Khala bint al-Hakim proposed to him an unvirgin woman and a virgin. The unvirgin woman was Sawdah bint Zam'a , and the other was Aisha, the daughter of Abu Bakr. The Messenger of Allah asks for both. Sudeh was 52 years old. The Messenger of Allah married Sawdah because of her experience and aa a servant without any cost. In any case, the Messenger of Allah separated from Sawdah after a while. Aisha was six-years-old and the Prophet took her as a wife at the age of 51. Aisha had a doll in her hand on the day of her departure from her fortune home. The Prophet had sex with this child in the Islamic way, one of which is called "al-Fakht ", i.e., rubbing the penis between the woman's thighs, and raped her at the age of nine (Sahih al-Bukhari, vol. 7, book 62, no. 88). When the Prophet was seen with Aisha in the city, he would make people ask whether this child was the grandson of the Prophet.

The Messenger of Allah also had sodomy with Ali ibn Abi Talib (first Shiite Imam), his cousin when he was a boy, which Ali himself reports in sermon 192 of Nahj al-Balaghah: "You consider my position to be close to the Messenger of Allah in a special position, and the Prophet used to sit me in his room, and he used to hold me in his arms when I was a child. He used to sleep on his own bed, he would stick his body to my body, and he would smell his pure smell to me, and sometimes he would put a morsel of food in my mouth, and he would never lie in my words, nor did he make any mistake in my actions.". It is believed that in his time, the Messenger of Allah had invented a biological type similar to USB technology recently invented by Intel, and it was in his penis, which he would insert into the hole in the back of Ali Abi Talib so that the inspirations of Allah would enter him quickly and error free, and Ali himself would enter this Allah's inspirational data to his other students in the same way. This "tradition" of the Messenger of Allah is still practiced today, among Muslims and in Islamic schools and seminaries.

The Prophet also had sexual relations with his daughter (or adopted daughter, since he was not infertile), Fatima, before marrying Ali ibn Abi Talib at the age of nine, which is based on hadiths that the Prophet kissed her lips and breasts every night because "the smell of paradise came from Fatima's mouth"! Other hadiths indicate that the Prophet also sat Husayn ibn Ali (the third Shiite Imam) on his knee and kissed his lips and tongue "so that he would be safe from the fire of Hell."

In the Qur'an, stealing, looting from caravans, and raping women are highly recommended, but nowhere is there an age limit for women (e.g., 65-4). It is common for Muslim men (or older men) to have a marital relationship with children under the age of 6. For example, in the movie Osama, which is set during the Islamic rule of the Taliban before the US invasion of Afghanistan, a 6-year-old orphan girl who was hiding among boys is forced to marry a 60-year-old turbaned man who also had already several other wives. The only thing old man knew of Islam was taking a bath after sex. The film ends with him taking a bath after raping the six-year-old girl.

Child marriage among Muslims continues today. At the age of twenty-eight, Ruhollah Khomeini married a ten-year-old. Khomeini writes in his book Tahrir al-Wasila (vol. 2, page 216) that a man can take any kind of sexual pleasure from his wife, even if his wife is a baby. The method that Khomeini proposes is to kiss her and put his penis in her thigh.

This kind of sexual bond cannot even be in anyone's imagination. Muslims are mentally ill.

The Messenger of Allah was crazy

The Qur'an says in 68-1 and 2: "By the pen and what they write with it, that you (i.e. the Messenger of Allah) are not insane"! Why did Allah insist that his Messenger is not insane? Because others thought he is crazy. In the Qur'an, it is again mentioned that others called him (the Messenger of Allah) insane. In 25-8, the Qur'an says: "Either a treasure has not been thrown at him, or he has no garden from which to eat, and the wrongdoers say, 'Will you not follow a man who has been bewitched?'"

And Qur'an 52-29 "So admonish that by the grace of Allah there is neither a priest nor a madman", 15- 6 "And they said, you to whom the Qur'an has been revealed, you are indeed insane", 37-36 "And they used to say, Shall we give up our gods for the sake of a mad poet?" "And those who disbelieved, when they heard the Qur'an, they did not see you and say, 'He is indeed a madman.'" This is the same verse "And that one..." that many people hang on the doors of their homes to protect themselves from the "evil eye".

Therefore, the Qur'an itself bears witness to how others perceived him during the life of the Messenger of Allah. The Prophet called those who called him mad as "wicked" and "disbelievers" and when he could, he gave the orders to kill them with other verses such as 9-5. For example, in 68-15, it says, "When Our verses are recited to him, he says, 'These are the legends of the ancients,'" and in the last verse (verse 6), he replies, "We will soon put a hot sword on his nose." This is always the response of Muslims, by killing or putting a hot sword on the nose of those who mock the myths of the Prophet Muhammad.

In historical books (e.g., the biography of the Prophet and the history of al-Tabari, it is mentioned that the Prophet intended to commit suicide right after receiving the first revelation, because he thought that he had gone crazy! He tells his wife, Khadija, "I see lights and I hear voices; I am afraid that I have gone crazy. Sahih al-Bukhari, the most authentic book of hadiths of Muslims, has described the revelation of Muhammad from the words of those who witnessed the revelation to him as follows: "Muhammad would suddenly fall to the ground while receiving the revelation, his face would turn red, he could hardly breathe, he would hear a sound like a bell, he would snort like a camel, they would cover his face. He was sweating." At that time, psychiatric knowledge did not exist in its current form and mental illnesses were not categorized, but such behaviors are very similar to two types of epilepsy and schizophrenia. Epilepsy makes the patient unconscious, falls, spins around and comes out of his mouth foaming. The schizophrenic patient thinks he sees a creature and talks to it. It is believed that this imaginary creature for the Messenger of Allah was the same as Allah.

Islam invented Mecca

Muslims believe that Mecca is a very ancient city where the Prophet was born, where Abraham and Ishmael built the Ka'bah, and even Adam and Eve landed in Mecca when they were expelled from Paradise. It was in Mecca that the Qur'an was first "revealed" to the Prophet.

In the Qur'an, the word "Mecca" is mentioned only once (48-24). In 3-96, the word "Bakkah" is mentioned once in the Qur'an: "Indeed, the first house that was built for the people is the one that is in Bakkah, and it is blessed and for the worlds." The Qur'an links Bakkah to Abraham and considers Hajj and pilgrimage obligatory. So, according to the Qur'an, the existence of the city of Mecca or Bakkah goes back to the very earlier times, Adam and then Abraham. We read from the historians of Islam and the Qur'an that "Mecca is a valley in a valley with a river and green meadows with mountains from which the Kaaba can be seen" (Ibn Hisham and Bukhari) and "full of trees, including olive trees" (6-141). These stories are inconsistent with the Mecca we know today, because Mecca was in a barren desert, both today and in the past. In the Qur'an, the names of other cities are mentioned in the Qur'an, Midian 27 times, Thamud 25 times, Egypt 8 times, Aad 3 times, Ike 4 times, and the pillared city of Iram 30 times. The cities of Midian, Thamud, and Ad are located 1,000 kilometers north of present-day Mecca and are in the south of Jordan and Syria, which was not possible to travel this distance by camel in a short time. Those who wrote the Qur'an lived in these places and not in Mecca, which is in today's Hijaz (Arabia).

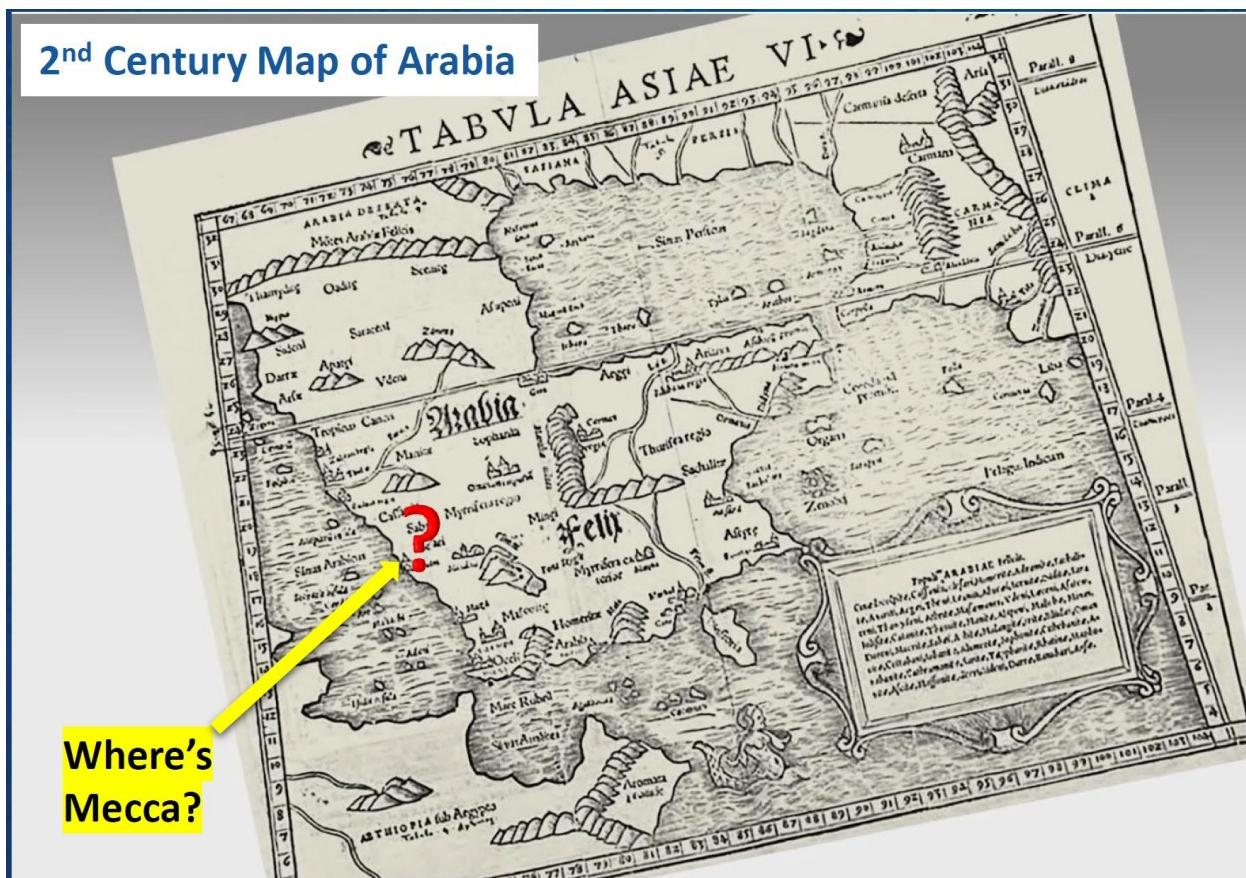

Today, Mecca is a city in Saudi Arabia that many people go to for pilgrimage every year. Legend has it that during the battles between Iran and Rome, the Silk Road that passed through Iran was closed, and inevitably, the goods, which were mostly spices, were loaded from the east, reached the southern coast in Yemen, where the ships were loaded on camels, and transported through Mecca to the northwestern Roman provinces of Syria. Then it was taken into ships and taken to the Westerners. It was in this way that Khadija and the Prophet were able to achieve wealth in their trade. The Danish scholar (Patricia Crone), who was fluent in reading several ancient languages of West Asia, has done a lot of research on this trade route and asks<sup>2</sup> why ships should unload their cargo in a barren desert and ride camels through a desert where there was no highway and there was a fear of a sandstorm to take them to the north of the peninsula when the same ship could make its journey from the Red Sea to northern Arabia, which would have cost much less to reach the final port. In addition, archaeological excavations have not found any signs of such a road, or commercial traffic on this route. Also, in present-day Mecca itself, many excavations have taken place to build skyscrapers, but no historical signs have been found there, such as Adam and Eve, or Abraham, or the three hundred prophets whom the Qur'an claims were buried in Mecca and their bodies never decay, but the rulers of Arabia tried to hide whatever that does not exist under these hotels. In archaeology, every layer is linked to one of the ancient years, and in Mecca, what they have found is all related to the years after 800 AD. In addition, in the ancient pre-Islamic geographical maps, whether from the civilizations of Iran and China in the east or from the Greek and Roman civilizations in the west, there is no sign of a city called Mecca. The first map showing Mecca was in 900 CE, and there is no sign of Mecca in any of the ancient pre-Islamic maps<sup>3</sup>. Also, nowhere in the books of the Torah and the Bible is there any mention of Mecca or Becca.

The first clear reference to Mecca in non-Islamic literature appears in Byzantine-Arabic chronicles in the year 741, or 100 years after Muhammad's death. However, its author has placed this region between two waters (the Tigris and the Euphrates in modern-day Iraq) instead of the Hijaz. Also, the capitals of all the Muslim caliphs were in Damascus and Baghdad, and not in Mecca. In short, Mecca is a city that was "built" more than a hundred years after the emergence of Islam and did not exist before that, which is another deception in the emergence of the evil sect of Islam!

Mecca did not exist in any map or document before the beginning of Islam.

Islam invented the Qur'an

Hafez, the Iranian poet, memorized not one Quran but several versions of Qurans since childhood. As he says:

Love will come to your rescue, even if you memorize 14 version of Qur'an like Haez

Qur'an 85- 21 and 22 call the Qur'an "preserved in a tablet" and in 15-9 it says, "We have sent it down gradually, and we will guard it." Surah 10-10 and 18-15 The Qur'an itself says that the words of the Qur'an are unchangeable, and in 15-9 it says that Allah Himself will protect it. Muslims believe that the Qur'an was revealed to Muhammad between 610 and 632 AD and that it was completed by Uthman, the Rashidun Caliph, in 652 AD, and that the Qur'an has remained intact in these 1400 years. Also, Muslims are still believed that the Qur'an is the only book that has survived since the beginning of Islam in its primitive form, and that not a single "dot" or "fraction" of it has been intact. Bukhari is the first historian to mention the name of the Qur'an and write about it, which is in the year 870 AD, 230 years after the time when it is said that Uthman completed it and sent it to five cities: Mecca, Damascus, Kufa, Yathrib and Basra. What we do know is that in the last years of the seventh century, the Qur'ans of Basra, Kufa and Damascus were written by Ubayy ibn Ka'b with 116 chapters, Ibn Mas'ud with 110 chapters, and Ibn Musa with 114 chapters, which are not identical with the 114 chapters we know, and in addition, the historian and linguist Arthur Jeffery found 15,000 inconsistencies between these books.

The Arabic language in which the Qur'an is written is Nabatean Aramaic, which originated from the Nabatean land in the land of Lebanon, Syria, and Jordan, and not from the Hijaz (present-day Arabia). Also, in the writing of this language in the 7th century AD, there was not a single dot, conjugation, or fraction, so it had sixteen letters, while modern Arabic has twenty-six letters. "Uneaten" is a bit funny because the writings of the Qur'an did not have a dot or fraction at all that could be touched or not eaten, and nowadays many dots and fractions have been added to the early Qur'an so that it can be read. A 7th-century Aramaic writing can be written in different ways by adding fatha, kasra, etc., which was added to it in the 8th century, because each letter can be read in up to eight types.

An example of the writing of the Qur'an in the seventh century without conquest, fraction and dot (Samarkand version)

In every land where these Qurans went, they were written according to the liking of the author and its editor, which had no connection or connection with the editors of other lands, and therefore different types of the Qur'an were created. In the 10th century, there were 700 different types of the Qur'an. In the twelfth century (1194), Abu Ishaq Abraham ibn Musa al-Shatibi selected fourteen recitations from these Qur'ans, even though he did not even look at the other Qur'ans, and his selections were based only on the number of people who had learned those recitations, and these are the fourteen hadiths (recitations) that al-Hafiz mentions. Again, in the fifteenth century (1429), al-Jazari wrote nine other Qur'ans He chooses. While Muslims claim that the Qur'an has remained intact since it was revealed, the heterogeneity of these variants amounts to 93,263, and many of these Qur'ans are still available in the world's book markets. The Qur'an that we have today is one of the fourteen hadiths (recitations) and its name is "Memorization of Asthma" and it was selected in 1985, only forty years ago.

During the reconstruction of a mosque in Yemen in 1975, writings were poured out of a wall that turned out to be the writings of the Koran. Those writings and papers were sent to three countries, England, Germany, and France, for carbon historiography, and the result was that they were written between 390 and 550 AD, which means that the time of writing the Qur'an goes back to a few centuries before the birth of the Prophet of Islam . Moreover, there are many crossings in these manuscripts<sup>4</sup>, and in addition, these writings are prayers from Christians that are also mentioned in the Bible. This indicates that part of the Qur'an was not a revelation inspired by the Prophet , but rather the writings and prayers of the Gospel<sup>5</sup>. Today, such an act is forgery and plagiarism and is considered a crime.

An example of a Qur'anic leaflet found in Sana'a in 1975 that uses modern ultraviolet light methods to show edits that indicate that the Qur'an has been tampered with.<sup>6</sup>

In short, Qur'an was not a one but hundreds of variations, none of which were written in the seventh century and are none identical with each other. Contents of Qur'an was stolen from the various religions of its time, Zoroastrian, Jewish, and Christian, and in the eighth decade of A.D., when Muslims wanted to organize themselves against the Byzantine Empire with the innumerable possessions they had gained from the plundering of their surrounding lands and create a religion for themselves.

Islam destroyed the truth

One of the foundations of Islam is falsehood and falsehood, without which it would not exist. Islam is a sect not of Allah or of the Seventh Heaven, but it is a fabrication, and everything that is based on Islam is also perverse and false. In the evil sect of Islam, his prophet is a fictitious prophet who has no name. Even Nahj al-Balagha considers the Prophet to be the Messenger of Allah and not Muhammad. The Quran or the Qurans of Islam are false copies of other religions. Mecca is a fictitious city that was built in 740 AD or 100 years after what is known as the death of the Prophet and did not exist before that.

Muslims have been made to believe that Allah was "revealing" to the Messenger of Allah and that someone was sitting there waiting to receive these revelations and inspirations from Allah. Mecca, which Muslims say was the place where Adam landed, where Abraham and Isma'il built the Ka'bah and where the Prophet was born and died, there is no evidence to prove that there was a city called Mecca before the seventh century AD, which is one of the great lies of Islam.

In the Qur'an, Dhu'l-Qarnayn is mentioned, which some say refers to Alexander the Great. Dhu'l-Qarnayn goes to the farthest point to the west, where he sees the sunset in a muddy spring: 18-86, and then he goes to the farthest point to the east and sees the sun rising from there and finds people who did not cover themselves against the sun (18-90). Qur'an says that the Earth is flat, and the sun is much smaller than the earth.

Qur'an writes in Surah 37-6 that the Messiah accepts the Torah and gives the good news of the coming of Ahmad, whom the Muslims consider to be Muhammad, but there is no historical proof for this statement of the Messiah!

Qur'an says that Jews consider Ezra (or Aziz) to be the Son of God, just as Christians consider Jesus to be the Son of God, but even the Jews themselves do not claim to be so: 9-30.

Qur'an claims that Dhu'l-Qarnayn erected a great iron curtain that will remain in place until the Day of Judgment: 18-96, but no sign has been found so far! And in 10-3 and 25-59 it says that the heavens and the earth were created in 6 days, and in 41-9 to 41-12 it is two days, and in 2-117 the world is created by one snap of Allah's finger!

The Qur'an itself permits lying, and its name is taqiyyah, which means that a Muslim can lie whenever he wants, as it is stated in 3-28: "The believers should not take the disbelievers as guardians and friends instead of the believers, and whoever does that has nothing to do with Allah, unless you wish to ward off the danger that is facing you. He warns against the punishment, and to Allah is the return."

With all these inconsistencies, is it true that Qur'an is the "word of God"?

Islam Promotes Superstition: Is There a Jinn?

Niels Bohr, the famous Danish physicist and co-founder of quantum mechanics, had a horseshoe hanging on the wall in his office. His colleague rebuked him for being superstitious, pointing to the horseshoe. Bohr replies: "... But they say that even if you are not superstitious, it will bring luck!". Superstitions exist in all countries and cultures, and people are superstitious. In Islam, superstition is an inseparable part of this evil sect that easily traps people.

One of these Islamic superstitions is a creature called the jinn. The word jinn are mentioned 120 times in Qur'an. In Qur'an, as in other mythical books, creatures such as jinn, Satan, angels, and boy-slaves (Ghelman), in addition to the Prophet of God, have become characters who perform their roles in its 114 chapters, although the first role and star of the legend of Qur'an is the Prophet of Allah. The disbelievers, the polytheists, are also bad guys in Qur'an and they are get bitten back and forth one after the other. In many verses of Qur'an, the words jinn and "unse" come together and it is believed unse is the same as humans.

Muslims believe in these legends and themselves become complicit in the spread of the myths of the Qur'anic characters. Even the Safavid king (1700 AD) had raised an army of jinns in his imagination, and when a foreign army attacked them, the Safavid king wanted to go to war with this army of jinns. Shah Hossein Safavid was defeated and killed, and the army of jinns never came to his aid. It is amazing how seriously Muslims take Islamic superstition to the point of ruining their lives and the lives of a country with it.

Many of today's educated people, even with doctoral degrees, still believe in such superstitions and some recite prayers in Arabic such as "Nad Ali" to assist them in their work, which they themselves do not know what they mean. In addition, Shiite Muslims believe that whispering the names of Arab Imams such as Ali, Husayn, Reza, and Imam Mahdi can be the way out of their troubles, while all these Imams were either killed by the sword, or their heads were cut off, or they were poisoned by one of their many wives and could not even save themselves.

Another superstition that is very common among Muslims is EnshAllah, which is believed that if it is not said, things may go wrong. EnshAllah, that is, if Allah will! Today, we plan for the implementation of a project, such as the construction of a structure, for a long time after a design and analysis period, and then we build it, and if we encounter a difficulty, we do not say that it was not God's will, but we ask this question "why. In the wake of every difficulty, there are many lessons, so we learn and move forward in implementing the project. The most foolish way of dealing with difficulties is to mention the name of Allah, which does not exist except in the head of a desert wanderer in past centuries and is superstition itself.

Islam abhors freedom

Human beings are born free and must live freely, learn and choose their future. In the United States, after defeating the British independence wars, a statement was written, and in the rewriting of the American Constitution, the first order is freedom of speech and the media, and the second is the freedom to bear arms, that is, to have the means to sustain the first order.

Freedom is a beautiful proposition, but religions, especially Islam, abhor it, and warns that one must conform to the commands of Islam, otherwise in afterlife, one must look forward to persecution and torture in hell. Muslims, however, do not wait for Allah's punishment in hell and they make life hell for the people in this world.

"Fight against those of the People of the Book (which means Jews and Christians) who do not believe in Allah and the Last Day of judgement, and who do not forbid what Allah and His Messenger have forbidden, and who do not follow the religion of truth". Islam is the only sect that no one can leave. Even if they do not convert to Islam, you should respect the Islamic commandments and not do anything that upset Muslims, otherwise heads may be cut off from their bodies. When Islam enters a land, freedom exits.

A Muslim should always be in prayer or supplication. He should glorify Allah and Muhammad with a rosary bead in his hand.

Eating is also not free in this Islamic prison. In Islam, foods and drinks are halal and haram, halal is OK, and haram is forbidden to eat. Neither of these have scientific or medical bases.

In the prison of Islam, clothing has very small boundaries. Women should be fully covered and stay at home, and men should also be covered and not shave their beards.

In Islam, it is impermissible to say jokes, laugh and dance, and it comes with punishments. In addition, singing, music, painting, and sculpture are forbidden by Islam.

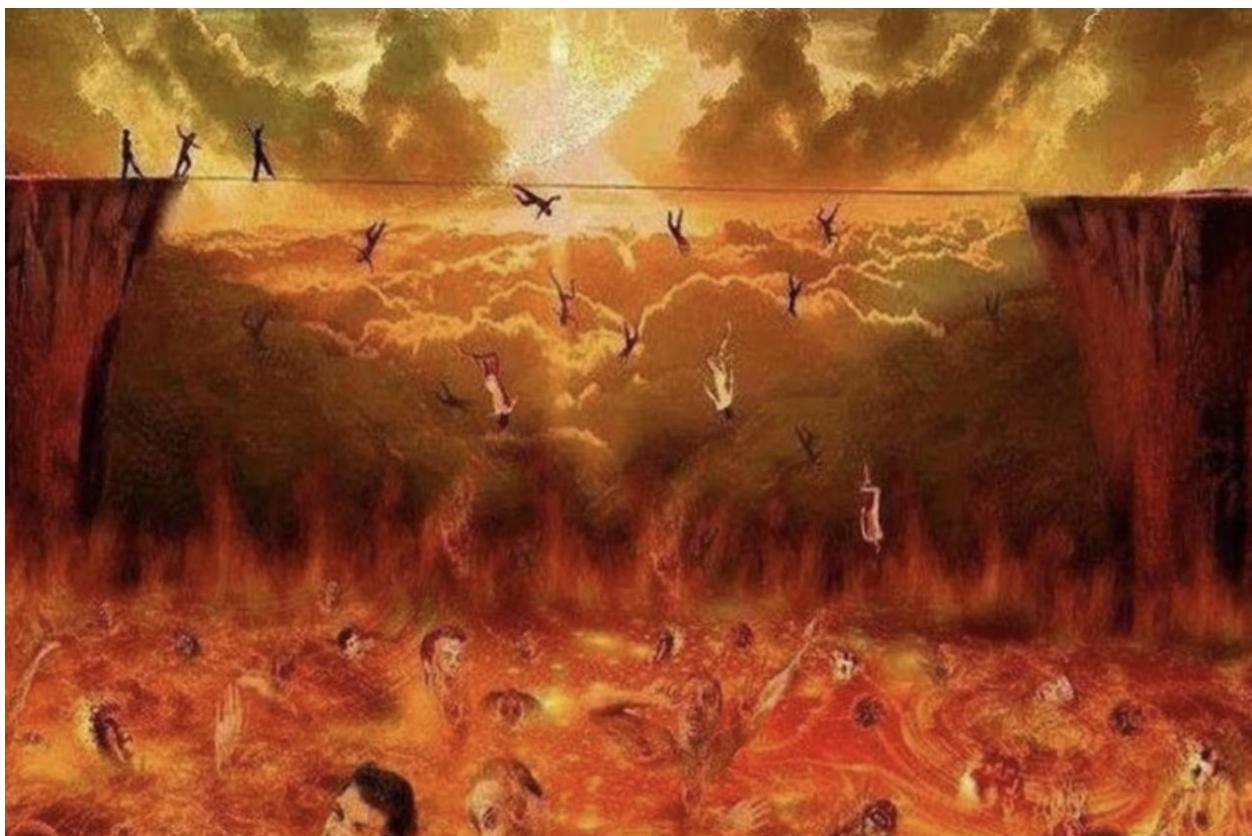

Islam is a depressive sect, and it is not possible to be a Muslim and have a happy life, that is why Muslims are frowning and miserable all the time. Therefore, in a land where Islam is dominant, any innovation is lost, and the land gradually stops moving, and depressed people leave their homeland or commit suicide. This is where the colonizers come in and plunder the foundations and resources of that land. The fact that Britain stole Iran's oil should be blamed on Islam.

Islam is a prison that a Muslim carry with them wherever he goes.

Allah misleads man and promises the fire of Hell

In Qur'an, 2-6 and 2-10, Allah says, "If you disbelieve, you have gone astray, and Allah will increase that error and set a seal on your ears and eyes so that they will not hear or see anything" and then He promises punishment in Hell. It is interesting that this Allah does not try to guide the "misguided". Nowadays, if you want to learn something, go to a library and read a few books on that subject. Also, on the Internet, there is a sea of information with which you can avoid being misled. Now, why is it necessary that Allah, who is aware of all things, has power over all things, and is the creator of the whole world (2-29), cannot handle an unbeliever and instead of guiding the disbeliever, He exposes all kinds of threats (2-39) just because He does not accept Allah.

In answer to the question you may ask, why Allah does not guide us, Allah has an answer that is as follows: The ancients had such questions and were equally ignorant (2-118). Again, Allah does not hold the Prophet responsible for the disbelievers going to Hell (2-219), and He clarifies the duty of the disbelievers, and their judgment has been given in advance.

The Sadistic Hell of Muslims

Their promised paradise is a hangover brothel

The legend of Allah's revelation to the Prophet and his attempt to convert people to Islam in Mecca did not work until he migrated to Medina, where he gave his followers the good news of heaven. With the paradise that Islam describes, one can see what the aspirations of Muslims were, and those were the sexual fantasies of the Arabs of that time. In this Islamic paradise, female sex slaves sleep only with Muslim men and entertain them with their vaginas and breasts, in addition to the "beautiful" boys who are sexually enslaved to the Muslim man (Ghelmans). There are also alcoholic beverages (wine) in the paradise for Muslims, and the climate of the paradise is green. This is the paradise of Muslims: group sex and drinking wine and not working for an infinite amount of time, that's it! In 56-12 Qur'an describes the paradise and talks about its greenery, drinking wine there, the big-eyed nymphs, and the little boys ready for Muslims. In the same chapter, in verses 35 to 37, Qur'an says: "We have created them a new creation, so We have made them virgins, to be friends and equal in age with their wives." The Houris have a new creation, i.e., they are women who are made in Paradise and have not been on earth, and they always remain virgins, and they love their husbands, which means that they have intercourse freely and voluntarily with Muslims. Sahih al-Bukhari has more descriptions of the Houris (4:476) "... They are so beautiful and pure, and so clear that the bone marrow of their legs can be seen from the skin. In heaven there will be no one without a wife (p. 40-739), which means that there are enough Houris for everyone. Men will also gain the ability of hundreds of men, according to the hadith (Jami' al-Tirmidhi), so intercourse with seventy-two virgins and big eyes is an additional power that Allah has given to His followers. What about women? Sadly, there is no verse in the Quran for their sexual pleasure. Again, there is a hadith from the Prophet in Jami' al-Tirmidhi, which is considered to be a hadith of Hasan, which means that there is no doubt about it: "Those who give their blood and their lives in the way of Allah, they will go straight to Paradise in this world and will not be punished, they will be crowned with the best jewels, and they will marry seventy-two big-eyed virgins.". These 72 virgin houris are mentioned in many other hadiths, and in this way, they volunteer the youth to be martyrs for the cause of Islam. A Muslim who has not been martyred will receive only two prostitutes, but for the martyr, the number of these prostitutes is 72.

Let us not forget that Muslims have stolen the number "72" from the Zoroastrian beliefs, which is the number of knots around the waistband, which is called a Koshti (which is the same word for wrestling). With the idea of this "paradise" cult of Islam has been able to send many young people to war for its evil ideals, to commit crimes and kill innocents. With this deception, Islam was able to bring many young warriors with it and send them to plunder, kill, destroy lands, rape women, and enslave them. The brothel of the Islamic paradise reveals another side of this evil cult, which was built only for plunder, murder and rape.

A religion whose ideal is peace, and tranquility teaches its followers not to follow the sword and violence, but to resort to reconciliation and love, so that the world will be a better place for all. Some religions have these characteristics, but not Islam.

How it works

The Houris in Paradise is one of the deceptions of Islam to motivate young people to commit crimes

Islam considers its founder to be a lunatic named Abraham

What if someone, with a knife in his hand, says that God has sent him a message to sacrifice his child for him? You will undoubtedly report him to be admitted to the hospital. In the Abrahamic religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam, not only has there been such a person, but he is also called the father of their ideal, his name is Abraham. The incompatibility between Judaism and Islam is that in Jewish beliefs, the child of the sacrifice is Isaac, the son of Sarah, Abraham's half-sister, which may be the answer to why the children become Jewish from their mother, but in Islam the child of the sacrifice is Ishmael, the son of Hagar, who was a slave. From the very beginning, the eyebrows are raised: that Abraham slept with his sister and has a child with a slave girl whom he did not marry, who is born according to the Islamic assessment is a bastard. The conflict between Jews and Muslims begins from Isaac or Ishmael. At the beginning of Islam, Muslims called themselves Hajri. This is how the stories of imagination and illusions become true in the minds of believers in Abrahamic religions, and they change from form to form like a virus, while it has its preserves its fundamental nature. Sometimes these viruses do not tolerate each other and got to war with each other.

In the Qur'an, the name of Abraham is mentioned 63 times. Muslims consider Abraham to be one of the first Muslims (16-23, 2-135) and in chapter 3:67 the Qur'an says that Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, nor was he a polytheist. Abraham was not the Messenger of God because he lived in earlier times, and in the places where the Qur'an mentions Abraham, there is no suffix "Messenger of God" or "Prophet," which is the same with Moses and Noah, but Jesus is called the Messenger of God (4-171).

Allah discriminates between human beings

The Qur'an itself indicates that Islam discriminates between human beings. Allah says in Qur'an, 6-165: "And it is He who has made you successors on the earth and has preferred some of you above others by degrees, so that He may test you by what He has given you. Those who believe and accept Allah without any question will go to Paradise after death. Others are disbelievers, those whom Allah cannot believe. Qur'an says that they were created by infidels in such a way that it is impossible for them to change, and from the very beginning, it condemns them to torture and death, and after death, they go to Hell. In this way, Allah Himself creates discrimination, and the conflict and killing of the disbelievers is the result of this discrimination, i.e., Allah makes people fight each other and causes war and killing, just because the "disbelievers" do not believe in a being called Allah, which is the creation of the mind of the Messenger of Allah.

Another aspect is discrimination between men and women. What has been said above is all about men. Women in Islam are only for the sexual needs of men, and it does not matter if they are faithful. Qur'an commands that Muslims attack caravans, kill men, and keep their wives as slaves even if they have husbands, and it is not necessary for that woman to convert to Islam. In other words, the Qur'an clearly gives Muslims the authority to steal from caravans and rape women!

Islam Promoted Slavery

Slavery has been banned in developed countries for nearly two centuries. Slavery was one of the main motives of the American Civil War because it was highly distasteful. For nearly five centuries, slavery was one of the trades of Europeans who were just breaking free from the chains of superstition, religion, and backwardness and were looking for profitable trades. In the meantime, the British took the lead, attacking African villages, capturing blacks, sending them by ship to the newly discovered land of America, and sharing the lucrative revenues with the British Empire. But before the newly arrived Europeans embarked on this lucrative trade, it was the Muslims who were very dominant in it.

Qur'an 19-93 considers people to be slaves of Allah, " All that is in the heavens and the earth will return to the Beneficent Allah as His submissive servants." Islam spreads and promotes this "slavery." In Qur'an, Muslims are commanded to take the wives of disbelievers as (sex)slaves, i.e., rape them or sell them, as in 24-33 and verses like this, which not only do not reproach or prohibit slavery or rape but also consider it legal. The Prophet had 40 slaves and he himself bought and sold slaves and advised others to do this ugly trade. He also distributed the captured slaves among his warriors in his battles. Not only did Islam never stop slavery, while it was able to do so, but it also spread it. In 33-50, Allah says to His Messenger: "Sleep with any slave girl you want". Also, Ali, Husayn, and other Imams of the Shi'a sect had many concubines, either they were born of concubines themselves, or according to Islam itself, they were born of adultery.

In every attack that the Muslims, under the pretext of spreading Islam, against non-Muslims, after killing, plundering, and raping within the limits of their power, they sent women and children to slave markets and made a huge profit from this trade.

Muslims started the slave trade in the 7th and 8th centuries AD, from the beginning of Islam, and many African slaves were involved in building the infrastructure of Muslims, and gradually the slave trade spread in the occupied lands of Islam and even Europe, especially in southern Europe, and this network became even larger. Among the Arabs, only women were enslaved, who were sold only to the Muslim nations of North Africa. In Islam, sex slavery played a prominent role and many women were bought and sold in these markets.

African blacks were the largest victims of the Muslim slave trade. There is a hadith from the Messenger of Allah that says, "Listen to your governors, even if they are black slaves of Ethiopia whose head is like raisins." For Arabs, black Africans were considered very inferior. Ibn Khaldun, one of the Andalusian Muslim thinkers (1332-1406 AD), in the Golden Age of Islam, writes in his book "Introduction": Sub-Saharan Africans have a nature to be slaves because they are not like humans, but like dumb animals.

But in Islam, Muslim slavery is not allowed, so slaves must be non-Muslims, and the easiest people to be enslaved were black Africans. From the time of the Rashidun Caliphs (632-661), slavery flourished and grew during the Umayyad Caliphate (661-750) and became more intense during the Abbasid Caliphate (750-1517).

After the conquest of Egypt in 651, Umar's army invaded the kingdom of Muqarnas in southern Egypt, in which the war was lost, so he made a treaty with them, with which the two sides were to reconcile, and Muqarnas was to send 360 slaves of "good quality" to the newly converted Egypt every year. Some Muslim officials opposed the treaty, not because slavery was ugly, but because it "made the spread of Islam impossible"! This treaty was in place for 600 years.

In the Muslim invasion of India, thousands of Indians were enslaved during the Umayyad Caliphate, and this greatly increased the geographical expansion of slavery. Muslims were the first to bring slavery to India. During the time of the Umayyads, there was a hierarchy in which Arabs were at the top, followed by non-Arab Muslims and dhimmis or non-Muslims such as Christians and Jews. The treatment of non-Arab Muslims and dhimmis by the Muslim Arabs was very bad and frighteningly harsh towards the slaves.

Slavery in Europe was also established by Muslims, and they started slavery, especially from southern Europe. Slaves arrived from southern France, Italy, Spain, and then from Britain, Iceland, and other lands.

In the slave markets of Muslim-occupied Spain, Andalusia, many slaves from Persia, India, and Africa were sold. Concubines whose skin color was lighter and whose hair color was more golden were more expensive. For example, illiterate white slaves were sold for the same price as darker educated. Therefore, the slave traders tried to lighten the dark skin color with the chemicals of the day in order to make more profit from selling them. Concubines who sang or played music were also more expensive.

In the Umayyad Caliphate, slaves were not allowed to convert to Islam because it made it impossible for them to keep them slaves. In the Abbasid Caliphate, slaves were hired to fight or to labor cheaply, and Muslims put black slaves under such pressure that it led to the Black African Revolt (869-883), in which thousands of Africans, led by Ali ibn Muhammad, rebelled against the Abbasids. The Abbasid caliphs put out this revolt after a while and killed 500,000 to 2.5 million people, but slavery did not disappear. Slavery continued and became part of the social structure of the Abbasid Caliphate. Slavery continued during the period of the Seljuks and the Mamluks (who ruled Egypt) and were slaves themselves, because slavery had become a part of the social life of Muslims, and it was not possible to abolish it. In the Ottoman Empire (1683), slaves were part of the labor force of that structure, and the Ottomans increased their number of slaves in expanding their territories to Azerbaijan and Europe. Ships raided various shores and brought in slaves, among whom women and children were the most valuable. The shrines of the Ottoman court were full of sex slaves who were stolen on these sea voyages. Black slaves were employed in the harem, and white slaves did clerical work. The Ottomans raised Christian children whose parents could not pay tribute to Ottoman values and made them fearsome warriors whose names were Janissary, or the Sultan's sacrifices. These soldiers were not allowed to start families and had to remain loyal to the Sultan. Slavery was so widespread that in 1609 one-fifth of the Ottoman Empire was enslaved.

One of the characteristics of Islamic slavery, unlike Western slavery, was the eunuchdom of slaves! Slaves employed in Ottoman families were eunuchs from childhood, although early Muslim Arabs also eunuched slaves from early childhood. The eunuch's slaves were also more expensive because they had more customers. It is said that during the time of the Abbasid caliph in the 10th century, 7,000 black eunuchs and 4,000 white eunuchs served in their palaces alone. Becoming a eunuch was the complete cutting of the boys' penis and balls, which was very dangerous and most of the children died in it, but the eunuch's slave by the death of several others was worth it to the merchants of this trade.

Wherever Islam set foot, it followed slavery, and only after the pressure of Western countries did this behavior fade. Even before the collapse of the Ottomans in the 20th century, slavery was still practiced. Until 50 years ago, slavery still existed in Saudi Arabia, Qatar, and Yemen. The last country to end slavery was Mauritania in 1981, only 43 years ago, although the trade was still practiced in secret. Mauritania finally criminalized slavery in 2007, just 17 years ago!

The crimes of the British in the slave trade compared to Muslims are like jokes and tickles, and the truth is that the Muslims themselves played a key role in North Atlantic slave trade and helping the British. Muslims started slavery before the Westerners and continued after the Westerners, and after the pressure of the Westerners, they put an end to this dirty Islamic trade. In the fourteen centuries of slave trade by Arab Muslims in Africa, it is estimated that nearly 112 million Africans were killed.

Europeans are ashamed of their slave trade and have apologized multiple times. How about Muslims? Last year, 2023, the Muslim Arabs of the Hamas group carried out a brutal attack on the Israeli people, killing or taking hostage many defenseless people who were dancing and celebrating. At that time, the Muslims, intoxicated with this "victory", were reviewing the Islamic commandments of slavery and concubinage! This is where Ferdowsi's saying about Muslims comes to mind: "From these colorless ravens faced people, who have no intelligence, no knowledge, no name, and no disgrace."

Allah is Mentally Ill: Promoting Islam with Fear

Allah, a creation of the sick soul of the Messenger of Allah, uses the language of threats and fear to call to Islam. Environmental events such as storms and earthquakes, which sometimes lead to painful disasters, occur anywhere in the world. The Qur'an links these events to the wrath of Allah. The Qur'an considers the creator of the heavens and the earth to be Allah and assumes that the earth is flat and its sky is like the roof over it. In 2-22 the Qur'an writes "It is He who made the earth a carpet for you and the sky a canopy, and sent down water from the sky, and brought forth therewith fruits a sustenance for you, so do not set up equals to Allah while you know." In 51-47 "And We have raised the heaven with Our might, and verily, we are the Firmament."

In 13-2 of the Qur'an it says: "Allah is the One Who raised the heavens without pillars that you can see, then He established Himself on the Throne, and subdued the sun and the moon, each of them for an appointed term". The sky with collapsing on the Earth in judgment day. The Quran describes the world as a building! "You don't think about how the sky stands with invisible pillars," he asks. Allah considers all environmental changes to be His might, and He has the ability to create a catastrophe in it whenever He wants, in which many people will be killed. Therefore, if an earthquake causes the death of people in any part of the world, it is because of Allah's wrath. Didn't Allah say He is merciful? With the advancement of today's science, many such events can be predicted, which shows that Islam and the Prophet of Allah are lying, and Allah, the creation of the Prophet's distraught soul, has neither created the world nor has a role in any environmental events.

Islam still frightens people with an imaginary place after death, Hell. The disbelievers will have their place there, and those who do not believe in Allah will be sent to Hell and will be tortured there forever. Apart from disbeliever, some human beings and the jinn have been created from the beginning to go to Hell, as in 7-149: "Indeed, We have created for Hell many of the jinn and mankind, because they have hearts with which they do not understand, and they have eyes with which they do not see, and they have ears with which they do not hear". Shouldn't the Messenger of Allah) have asked Allah Himself to add quality control to man-made factories so that their hearts could better understand the truths, their eyes would see better, and their ears would hear better? Isn't it Allah Himself who should go to Hell because He cannot make healthy human beings?

Fire is the main element in hell that is used to make fire in hell. There is no forgiveness, 4-121: "Their abode is Hell and there is no escape from it."

In Hell hot and scorching water will be drunk: 78-25 "Except boiling water and pustules." 22-19: "These are two enemies to one another, who dispute about their Lord, and as for those who disbelieve, garments of fire will be cut out for them, and boiling water will be poured over their heads."

The fire of Hell will burn their faces, and they will be ugly, 23-104: "The fire of Hell will burn their faces, and they will live in Hell ugly." What does beauty mean after death, and what is it used in hell and under torture?

In the Hell described by Muslims, the inhabitants are given the drink of "filthy water", 14-16: "After his neck will be the fire of Hell, and the water that they drink will be filthy water."

The punishment is eternal and lasts forever 43-77: "And they cry out, 'O Malik, 'Your Lord has seized our souls,' and He will reply, 'You are eternal.'" What does this mean? Isn't it that they are dead and have no soul to be sacrificed? Instead of water, burning wine is also served, 37-67: "After eating the Zaqqum of Hell, they will have a mixture of burning wine" Although alcohol evaporates faster than water at high temperatures, then burning wine will be the same as burning water, but in a smaller volume!

Food is also served in Hell, which is a foul-smelling and foul-tasting grass, 37-64 to 66: "It is a tree that grows from the bottom of the blazing fire, its fruit is like the heads of the devils, so they will eat from it and fill their bellies with it."

Hell has seven doors, each of which is for a specific group (15-44). The waters of Paradise are forbidden to the disbelievers (7-50), which confuses the reader. Isn't it that the disbelievers are in Hell, so how do they have access to the water of Paradise, and even if they drink from it, what effect does it have on the fiery torment in which they are burning? If you have gold and silver, it will melt in Hell and place on your forehead and side (9-35).

In 4-56 of Qur'an, Allah says: "Those who disbelieve in Our signs, We shall cast them into the Fire of Hell, and We shall replace burned skin of them with another skin that they may taste the punishment". So, Allah burns the skin, then waits for its skin to heal, then He burns the skin again! This Allah must be taken handcuffed to a mental hospital to be hospitalized and treated, because such a thought can only come from a criminal psyche.

The fuel used in Qur'nic Hell is made of people and stone: 66-6 "O you who have believed, guard yourselves and your people from the Fire whose fuel is people and stones, over it are stern angels who do not disobey what Allah has commanded them, but they do what they are commanded." This is due to the ignorance of the Messenger of Allah who was not aware of fossil fuels, solar or nuclear fuels, and if he had, his madness would have been more apparent. Do you still not believe it?

The Arabs invented Islam

If you don't have history, build it! Islam is a sect that has been formed over the course of more than two centuries and has stolen its foundations from other religions, and the thugs, the snake-eaters, the newcomers, whose profession was banditry, robbery, murder and rape and had no history of glory, needed to make a history for themselves. By the 8th century, the Sassanid Empire had already collapsed, and Byzantium in the north of the Arab land (in present-day Turkey) was also involved in its own internal difficulties, which could have been an opportunity for the newly arrived Muslim Arabs who earned wealth beyond their imagination, from plundering Iran's assets. The Arabs controlled modern-day Syria and Jordan, formerly a Christian land, until in 661 CE when Mu'awiya established the first Umayyad caliphate in Damascus (not Medina or Mecca), which stretched from India to Europe and from modern-day Turkey to Yemen. After Mu'awiya's death in 680, 'Abd al-Malik ascended to the caliphate, which was more prominent than the other Umayyad caliphs. Based on historical documents, historical researchers believe that both Mu'awiya and 'Abd al-Malik were Christians, albeit a branch of Christianity that not only did not believe in the trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, but also called those who believed in it polytheists and infidels. The Christians and the Jews considered themselves to be descendants of the prophets Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, but the Arabs consider themselves to be Ishmaelites and descendants of Hagar (Abraham's sister and Ishmael's mother), but the difficulty is that there is no prophet after Ishmael! In addition, Jews and Christians have Bibles, but Ismailis do not. This is where it was necessary to build a religion with a prophet and a holy book in order to compete with the northern enemy (Byzantium). Muslims used their own method of stealing, from other religions, Zoroastrianism, Christianity, and Judaism, to "build" a religion. In addition, in order to strengthen the identity of this fictitious religion, the existence of a city was also necessary. Until 706 CE, the direction of the Qibla was to Petra (southern Jordan), which was called the holy city of their fictitious religion (during these years, Mecca did not exist in Arabia). After the fall of the Umayyads and during the Abbasid Caliphate, which began in 750 CE, Ibn al-Zubayr built the city of Mecca in present-day Hijaz or Arabia in 783, and in order to sanctify it, he also built the Kaaba, which means box, around which they rotate seven times counterclockwise in religious ceremonies, which is similar to the Jewish ceremonies. In their ceremonies, the Jews went around their Kaaba in Jerusalem in the Dome of the Rock seven times, against the clock. Muslims create the legend of the hills of Safa and Marwa, between which "Hagar travels seven times to find water until water comes out from the ground under Ishmael's feet and saves them from thirst, which is called the well of Zamzam." In both Petra and Jerusalem, there are hills such as Safa and Marwa, and these stories were also stolen from the Jews. Even the idea of the Zamzam well was stolen from the Jewish well, which the Jews found after forty years of wandering in the arid deserts. Another well is in the Dome of the Rock itself (or the Muslim Quds Mosque), which is believed to have existed since the beginning of the world and is the place where Abraham brought his son for sacrifice.

The Black Stone is in the corner of the Kaaba that Muslims kiss it and believe to give them health, which is polytheism in Islam because it is like idolatry and is inconsistent with the monotheistic beliefs of Muslims. This stone was discovered in Phoenicia around 300 BC and is believed to be a meteorite. The Romans brought this stone to Damascus in 100 BC. The Roman Emperor Aurelius Antonius brought it to Damascus in 222 A.D., instilling the belief that "wherever there is a black stone, God is there." In the 7th century, black stone was brought to Petra. Ibn al-Zubayr destroyed Petra in 687 AD and sent the women and children south with the black stone to what is now Mecca. From then on, pilgrims also went to Mecca for pilgrimage in search of the Black Stone instead of Petra. The Abbasids agreed with Zubayr because of the black stone and built the Grand Mosque in Mecca in 697 AD to put this stone in it, which is still there today.

The inscription of the outskirts of al-Namur has been found seventy kilometers from present-day Mecca, which reports the construction of the Grand Mosque (where the Kaaba is). The date of writing of this inscription is 78 AH or 697 AD, which testifies to the fact that Mecca was built in this year during the caliphate of Abd al-Malik, and not during the time of Adam and Eve, Abraham, or Muhammad. The Qur'an itself tells us that Mecca is not where it is today. The linguistic attitude towards the Qur'an also testifies to the fact that the writing of the Qur'an came from the Aramaic-Nabatean land, which is today in the south of Jordan, 1,000 kilometers north of Mecca, and not from the land of Mecca, Hijaz.

Islam destroyed its Qurans

In Surah Al-Buruj 21-22, Allah says that the Qur'an has been preserved in a stone inscription (in a preserved tablet), i.e., the Qur'an has been for all times. In Yunus 15, Al-Kahf 15, and Al-Hijr 9, Allah again says that this Qur'an is the word of Allah, it has always been and has never been changed, and it is He who preserves it. The question begins here: Which Qur'an?

According to Muslims, between 610 and 632 CE, God "revealed" the Prophet, first in Mecca and then in Medina (Yathrib). Today, it is proven that Mecca was built in the 8th century (740 CE) and never existed in the period 610-632, but Medina did exist at that time. After the death of the Prophet in 632 (according to Muslims), the Battle of Yamama took place between Muslims and the Musaylamah sect, in which many of the memorizers of the Qur'an were killed. In the year 652, the Caliph Uthman asks the survivors of the Qur'an to write it down so that it is not only memorized, and this is how 114 chapters of the Qur'an are written. According to Muslims, this Qur'an has been intact for 1400 years and "not a single dot of the words of the Quran has been moved".

In the 7th and 8th centuries AD, Aramaic script had no dots and there were only 16 letters in its alphabet. For example, H(ח) can be written in three different types ح (jeh), خ (khe) and ح (heh). Now, the Qur'an is written in every land according to the liking of its author. Also fraction on letters changes the meaning of work for example, the word " قَتْلٌ" means to fight, and when the positions of fractions are changed to " قُتْلٌ" means to be killed! It is for this reason that by the 10th century, 700 different readings of the Qur'an will be created. The Qur'an that we have today is the recitation of memorization, which was accepted only in 1924. In 1984, the version of "Fahd" was also made official.

The Muslims' way of dealing with this multiplicity of the Qur'an is truly Islamic: to destroy. The Muslim Caliphs collected the Qurans from different lands and burned them! And they only kept the Quraysh recitation.

Today, there are still six manuscripts of the ancient Qur'an: Topkapi in Turkey, Samarkand in Uzbekistan, Mael in London, England, Petropolitanus in France, al-Husayni in Cairo, Egypt, and Sana'a in Yemen, none of which date from the seventh century AD, none of which are complete, identical to each other, and inconsistent with the modern version.

Nowadays, if you go to a bookstore in some Arab countries and want to buy the Quran, the seller will ask you which recitation?

The German scholar Christoph Luxenberg, who is a professor of the Aramaic-Syrian language<sup>7</sup>, has studied the Qur'an in his book published twenty years ago. He found that the language of the Qur'an is Aramaic-Syriac, which was the language of the Christians of the Byzantine Empire, which was used in the 5th and 6th centuries AD in the lands of present-day Syria, Jordan, and Iraq. He has removed all the dots, conquests, and adjectives from the Qur'an and has conclude that the part of the Qur'an whose meaning no one knows is the prayers of Christians that have been transformed into incomprehensible writings in rewriting the Qur'an. The one who is praised (Muhammad) is the Messiah, because the prayers of Christianity praise him. That is why in Islam, the Qur'an and even Nahj al-Balagha call the Prophet of Islam the Messenger of Allah and there is no other name.

Islam, a Hadith (narration) Making Factory

If you don't have a history, make it up. The Muslims realized this after their successive victories and expansion, and by acquiring countless possessions from the plundering of others. Muslims say that their history begins with the "Hijra" in 621 AD from Mecca in present-day Arabia, where the Prophet died in 632 AD. The first historian who wrote about Islam and the Prophet was Ibn Ishaq during the Abbasid caliphate or in 770 AD or more than 117 years after the death of the Prophet, but no trace of him or writings has ever been found, and we know him because other historians have mentioned his name. Historians such as Ibn Hisham and Muhammad ibn Umar al-Waqidi, who died in 833 and 835 AD respectively, have written about Islam and the Prophet, each of which was two centuries after the death of the Prophet. It is like writing about the life of King George IV today! Then, from 875 to 923 AD, other historians named Sahih Muslim to Tabari began to write the history of Islam, i.e., 243 years or nearly three centuries after the death of the Prophet. In addition, these historians lived way far away from the where (Muslim claim) Islam originated i.e. Mecca. Ibn Hisham was born in Egypt and lived in Basra, and Tabari was born in Mazandaran in Iran. Basra is 2,000 kilometers away and Mazandaran is 2,800 kilometers away from Mecca. So how did these historians write about the Messenger of Allah whom they never met, nor had they been there in Mecca, nor were they intimately acquainted with its culture and language?

The answer is in the hands of Abd al-Malik Marwan, one of the Umayyad caliphs, who started making up the Islamic history after his significant victories over the Byzantine Empire. In his time, 600,000 hadiths were "fabricated" from the beginning of Islam, and historians accepted only one or two percent of them and discarded the rest! These fabricated hadiths were the beginning of the history of Islam.

In the distant past, the word Islam was not known and no one uttered it. In Ferdowsi's Shahnameh (who lived in 940-1024 AD), Christianity, Judaism, and Zoroastrianism are mentioned, and it also has a part of the Arab invasion of Iran, but the word Islam cannot be found in it. The Christians of Europe and the Mongols (who came to power nearly five centuries after Islam) did not mention Islam and Muslims and called them Saracens.

Shiite Muslims have also made up their version of history for themselves, and the greatest of them is Muhammad Baqir al-Majlisi (1627-1699 AD), who made up two million hadiths from the Prophet and the Shiite Imams in his 110-volume book Bihar al-Anwar. With a simple calculation, it can be seen that if the Prophet and the Imams have narrated hadiths day and night, and there are someone with them to write these hadiths, this is impossible during their lifetime. Therefore, the Shiite also become a sect for themselves in this market of making up hadiths, which has caused countless disasters to Iran in its disgraceful life, of which the disintegration of Iran is only one of them.

The economic foundation in Islam is plunder and theft

Looking at the world, it can be seen that European countries, the United States, Japan, and these years, China and India, have a flourishing economy, and Islamic countries are not only poor but their economies are catastrophic, even though the climates in Islamic lands are much superior and they also have enormous resources such as oil. The more the Sharia and Islamic dictates are applied in a land, the poorer that country is.

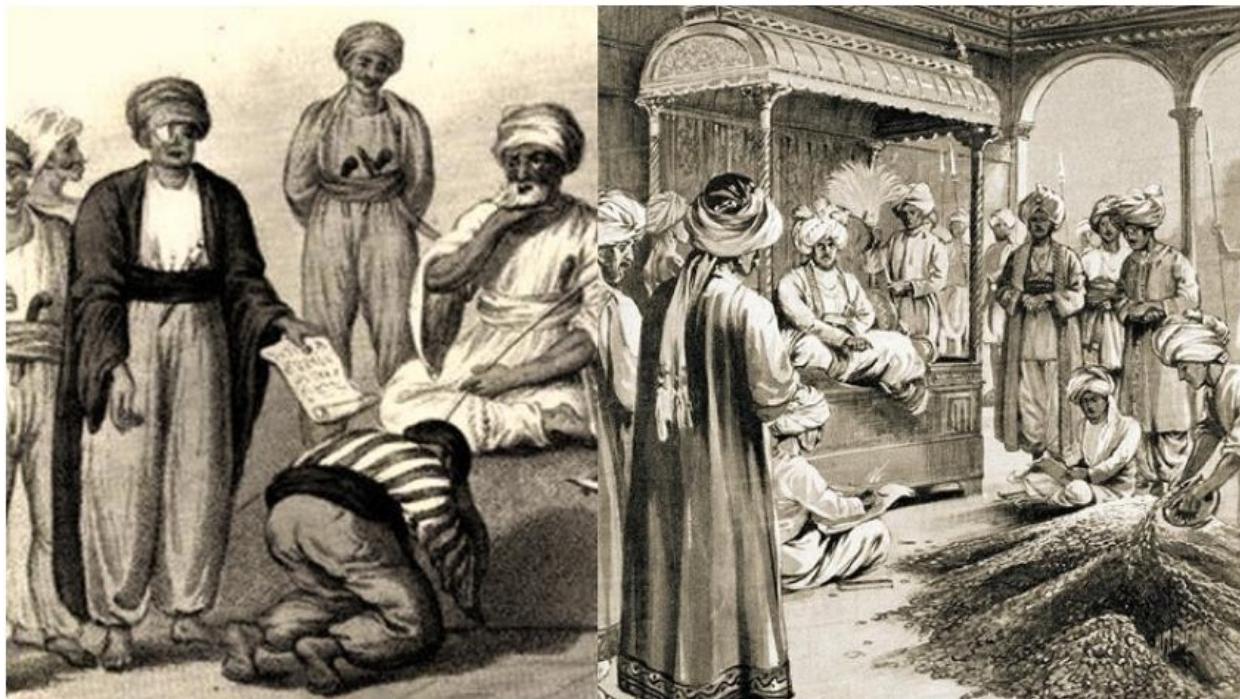

Economics is about people and choices, as the famous economist Alfred Marsh said: "Economics is the study of people in the daily business of life. Research on how they generate income and how they apply it. Therefore, economics is the research of the people on the one hand, and the research of how these assets are used on the other." For example, a high school diploma has to choose whether to go to work and make money, or to go to university first and then go to work, or the electronics company has to choose whether to make a smartphone or a tablet, depending on what the customers (people) want, or the government has to choose how to use its assets and whether it is necessary to borrow. In short: Is an investment worth the cost?

In Islam, the basis of choice in everything is the Qur'an, the word of Allah, and the Muslim belief is that there must be something in that book that is beyond people's imagination. In Islam, all people are "servants of Allah" and the ideal of every Muslim is to please of Allah. The method of generating income in the Qur'an can be clearly seen in many of Qur'anic verses: raiding caravans, banditry, plundering their property, taking slaves and concubines, and selling them in the slave market. In 8-69 of the Qur'an, the Qur'an says: "Eat of what you have taken as booty, lawful and good, and fear Allah, for Allah is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful" and in 8-41: " And know that one fifth of whatever you take as spoils belong to Allah, the Messenger, kinsmen of the Messenger, the orphans, the needy, and the destitute traveler; if you believe in Allah and what We sent down to Our worshiper on the day of victory, the day when the two armies met. Allah has power over all things.". Or in 48-20: "Allah has promised that you take many spoils. He has hastened this to you, and restrained the hands of people from you so that He makes it a sign to the believers and to guide you on a Straight Path." The Muslims are commanded to divide the spoils equally: 59-7 "The spoils of war taken from the villagers and given by Allah to His Messenger belong to Allah, His Messenger and the near kinsmen, the orphans, the needy and the destitute traveler, so that it is not something taken in turns by the rich among you. Whatever the Messenger gives you, accept it; and whatever he forbids you, abstain. And fear Allah; surely, Allah is Stern in retribution.". Allah says in Surah 6-165 that He has made some of you superior to others: "And it is He who has made you successors on the earth and has preferred some of you above others in degrees, so that He may test you by what He has given you".

The basis of Islam is the assumption that a small group of people whose job is banditry and plunder and has a tribal life is how to distribute the proceeds of theft equally. There are also no instructions in the Qur'an that mentions constructing, building or commerce or how people's needs or desires must be met in order to live in comfort.

There are Muslims with a doctorate degree who still shamefully mention the name of Islamic economics, such as "Dr. Banisadr" who wrote a book entitled "Monotheistic Economics" which was not even economical because it was a waste of paper and was useless. Economics cannot be Islamic or communist or Christian or anything else, but it is all about whether it is profitable to do something or not. In Islam, the comfort of the people is meaningless, so the term "Islamic economy" is an insult to the intellect.

Today, the economy in Islamic countries is thriving with natural resources such as oil. These days, Muslims, instead of attacking caravans, as in the early days of Islam, they can now live on their own land resources. The revenue from the sale of which reaches only the rulers, and the people continue to live in poverty. The Muslim rulers use these assets in such a way that they can survive and their "Islamic cult" will not be harmed. The development, progress, and comfort of the people are not in harmony with the Islamic commandments, because people who are comfortable and whose knowledge is increased cannot accept Islam.

The Caliphs of the Early Islamic Era Were Not Muslim

It is remarkable that both Mu'awiya and 'Abd al-Malik were Christians, albeit a branch of Christianity that not only did not believe in the trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, but also called those who believed in it polytheists and infidels. The Christians and the Jews had their descendants of the prophets Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but the Arabs consider themselves Ismailis and Hagar, but the difficulty is that there is no prophet after Ishmael!

The inscriptions and coins minted in the early days of Islam are a testament to how this sect was formed. Since the time of the Rashidun Caliphs (624-661 AD), no "Islamic" coins have been found in lands under Muslim rule, and the Sassanids, at this time, had also disappeared and did not mint any coins, but the coins that were minted later did not have a sign of the Islam we know it today, but they were like the Christians in the West and the Zoroastrians in the East! In coins minted from 651 to 661 AD, the emblem of the cross or fire temple was engraved on the back and front of the coins, and there was no sign of being "Islamic" on them. In 661 AD, Mu'awiya founded the Umayyad Caliphate in Damascus and minted many coins on which in the west (Damascus) had the motif of the cross and in the east (Iran) the image of the Zoroastrian fire temple, which had no sign of Islam but the inscription "Muhammad" was prominent in it. How can Muhammad be associated with the cross? The word "Muhammad" means praised one, and it is a title, not a name. "Muhammad" was never used for anyone's name before Islam. In pre-Islamic past, in the 4th century AD, Muhammad was used in the sense of the chosen and praised one, which is believed to have been a reference to the Messiah. Mu'awiyah is believed to be a Christian because there is an inscription on a rock in the Al-Aqsa Mosque that begins with the cross and then with the name "Mu'awiya Abdullah". In the seventh century, historians have found no sign of "Islam", but were all Christian, Zoroastrian, or pagan.

In 691, Abd al-Malik Marwan fought against Byzantium and won, then he minted coins with his own inscription on them, and the back resembled a Byzantine coin with a cross removed. These coins also inscribed "al-shohada" or "La ilaha illa Allah and Muhammad Rasulullah" which mean there is not got but Allah and Muhammad is the messenger of Allah. The minting of these coins in 693 was to mock and show ego against Byzantium, and the display of the figure on the coin is not compatible with Islamic commandments. In 696 AD, Abd al-Malik mints other coins in which the figure of the caliph is eliminated, and replaced with writings, the coins of the martyrs and the anti-Christian propositions that are incompatible with the Christian trinity stand out, which Muslims recite every day in prayer in the four verses of Qur'an Surah 112. Thus, the enmity with the Christians does not begin with Muhammad, but with the time of Abd al-Malik, when the Islamic empire stretched from India to Europe, and at this time, intoxicated with victories, everything he builds becomes a commandment.

A stone inscription in the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem that is related to Mu'awiyah can be seen in the green square of the Christian cross, and above the red lines is the inscription of 'Abd Allah Mu'awiva, Amir al-Muminin (ruler of faithfus).

The coin of Yazid ibn Mu'awiya, which, like the Sassanids, has a figure on one side and Zoroastrian fire temple on the other side of the coin. On the coin, there is an image that is contrary to Islamic teachings, and in addition to it, Bismillah has also been added. . A.D. 670

Islam spreads with the sword and penis

Islam began with a group of desert wanderers (Arabs) in the lands south of present-day Jordan, Syria, and Palestine (and not of the Hijaz) and quickly spread to the East and the West, and a large number of people were converted to Islam. At that time, the sword was a very effective tool to convince people and the spread of Islam. The Muslims follow Qur'an's 9-5: "So when the sacred months have passed, slay the idolaters wherever you find them, and seize them, and besiege them, and lie in wait for them in every ambush". They killed innocent people who did not accept Islam, and the condition for their survival was to become Muslims or be enslaved or if they were Christian or Jews, they could pay a tax together with humiliation and be able to live. Today, the sword of Islam has lost its effectiveness, and another way that Muslims numbers is increasing is to use their penis. For a Muslim mother, her sons are soldiers of Islam, and she marries her daughters (at any age) to a faithful Muslim, she will have many children, and this cycle continues.

Today, the growth rate of Muslims is higher than people of other religions, and it is estimated that by 2060, Muslims will increase by 45.7% and Christians by 21.4%, and out of the 9 billion people of the world this year, 2.9 billion will be Christians and 2.7 billion will be Muslims. Islam was brought to Europe by the sword of the Ottoman Turks, and today most of the people in Albania, Montenegro, and Kosovo are Muslims. It is not surprising that the Muslim country of Albania is the poorest in Europe. Today, in the wars of West Asia, many Muslims leave their homeland and immigrate to Europe, and so the number of Muslims in this continent is increasing. It should be noted that Spain was in the grip of Muslims until the 16th century when the Christians expelled them, but today Muslims from North African countries are migrating to Spain, and 5% of the population of Spain is Muslim, which has doubled in the last 30 years.

Islam and its expansionism are an immediate danger for the host countries, and if they do not deal with it, in the not too distant future, they will be like Iran or Afghanistan to the Paleolithic era.

There are too many Muslims

Allah is very rude

The Qur'an teaches many curses and curses to its followers. Sick, foolish, ape, ignorant, deaf, blind, dumb, animal, pig, monkey, howling dog, cattle, impure, wild donkey, donkey, worst beasts, ignorant and adulterers are some of the curses of the Qur'an itself, which are said to those who do not agree with Islam.

Here are some examples of these verses: 2-13: "And when it is said to them, 'Believe as the people believe,' they say, 'Shall we believe like fools?' Know that these are the same idiots, but they do not know."

2-65 "Surely you have come to know of those of you who disobeyed and sinned on the Sabbath. We said to them, "Become rejected apes."

2-171: "The likeness of those who disbelieve is as the likeness of he who calls to that which does not hear, except a shout and a voice. Deaf, dumb, and blind, they do not understand. "

5-60: "Say: 'Shall I tell you who will receive a worse recompense from Allah than that? Those whom Allah has cursed and with whom He is angry, and made some of them apes and swine, and those who worship the devil. The place of these is worse, and they have strayed further from the Right Path.'

62-5 "Those who were bound by the Torah but did not observe it are like a donkey carrying books, how bad is the people who rejected the verses of Allah. Allah does not guide the wrongdoers."

Al-Qalam 13: "Violent (and cruel),- with all that, bastard."

Surah 111 with all its verses is as follows: "May the hands of Abu Lahab be cut off and death be upon him, his wealth and what he has saved will not benefit him, he will soon be in the blazing fire, and his wife will be a rope of palm fibre around her neck." A verse that shows the cruelty of Allah and His harsh language.

And a number of other verses of the Qur'an. Muslims themselves insult other religions, but they do not tolerate insult to theirs from others, and even the punishment for insulting the Prophet or Allah in Islam is death!

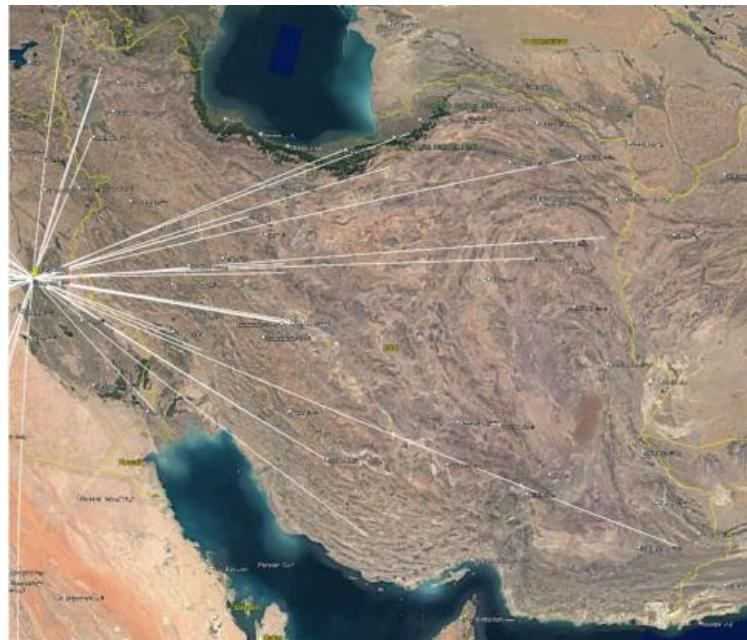

If a salesperson curses a customer, they can't sell him anything. The method of selling the religion of Islam, however, is of a different kind, with a sword-wielding hand and a contemptuous tongue that forces people to believe in Allah. Islam means submission to the will of Allah, and the will of Allah depends on the person who speaks on behalf of Allah. This is why Muslims are not self-reliant and do not innovate of their own, they are illiterate and ignorant, they have the lowest jobs, and most of them are poor. They have been brought up from a young age with a language of contempt and obedient force, and they have no authority over themselves, because the will of Allah is superior.

The direction of the Qibla to Mecca is not in Hijaz

The Qur'an says that the qibla should be towards the "Sacred Mosque" or, according to Muslims, Mecca (2-149). There have been valuable research in Quranic geography that have challenged this belief. Dan Gibson<sup>8</sup> lived for many years in many countries, from China to West Asia, and researched the direction of the qibla of mosques and wrote about it in the book "The Geography of the Qur'an". The side of the qibla is perpendicular to the largest wall of the mosques, and although some of the ancient mosques have been destroyed, it is still possible to see its infrastructure and identify their walls. He shows that from 624 to 705 AD, the direction of the qibla was to Petra, an abandoned city in the southwest of present-day Jordan. In mosques built after 715 or a century after the beginning of Islam, the direction of the qibla has been transformed into modern-day Mecca. Dan Gibson's book was published 13 years ago, and since then, in more studies of mosques in Iran and Europe, it has been found that the direction of the qiblas is not so organized. The Great Mosque in Shiraz is towards Baghdad, and the Great Mosque of Andalusia towards Morocco is the birthplace of Abd al-Rahman, the caliph of that time in Andalusia (Islamic occupied Spain).

In his report, the Canadian researcher A.J. Deus<sup>9</sup> has dealt with the Qiblas in Iran and examined the sub-layers of mosques in Iranian cities from north to south, including the Shah Cheragh of Shiraz and the Jameh Mosque of Isfahan, and has come to the conclusion that their direction is not to Mecca, but to Baghdad, and one of the maps he has made is mentioned in this paper. This is another sign that Mecca was "constructed" a century after Islam and did not exist before it, and that the entire sect of Islam is based on lies, fabrications and deceptions.

Islam, a religion its prophet has no name

The messenger of Allah or the Prophet of Islam, according to Muslims, died in 632 AD. There are no records of him during his lifetime or after his death. It is said that Ibn Ishaq, who died in 765 AD, or 135 years after the death of the Prophet, wrote about him, but there are still no evidence of these writings, and we know this only based on the accounts of other historians. From Ibn Hisham, who died in 833 AD, there are writings on the biography of Muhammad. Thus, the first biography of the Prophet was written two hundred years after Islam. From the point of view of time, it is like writing the biography of King George II (England) today, after more than two centuries!

The word "Muhammad" is not a name, it is a title that means "the praised one". In the Qur'an, the word "Muhammad" is mentioned only four times, all of which mean praise one, and not as a name. However, in the Qur'an, the name of Moses is mentioned 131 times, Jesus 25 times, Noah 50 times, Abraham 63 times, Adam 25 times, Elijah 2 times, Ishmael 12 times, Isaac 16 times, Ayyub 4 times, Aaron 20 times, and Pharaoh 67 times, but the name of the Prophet of Islam is not mentioned even once. Some scholars believe that the word "Muhammad" in the Qur'an is a description of Jesus Christ: Jesus Christ is "praised one."

At the beginning of its existence, Islam was not formed as we know it today. Most people, including Arabs, were either Jews or Christians or Zoroastrians, which most Iranians followed. The French scholar Eden La Fontaine, in his book "The Great Secret of Islam", says that the Prophet was born in the sixth century AD in the Quraysh tribe of Latakia in present-day western Syria. There, Judaism and Christianity were much more prominent than in the lands close to Iran, and it is clear that the Prophet was very familiar with these religions. Scholars also believe that the Prophet had a relationship with the Jews in Jerusalem and that he himself may have become a Jew, which is because Islamic teachings are like those of Jews. The Jews of Nazareth employed the Arabs to dominate the other Jews for their combat successes, and they called the Prophet Muhammad, who was the commander of an army of Arabs in that area. The Bible, gives the good news of the coming of a chosen one (Muhammad) who is the liberator of the people in captivity. In historian research, no one with a name Muhammad has been found in the 7th and 8th centuries, and "Muhammad" has been mentioned as a name in books after the 9th century AD. It can be said that the true name of the Prophet has been deliberately removed from the Qur'an. Calling Muhammad, the Messenger of Allah is an insult to the intellect. The censorship of the real name of the Prophet has entertained many scholars, and some believe that he is "Ayas ibn Ta'i" whom Khosrow Parviz (Persian Sassanid king) appointed as the governor of Hirah (near Najaf). In any case, why the name of the Prophet was censored from the Qur'an is not yet known.

So, who is this Messenger of Allah?

There is no historical document in the early Islamic era, the 7th and 8th centuries AD, of the existence of a figure named Muhammad. Muslims believe he was born in Mecca in 570 AD and died in 632 AD. Allah had sent him to show Islam to the world. In the years between 611-632 AD, the Qur'an was revealed to him. After his death, Abu Bakr, Umar, Uthman, and Ali, or the Rightly Guided Caliphs, spread Islam. Muslims believe that this was the golden age of Islam and wish to return to this era. Mu'awiya then ascends to the caliphate, and he establishes the first Islamic empire in Damascus, which is the beginning of the Umayyad dynasty and expands the borders of Islam from the east in present-day Pakistan and west into Spain, in the period 661-750 AD.

According to the beliefs of Muslims, the Prophet in the year 621 AD "Mi'raj", flies to the door of Allah in the sky with a donkey named Buraq, and oscillates between Moses and Allah several times, bargaining with Allah until he reduces the number of prayers from fifty to five times, and on his return he goes to Jerusalem, flies with Buraq, and returns to Mecca. In the year 622 AD, he "migrates" from Mecca to Medina with two hundred followers, which is considered "migration", and the beginning of the Islamic year is on this day. He conquers Mecca in 630 AD and passes away two years later, 632 AD.

The question is, is the above story believable? Was there anyone to testify, or is there any document or writing from this period that proves and accepts this legend? If the Messenger of Allah was so prominent, why is there no name of him in the Qur'an, and it should be known that Muhammad is not a name, it is a title and its meaning is the praised one. Before Islam, no one was named Muhammad. There is no proof of the existence of Muhammad. The American researcher, Robert Spencer, in his book titled "Did Muhammad Exist?<sup>10</sup>" By examining the ancient evidence, shows that Muhammad did not exist at all.

The first historian who talks about the life of the Prophet is Ibn Ishaq in 765 AD, 133 years after his death! Although there is no writing by Ibn Ishaq and his name appears in the historical references of other historians, 133 years of hesitation in historiography is like writing the life of Queen Victoria of England today. But Ibn Hisham is a historian whose writings have survived. Ibn Hisham died in 833 AD or two hundred years after the death of the Prophet. It is like writing today for the first time in the life of King George of England. Al-Waqidi (d. 835 AD), Bukhari (d. 875 AD), Sahih Muslim (d. 875 AD), al-Tirmidi (d. 884 AD), Ibn Mujah (d. 887 AD), Abu Dawud (d. 899 AD), and al-Nisa (d. 915 AD) have also written about the Prophet, none of whom were in Mecca nor could they have ever seen him. Al-Bukhari himself was born in Bukhara, which is 4,200 kilometers away from Mecca. Another historian, Tabari, was born in Mazandaran, which is 2800 kilometers away from Mecca. So how could these people, who were neither at the same time nor in the same place as the Messenger of Allah, be able to write about his life?

The answer to this question is in the hadith. Al-Bukhari received nearly six hundred and fifty thousand stories about the sayings of the Prophet, and after reviewing them, he accepted only seven thousand three hundred and ninety-seven of them, or only two percent of them. The question is, where did these stories come from, and on what basis did Bukhari accept only two percent of them?

The first caliph to carve the word "Muhammad" in the Dome of the Rock or the Quds Mosque, mint coins and mint the "Shuhada" along with his face on it, was Abd al-Malik Marwan in 692 AD, or sixty years after the death of the alleged Muslim Prophet. But the first people who introduced "Muhammad", the way everyone believes today, who was born in Mecca, was the Abbasid Caliphate in 750 AD, or more than 100 years after the death of the Prophet. Everything that Islamic historians wrote was based on the same 600,000 stories that the Abbasid Caliphate had fabricated.

The first writing of Muhammad's life is from Ibn Hisham's "narrations" in the book "The Biography of the Messenger of Allah". Such books were written and published only in recent 100 years and had not been collected in a harmonious manner before that. The stories of early Islam and the life of "Muhammad" come from a series of narrations, not writings, and it is clear that these restatements can easily be changed from one person to another. Historians have come to the conclusion that "Islam" did not exist in the eighth century AD but evolved and formed over a period of 200-300 years. The Qur'an was not revealed to anyone but was written during 50-100 years period. All of this came into being during the time of the Umayyad caliph, Abd al-Malik Marwan (685-705 AD), and the period of early Islam before that is said to be fabricated.

In the 7th century AD, scholars have found the name "Muhammad" only five times in various writings. Remember that according to Muslims, the Prophet died in 632 AD. In 632 AD, Thomas Pirsbiterus wrote of a battle between Ta'i d'Muhammad (of the Lakhmi dynasty in southern Iraq and northeastern Arabia) in Gaza. In 636, in Yarmouk (Syria), Muhammad the Arab killed many Syrians. In 660 CE, the Armenian bishop Cebeus names an Ishmaelite named Muhammad, with 1,200 Israelites. In the year 690 AD, John Bar Pencay mentions "Muhammad", the teacher and leader of the Arabs. John of Damascus ridicules Muhammad's writings, namely the cow (al-Baqarah), the woman (al-Nisa), the table (al-Ma'ida), and the camel. Although the Qur'an has 114 chapters and this book has only four chapters! Also, Surah al-Ashtar (camel) is not in the Qur'an today (or it was omitted later). In all these writings, "Muhammad" lived a thousand kilometers north of Mecca, or this is not the Muhammad that Muslims believe!

True History of Islam from the Language of Stones

Muslims hide the true history about the formation of Islam. Then, how could one find the truth? Ask the stones what they really say.

There are many inscriptions and petroglyphs from ancient times that can be used to identify different histories and cultures. The Finnish historian<sup>11</sup> Ilkka Lindstedt has studied 30,000 inscriptions from the first 100 years of Islam (640-740 AD) because the formation of Islam can be known from these stones. His first finding is that the language of the inscriptions is Aramaic Arabic, which is common in southern Jordan (1000 km north of Mecca) and not the languages of the Hijaz land. Nor do they find any trace of "Islam" before 690, six decades after Muhammad's death. The name of the Prophet Muhammad is found in coins, inscriptions, and the Dome of the Rock during the twenty years 690-710 AD, and in the years 710-720 AD, Muslim ceremonies such as pilgrimage, prayer, and fasting are revealed. In the 720-730 AD, the names "Muslim" and "Islam" appeared, meaning "those who are not Christians." This shows that in the first 100 years, many years after the death of the Prophet, Islam did not exist in the sense of a new religion. During this period, the Arabs called themselves Ismailis, Hajri, Muhajireen, and Saracin.

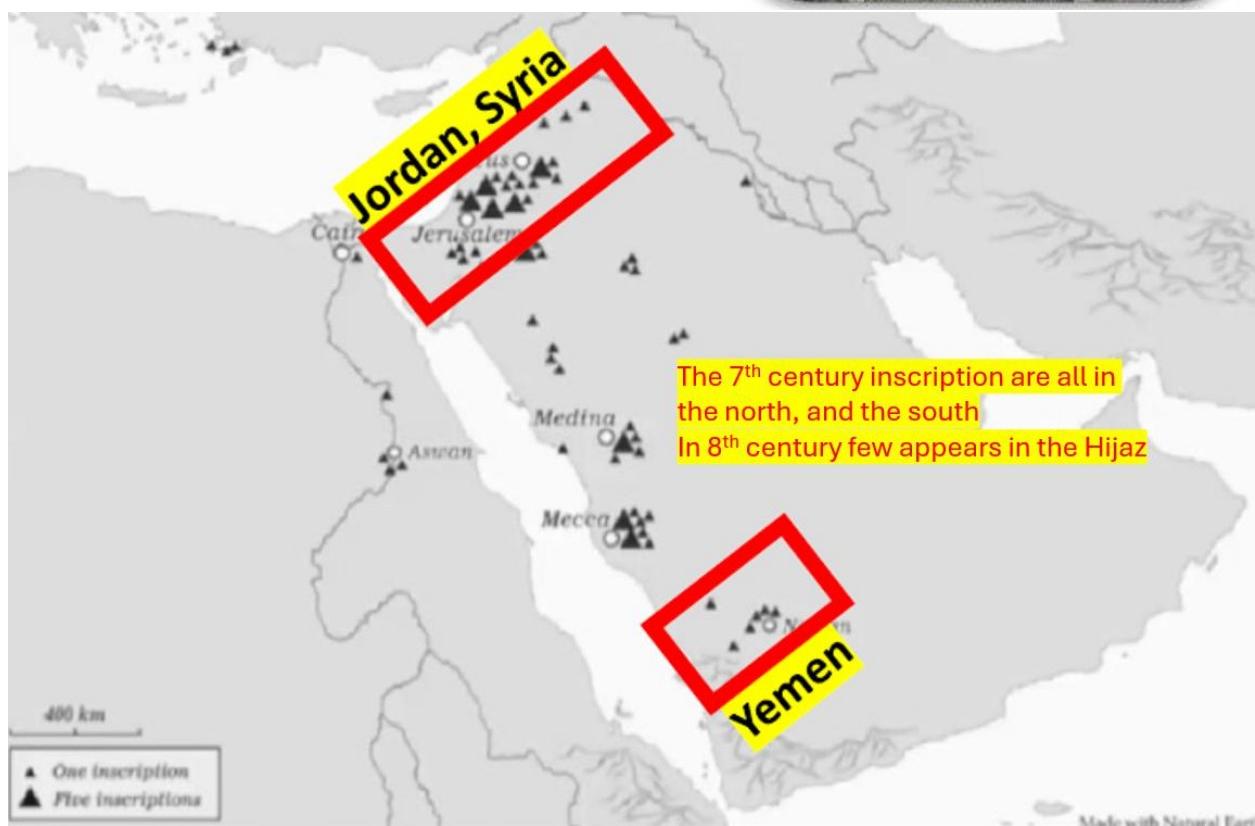

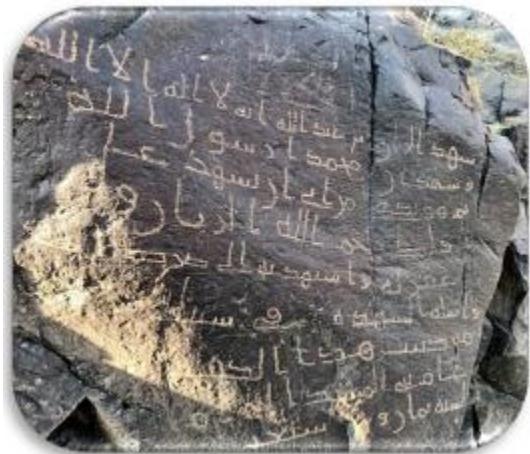

The Muslim legend of the Prophet's ascension is that he goes from Quds to the Throne and then to Moses, and after bargaining with Allah, he reduces the number of obligatory prayers from fifty to five. If this legend is true, there must be inscriptions in that mosque, otherwise you must be a Muslim to believe this legend, or if you believe it, you are a Muslim! And there are other inscriptions in Jerusalem. In the inner corridor of Quds, on the wall Surah 4-171 is engraved: "... Therefore, believe in Allah and His Messengers, and do not say, 'He is a Trinity', and avoid that which is not of any benefit to you, for Allah is the One God, glory be to Him, and does not have a son..." And Surah 112, "Say, 'He is Allah, He is the One, Allah, the Eternal, Absolute, He begetteth not, nor is He begotten, And there is none like unto Him,' followed by the inscription "There is no god but Allah, and the Praiseworthy (Muhammad) is His Messenger" which is indeed written and praised for the confrontation with Christians who believe in the trinity, the Father-Son-the Holy Spirit. The writing after that is "There is no god but Allah and Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah". All these engravings were about the confrontation with trinity view of Christianity. Jerusalem was a place of pilgrimage for Jews and Christians at this time, and the writing of this statement was in line with the confrontation with the Christians. Again, this shows that the caliphs of the early days of Islam were Christians who did not believe in the trinity, and that Islam was based on a confrontation with the Christians of the trinity (Father, Son, and Holy Spirit), and it can be said that it is a sect that emerges from the heart of Christianity and Judaism. This is further proof that there was no Islam in the seventh century AD<sup>12</sup>. The conflict between believing and non-believing Christians dates back to the fourth century AD and was not a new challenge in the seventh century. These inscriptions (with all their Muslim sloppiness) have all been found in the land close to Petra and Jerusalem, or in Yemen, and none of them are near present-day Mecca, which is another sign that the city of Mecca is a fabricated myth of Islam. A sample of these inscriptions are shown here.

History of Islam from Coins

No coins have been found in modern day Arabia since the early period of Islam, and everything found was from the north (1,000 kilometers), but there are no evidences of what we consider to be Islamic today, but these coins had Christian or Zoroastrian symbols, including Mu'awiya. (until 680 AD).

The first coins that show signs of the emergence of Islam begin with Abd al-Malik Marwan (691 AD), in which Christianity still plays a role, but there were also signs incompatible with the Christian triad.

All of this is evidence that what is called Islam began one or two centuries after the date that Muslims call the Hijra. Here we have given a view of these coins and the readers will see the history of Islam in them.

632-661 AD or the period of the Rashidun Caliphs with a Christian cross and no sign of Islam. All these coins have been found in the lands of northern Arabia, Hira, Damascus, and Gaza.

The coins of the period of Mu'awiya (680 AD) in which there is no sign of Islam, but the cross is visible, which shows that the caliphs of the early Islam were Christians

The coin of Yazid, the son of Mu'awiya, which, like the Sassanid and Zoroastrian kings, has a fire temple and a crescent with star, which was also in the coins of the Sassanid kings. In this coin, the word Bismillah have been added. The same moon and star, which has Sassanid roots, are engraved on the flags of Islamic countries

Byzantine coins in 690 AD

Muslim coins in the 690s AD are theft of the Byzantine coin motif, even though it is forbidden in Islam to draw. Also "La ilaha Allah, Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah"

The coin of Abd al-Malik Marwan in 693 AD after the victory over Byzantium and with its own figure (which is forbidden in Islam). Islamic slogans together with a figure similar to Byzantine coin with cross removed on the other side.

Coins of 696 AD of Abd al-Malik Marwan without his figure and with the inscription "Allah has no partner", in contrast to Christian triad.

Summary of the History of Early Islamic using Coins

The coins of the early Islam had a Christian nature in the west and Zoroastrianism in the east

624-660 AD - No coin from the Rashidun period has been found and does not exist. At this time, Muslims were occupying Iran and Syria.

640-660 AD - Coins minted in the Islamic Emirate were Christian or non-Islamic in nature.

661-680 AD - The coins minted during the time of Mu'awiya have a Christian nature in the west and a Zoroastrian nature in the east. The word "Muhammad" is on these coins, but it is associated with the cross of Christianity.

692-693 AD - Caliph Abd al-Malik adds Muhammad and martyrs to the minted coins, mostly to downplay their Byzantine enemies and Christians who believe in the triune. In these coins, Muhammad was praised to mean the Messiah (the Messiah of Muhammad) and that Allah, the Muslim God, was neither born nor born and is one, contrary to the triad of Christianity.

693-696 AD – Byzantine Emperor Justinian II first defeats Abd al-Malik in a battle. In this victory, Abdul Malik mints his figure on the coins, which was to show off his victory. In Islam, it is forbidden to draw shapes!

692-705 AD – These coins are minted in Arabic script, attacking Christianity and calling Islam the superior religion. Allah, which is the name of God in the Nabatean culture, is present in the early days of Islam, but there is no sign of the word Muhammad in this period.

The history of coins tells us that the doctrine of opposing the Christian triad was not introduced by Muhammad, but by Abd al-Malik Marwan.

Therefore, the date of the coins of the seventh century AD does not correspond to the legends that Muslims tell about their history. What we know today is not a religion, it is a sect that took shape for two centuries and Muslims are lying!

History of coins that shows the evolution of Islam over a century.

Islam made women disappear

The fourth section of the Qur'an, al-Nisa (woman), is about women. To know how Islam thinks and behaves about women, we need to reread the Qur'an and the hadiths. The summary is that Islam oppresses women and hates them. In Islam, women exist only to obey and be enslaved by Muslim men, and there is no other honor for them. The brutal treatment of women by Muslim men continues to this day, in the 21st century. The Qur'an says: 2-223 that women are like farming land for men, so treat them as you wish, and sow your seeds in them as you please: "Women are your planting place; come then to your planting place as you please and forward for your souls, and fear Allah. And know that you shall meet Him. Give glad tidings to the believers." In the same chapter (2-228), the Qur'an considers men to be superior to women: "... Men are superior to women, and Allah is All-Mighty, All-Wise."

The Messenger of Allah had the permission to sleep with any woman he wanted (Ahzab-50), even Zaynab, the good-looking woman of his adopted son, at the "suggestion" of Allah (Ahzab-37), and for this reason adoption is obsolete in Islam. In Surah Al-Baqarah, in verse 34 of the Qur'an, it is clearly stated that men are superior to women, that women should be submissive, and that men can beat their wives: "Men are the guardians of women, because Allah has made some of them superior to others, and because they spend of their wealth. They guard their secrets and admonish the women whom you fear and keep away from them in the dwellings, and beat them, but if they obey you, do not seek against them any way, for Allah is the Highest, the Great."

In 4-11, the Qur'an says about inheritance and the share of men and women in it and considers the value of women to be half that of men: "Allah charges you concerning your children, for a male like the share of two females. If they are women, above two, they shall have two thirds of what he left, but if she is one, then to her a half. While for his parents, to each one of the two a sixth of what he left, if he has a child. But if he has no child and his heirs are his parents, his mother shall have a third. If he has siblings, to his mother a sixth after any bequest he had bequeathed, or any debt. Your fathers and your children, you do not know which of them is nearer in benefit to you. This is an obligation from Allah. Surely, Allah is the Knower, the Wise."

Chapter 4-24 of the Qur'an says about the sexual slavery of women: "And (forbidden to you) are married women, except those whom your right hand owns. Such Allah has written for you. Lawful to you beyond all that, is that you can seek using your wealth in marriage and not fornication. So whatever you enjoy from them give them their obligatory wage. And there is no fault in you in what ever you mutually agree after the obligation. Allah is the Knower, the Wise." Which means you can't sleep with women who are married, but you can sleep with married women who have been enslaved! Such women are called sex slaves or concubines. Islam says to treat these women like prostitutes and give them money for the service! Islam advises its followers to plunder caravans, kill men, and take their women as slaves, even if they have husbands. In other words, theft, murder, and rape are not only not a crime in Islam but encouraged. Other verses of the Qur'an 23-5 to 6 and 53-50 have similar statements.

Chapter 4 of the Qur'an promises the faithful men a paradise where virgin and untouched maidens will serve them, but there is no direct reference to the place of women in this imaginary paradise of Islam. On the other hand, the promise of Hell to women who do not follow the commands of their men are many. The Qur'an does not set any age limit for marrying girls, but it also encourages the marriage of minors 4-25 and 4-58.

Women should be covered for all but their husband (24-31) and always be in Men's control (4-34) and 4-3, 15, 24, 25, 36 and 12.

Islam has given a Muslim man permission to beat his wife so much that her skin turns green (Sahih Bukhari) for the crime that she might have said something behind her husband's back. The Prophet believed that women's intelligence was low.

When a Muslim killed his wife in front of his child who had made fun of the Messenger of Allah, the Messenger of Allah said, "It is okay". A Muslim can sleep with girls of any age, even before they reach puberty: 65-4: "As for your women who have despaired of further menstruating, if you are in doubt, then their waiting period is three months as well as those who have not yet menstruated. As for those who are pregnant, their term shall be the time they deliver their burden. Allah will ease (matters) by His order for whosoever fears Him."

UNICEF has conducted a statistical study on the quality of children and women in all countries, and its results are significant. In Afghanistan, 92% of women agree with being beaten by their husbands. This figure is 47% in Sudan, 62% in Baluchistan of Pakistan, and 51% in Iraq. This question has not been asked of people in other countries, but these statistics and numbers are truly astonishing. In many countries, the percentage of women who must obey their husbands is more than 50 percent, and in Islamic countries, this percentage is much higher. For example, in Afghanistan it is 94% and in Malaysia and Indonesia it is 93% and 96%, but in Islamic countries that have advanced a little more, women believe that they should have the same rights as men, which is 88% in Turkey and 76% in Indonesia, but 30% in Afghanistan and 15% in Tunisia. These statistics show how women are oppression over centuries after Islam. Freeing people from these beliefs from the minds of people in Islamic countries is one of the difficulties in the path of the freedmen.

Islam destroyed the family

Not only polygamy is allowed in Islam, but also concubines or sex slaves are added to it. An exemplary Muslim in the history of Islam is the Prophet himself, and his relationship with his daughter Fatima, who was not more than nine years old, was such that he kissed her lips every night, reminding the Prophet of "the smell of heaven" and kissing her breasts every night! Of course, it is said that the Prophet was barren, and Fatima was not his true child. This exemplary Muslim leader, the Messenger of Allah, had forty wives! And he slept with one of them every night. One of the wives of the Prophet married him when he was six years old and raped her when she turned nine. The Prophet also had several concubines, one of whom was a Jewish girl with whom the Prophet slept at night after beheading her father and brother. Another prominent figure of the early Islam is Ali-ibn-Abi-Talib, who had eighteen wives and an unknown number of concubines. One of his sons, Hassan, the second Imam of the Shi'a, had taken 300 wives. Other great men of Islam or Shiite Imams also had a significant number of wives and concubines who were as old as 6 years old. Child marriage is allowed in Islam and is still practiced in Islamic countries. For example, one of the famous Shiite leaders, Khomeini, marries a ten-year-old girl at the age of twenty-eight and even has rulings in his book about the sexual treatment of an infant girl.

What has no place anywhere in Islamic teachings is love and affection. Love is in the nature of human. In relations between the opposite sexes, there are feelings beyond sexual desire that attract the two. Affection, friendship, and attachment have no meaning in the teachings of Islam. Islam believes that infidels should be killed with the hard sword and their women should be raped with hard penis.

In the Islamic families, hatred takes the place of love, for example, the Prophet himself was poisoned by the same Jewish slave girl and later he died. Hasan and a number of other Shi'a Imams also died from the poison that one of their wives fed them. In other words, even the wives or companions of the Prophet of Islam and the Imams of the Muslims hated them to death. In Islam, love loses its place and hatred takes its place.

How can living in the Islamic way deliver educated children to society? In a family where a father has many wives and in the case of Imam Hasan reaches three hundred, how does a child grow up? Will a Muslim father ever hug his kid? The child who is raised in this Islamic family has neither affection nor proper education and is eventually handed over to the society one who is aimless, without affection, without education, illiterate, or in other words, a Muslim. There is no better place to know Muslims than to know their family.

When the Prophet of the Islamic sect is a mentally ill person who knew only mating instead of a family, woe to the people who follow him. Islam keeps the society backward and the newly arrived masters like the British, easily make them their slaves.

Islam destroyed love

Let's remember Hafez (1315-1390 AD), "O heart, don't you pass from the alley of love? you have the tool (heart) and don't do anything?". So, let's take a walk through the alley of love.

In every Quran surah except 9, the Qur'an begins with "In the name of Allah, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful". Muslims learn that one should fear Allah, and Muslim should love Allah, but it is never said, "Does Allah love me?".

Christians always say that God loves them or that Christ loves them, even if they have done something wrong. Love is one of the characteristics of Christians, and it is a bond between man and God that comes from their Gospel, and it is thought that since Islam is a subset of Abrahamic religions, such a desirable quality may be in some way in Islam, but it is not so. Islam is a sect in which one must follow and obey, and Islam means submission. In Christianity, you are God's children and people, and God loves you, but in Islam, you are Allah's slave, and you should be scared of Allah, and it is better to behave correctly, otherwise you will end up in Hell. The word "love" appears three hundred times in the Bible, one of which is (1 John 4:7): "My beloved, let us love one another: for the love of God and for all the love that God has created, and God knows." In the Qur'an, the word "love" is mentioned sixty-nine times, and that Allah loves man is mentioned twenty times, such as in 3-76: "Yes, whoever fulfills his covenant and is pious, then verily, Allah loves the righteous". in 2-205: "And He destroys the generation, and Allah does not love corruption."

Although Allah calls Himself the Most Merciful, an example of Allah's words is as follows: "May the hands of Abu Lahab be cut off and death be upon him, his wealth and what he has hoarded will not benefit him, he will soon be in the blazing fire, his wife will be the one who kills, and around his neck is a rope of palm leaf". A reciter of the Qur'an sings this, full of disgust verse and violence, with a pleasant voice, and if you do not know Arabic, you will think that the Qur'an is talking about love and friendship and not about hatred, cutting off one's hand, and being burned in the fire. Abu Lahab was the uncle of the Prophet and one of the fierce opponents of Islam, in any case, whoever he was, he lived and died in a short time, and even if there was a short time from him, should Allah curse him like this forever? In addition, what sin has his wife committed that a rope of palm leaves should be tied around her neck and burned in the fire? Therefore, Allah Himself declares that He is neither the Most Merciful nor the Most kind, but He is hard-hearted and fearful.

What is the command of Islam for those who insult Allah or the Prophet? It is death, and they will burn in the fire in Hell. How could one see any love in Allah. If we insult Allah, we must be killed, and there will be no time when we want to repent next week, apologize for what we have said, and convert to Islam. If you leave Islam, you have a few days to return, otherwise you will be killed, even if you repent after a month and there is no mercy.

Islam also hates Christians and Jews, and the Qur'an promises them the fire of hell. In 98-6, "The unbelievers among the People of the Book and the idolaters shall be for ever in the Fire of Gehenna (Hell). They are the worst of all creatures", and in 3-85, "And whoever seeks a religion other than Islam, it will never be accepted from him, and in the Hereafter, he will be one of the losers." If Islam believes that the Christians and the Jews first followed the religion of Abraham and then went astray, shouldn't Allah tell them that someone has misled you and tell them the reason for it, thinking that they will become Muslims? Apart from Christians and Jews, any other religion you have, such as Zoroastrianism or Buddhism, etc., your place is, according to Allah, in Hell. Allah says Muslims also go to hell as in 19-70 and 71: " We alone know who deserves most to be burned therein, There is not one of you who shall not go down to it: such is a thing decreed, determined by your Lord".

Allah is always angry that "He instills fear in their hearts", "They are impure", "May Allah destroy them", "They are lying", "We will defeat them". Allah is like one who has the wishes of the Messenger of Allah in him, and Muslims still believe in him. Allah is so unkind that if a woman does not cover her hijab, she will burn in the fire of Hell only because she has not drawn a cloth around herself, and the Prophet said that most of the inhabitants of Hell are women, because they are cursed, ungrateful, deceitful, and foolish, and if so, we should ask Allah Himself why He created women in this way. Therefore, Allah Himself along with His Messenger and His Book must be burned in the same fire of Hell.

Islam is a sect of terror

The British say to divide and rule, but Islam says to intimidate and rule. In the Qur'an, the main motivation is to make the listener frightened so that he falls into the trap of Islam. The Qur'an 50-45 writes: "Remind whoever fears My threat (terror) to the verses of the Qur'an." Again and again, the Qur'an speaks of environmental events such as earthquakes and floods (22-1) and considers them to be the will of Allah, and by instilling fear (and terror) in the heart of the listener, He seeks to make him subservient and submissive to Him. In 92-13: Allah considers the world and the Hereafter to be His own, and therefore it is in Allah's hands to control it. In 2-229, Allah again conveys His commands to His followers through fear (terror), and if they do not follow them, there will be a painful punishment for them (5-94). Allah also considers this fear to be exclusive and exclusive to Him, and it is not the right of anyone else, as in Surah 16-51: "And Allah says, 'Do not take two gods for yourself, except that He is the One God, so fear Me alone." The Qur'an says that Allah Himself is a terrorist, and that Islam is a terrorist, and that life in an Islamic state is like passing through a tunnel horror.

The way to salvation in Islam is to fear Allah, as Surah 2-189 says: " They question you about the crescents. Say: 'They are times fixed for people and for the pilgrimage. ' Righteousness does not consist in entering dwellings from the back. But righteousness is he who wards off (sin). Enter dwellings by their doors and fear Allah, so that you will prosper.'" Allah asks His followers to fear Him alone and not others, as in 3-175: "It is Satan who frightens his friends, so fear them and fear Me, if you are believers." In 2-150, he repeats the same sentence again: "... So do not fear them, but fear Me, that I may complete My favor upon you, and that you may be guided." And many times the same verse appears: "... So do not be afraid of them, and fear Me...". While the number of words "love" in the Qur'an is zero, the word "fear" is mentioned more than 200 times.

Muslims are a Hidden Terrorists

In 9-5, the Qur'an instructs the Muslim to kill the disbelievers wherever they find them. Anyone who does not believe in Allah is considered an infidel, and the Qur'an has issued a license to kill him. 9-29, speaks specifically to the People of the Book, which are the Christians and the Jews, and commands the Muslims to fight against them so that they will pay you the jizya with their own hands.

In 8-60, the Qur'an clearly mentions the word "tarhibun" or terror or fear: "Mobilize whatever you can of the ready forces and horses to frighten the enemy of Allah and your enemy and other [enemies] besides those whom you do not know and whom Allah knows, and all things in the way of Allah spend it, and its reward will be returned to you, and you will not be wronged." Therefore, according to the Qur'an, a Muslim is tasked with instilling fear in the heart of the enemy of Allah, or to be more precisely, a terrorist.

In 8-39, "Fight them until persecution is no more and the Religion of Allah reigns supreme. If they desist, Allah sees the things they do", yet Allah commands the Muslims to fight the disbelievers until they are destroyed and the fitnah (resistance) is eliminated.

In 47-1, 2 and 4, Qur'an first identifies the disbeliever and then in verse 4 he commands the Muslim to behead the disbelievers: " Those who disbelieve and bar from the way of Allah, Allah will cause their deeds go astray As for the believers who do good works and believe in what is sent down to Muhammad which is the truth from their Lord He will acquit them of their sins and repair their condition. Therefore, when you meet the unbelievers smite their necks, then, when you have killed many of them, tie the bonds. Then, either free them by grace or ransom until war shall lay down its loads, in this way, it shall be. Had Allah willed, He would have been victorious over them; except that He might test you, the one by the means of others. As for those who are killed in the Way of Allah, He will not let their works to go astray.." It is interesting that the Qur'an says that Allah Himself could have killed the disbelievers, but He just wants people kill each other!

In 5-33, "The recompense of those who wage war against Allah and His Messenger and strive to spread corruption in the land is nothing but that they should be killed, or crucified, or that their hands and feet should be cut off in opposite directions, or that they should be banished from the land".

In the past few years, the world saw the terrorist group ISIS who were true followers of the Quran and (again) proved that terrorism is one of the teachings of the Quran.

Look around you right away, and if a Muslim is in view, be afraid that he will want to carry out the command of the Qur'an of Allah to you.

Muslim is another name for a terrorist

Muslims are ugly: Islam destroyed beauty

Beauty is a characteristic that is in the eyes of the beholder, but it can be said that Muslims are ugly. Ferdowsi (940-1025 AD) calls Muslims Ahriman (evil) face and that they look like ravens, the waterless and the colorless:

From these serpent-eater, evil faces deprived of wisdom and shame

Of these colorless ravens faces, they have no intelligence, no knowledge, no name, and no disgrace.

One reason for these observations of the ugliness of Muslims is that for them, beauty or good smell and well-dressing and good behavior have no meaning, just like Arabs of early Islam who were desert dwelling people. The followers of Islam consciously try to make themselves look dirty and badly dressed, the uglier the better, because the Muslims of the early Islam were also wandering thugs. The Muslims of the early Islam were a nomadic people whose drink was camel urine and their food was lizards or grasshoppers, and their occupation was stealing, robbery, and plundering caravans, and then killing men. Then raped their wives. They were uncivilized and illiterate people who did not care about anything else or did not understand it, and it is surprising that they are models for today's Muslims. Today, inside a mosque, the smell of the feet of worshippers is suffocating, because Muslims do not make any effort to wash or perfume themselves. Muslim toilets, both inside and in their vicinities, also smell of dung (feces).

Muslim men do not try to cover their ugliness, they do not shave their beards because Islam considers it haram, and they do not dress neatly and are not adorned, and their clothing are also sloppy by their choice. They also smell bad. They think by doing so, they are showing their servitude to an imaginary Allah.

For women, their hair, which adds to their beauty, must be covered, and Muslim women have also been forced to hide themselves inside the veil and from the society and not to do makeup, and therefore they become stinky, which is neither seen nor desired by men. Some women also do things hidden under their hijab that Muslims consider haram, just as the chadors are a cover for their corruption. Many of these Muslim women become ill into middle age, become depressed, or become vitamin D deficient and osteoporosis due to a lack of sunlight on their skin.

Many Muslims also suffer from oral and dental diseases due to decay and falling out of their teeth. With this habit of not taking care of oneself, an ugly and ill-faced Muslim not only does not accept the beauty of others, but also tries to suppress it whenever he can, and what he does not want for himself, he does not want for others. The Muslim has a foul sense of the beautiful world or the progressive world around him, and the reaction to it is accompanied by violence in order to make everyone as ugly and ignorant as he is. Muslims destroy beauty and art and know no boundaries in it. The Islamic sect chooses the color black over all the other beautiful colors, and from the color of the Muslim veil to the color of their flag, it is black. Muslims have an unwritten exchange between themselves and Allah to make this world like hell for themselves and others, and to forgo happiness to please Allah who may give them rewards in afterlife with the imaginary paradise promised to the believer in the Qur'an. Many Muslims secretly break their unwritten covenant and deal with all that is considered forbidden in Islam. Hafez (14 century AD) says

The preachers who make this manifestation in the mihrab and the pulpit do something else when they go to solitude

Muslims are sick and Islam is a disease

The root of the violent and ugly behavior of Muslims can be found in following the Qur'an and the characteristics of the Prophet. Allah has a fierce and frightening nature that reminds His servant of the burning fire of Hell or gives His faithful servants the good news of the drunken brothel of Paradise. Allah will seal eyes and ears of those who have gone astray, so that they may go further astray. Allah will cast the disbelievers into Hell, He will burn the inmates of Hell in the Fire, and He will burn their skins again after their burns have been cured. These are verses of the Qur'an, not a hadith that recounts the characteristics of Allah, and from a psychological point of view, Allah is a psychopathic and frightening thing. Again, according to the Qur'an itself, the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) was a slave-owner, slave-seller, and criminal (which we have discussed in the previous sections). Muslims should not ask any questions, and if they do, the answer is given to him with a sword. Obviously, Muslim believers either do not know anything about Islam and perform Islamic rituals like their fathers, who were also forced to convert to Islam, and they are not very curious to know anything about it. These diseases of Islam gradually become a part of his existence, he forgets his humanity, and all that is valuable to him is Islam and its values, and this is how he becomes a Muslim and makes his next generation a Muslim. It is not surprising that the followers of a frightening mentally sick thing like Allah, a criminal pedophile, a womanizer and a thief like the Messenger of Allah are also sick.

Muslim lives are worthless

The value in Islam is its expansion, even at the cost of the lives of Muslims: as in repentance, 111 "Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers their lives and their possessions [at the price] that Paradise may be theirs, those who fight in the way of Allah, and kill and are killed, as a true promise in the Torah, the Gospel, and the Qur'an. Rejoice in what you have done to him, and that is the great success." Therefore, it is a covenant between a Muslim and Allah that he will sacrifice his life and Allah will give him a ticket to enter Paradise in return. The Qur'an also gives good news to those who are slain in the way of Allah that they will not be killed: Al-Imran 169 "Do not think that those who are killed in the way of Allah are dead, but they are alive with their Lord, and they will be provided for." The life of this world of Muslims must also be sacrificed for the sake of this world: Al-Nisa 74 "So let those who trade the life of this world for the Hereafter fight in the way of Allah, and whoever fights in the way of Allah, and is killed or victorious, We will soon give him a great reward." Again, Allah calls upon His followers to act in terror: Muhammad 4 "So when you deal with those who disbelieve, strike their necks, so that when you have killed them, then bind them firmly, then either do them a favor or ransom, so that they may lay down their arms in battle. And if Allah had willed, He would have taken vengeance on them, but He may test some of you by means of others, and those who are killed in the way of Allah will never let their deeds go to waste." In other words, Allah says that He could have killed the disbelievers, but He wants to make you fight each other in order to "test" the Muslims.

This is the life of a Muslim, either in war or if he reaches an infidel, he is instructed by Qur'an to kill him, or rape her. In other sects and branches of Islam, each considers the other an infidel, for example, the Sunnis consider the Shiites to be infidels and are ordered to kill them.

The only thing for which Allah and Islam have no value for is the human and its life. The Qur'an simply asks its followers to kill/rape and not worry too much about the punishment for their deeds because Allah has already reserved their place in Paradise.

Islam has no value for human life.

Islam makes people dumb and into obedient soldiers ready to die

There are many unwise statements in the Qur'an. For example, in 16-68, " Your Lord revealed to the bee: 'Build your homes in the mountains, in the trees, and in what they are building", and in 22-65, "Do you not see that Allah has subjected to you all that is on the earth, and the ships which run upon the sea by His command? He holds the sky back lest it should fall upon the earth except by His permission. Allah is Gentle to people, the Most Merciful". or in 15-19 " And the earth We have spread out (like a carpet); set thereon mountains firm and immovable; and produced therein all kinds of things in due balance".

So Allah send revelations to the bees, the sky does not fall to the earth by His command and the earth is wide and flat. Today, every child knows that the earth is round, and the sky is not a roof that can collapse on the earth. Here we must ask why Muslims should believe in a Qur'an with so many stupid propositions? Are Muslims a group of idiots? The answer is complicated. No, Muslims are not stupid, and well...they are. It is not the case for Muslims to read the Qur'an and accept it or to abandon it, but they are born Muslims, and they grow up with it, and they become accustomed to it, and they believe in it, and they consider everything written in the Qur'an to be true, and they consider it to be the best of books, full of advice, free from any wrongdoing, and Allah is the All-Knowing. But indeed, none of the Muslims have read the Qur'an, and they only know some verses of it and recite them in their prayers that they do not even know their meaning. Many Muslims are not Arabs and do not know Arabic. Only 15 percent of Muslims speak Arabic, and even they find it difficult to understand the Qur'an because its language is ancient that is not used much in their daily lives. They memorize the verses of the Qur'an without knowing their meaning. When you confront a Muslim with a stupid statement from the Qur'an, you see that it is the first time he has heard such a verse and does not know how to respond to it. The response of Muslims is: "Stupid, the translation you have is incorrect, die and go to hell", "These are not in the Qur'an, you made it up of yourself. I hope you die in the street like a hungry dog", "No, the Quran does not say such a thing, may Allah burn you in Hell because you deserve it". This is not because they are liars or have been taught to respond that way, but because they do not know how to respond to such stupid statements in their Qur'anic book. They cannot believe how this book they grew up with and which the mullah of their mosque told them to be completely true can be false. Therefore, their reaction is disbelief in us and that we are liars, or that the stupid propositions of the Qur'an should be read with its posterior and preceding propositions, and the whole surah should be read in one place, or they say that you are sick and you are doing this for money, or that you are a spy for America or Israel, or that you are a secret Zionist who has a plan in mind. All this is because in the belief of a Muslim, the Qur'an cannot be false, and it is your own falsehood, and the Qur'an is the word of Allah, and everything in it must be true, and if you disbelieve, a painful punishment awaits you. Qur'an tells in 2-2: "This is the Book in which there is no doubt, and it is a guidance for the pious" and 2-6 and 7: "Indeed, as for those who disbelieve, whether you warn them or do not warn them it is the same for them, they will not believe, Allah has set a seal on their hearts and on their ears, and there is a veil over their eyes, and for them will be a painful punishment."

Muslims who believe in the Qur'an are unaware of its contents, and since it is the word of Allah and Allah is same as God, then they follow it blindly to the extent that Allah makes them terrorists, and by following 2-191 and 9-5, they take lives of the "disbelievers", and they do not regret killing them, because it is the will of Allah. In this way, Muslims, without knowing what Islam really is, follow it and ruin their life with the dirty crimes ordered by the Qur'an. Many Muslims also lose their lives in this way. This is why Islam turn innocent men to murderers and makes them ready to die in battles.

Muslims are brainless: Islam Destroyed Wisdom

Muslims are not irrational in nature. Most Muslims remain faithful to the Qur'an or reject any reproach from it, not because they are irrational, but because they have been indoctrinated from an early age, filled with fear and anger to be feared by their self-centered parents and violent religious preachers, of which violence is an inseparable part and should not be questioned and should only be obeyed: Al-Noor 51: " When the believers are called to God and His Messenger to be judged, their only words are, "We have listened and obeyed." They will have everlasting happiness". In Islam, logic and questioning give way to fear, and it surprises Muslims when confronted with logical reasons.

Many Muslims have not read the Qur'an, and just few of its verses are recited in religious ceremonies or prayers, and most do not know their meaning. When you recite to them stupid verses such as "Allah made the earth flat" (2-22), they either do not know it or they say that this is not what it means, and it is necessary to read its interpretation because these divine verses are beyond your understanding because the Qur'an is a miracle. The Qur'an does not ask a Muslim to be intelligent, and a Muslim does not need wisdom, the only indisputable duty is to worship Allah: "I did not create man and jinn except to worship Allah" (51-56). Therefore, it is the duty of Muslims to always keep their heads in prostration and to report their servitude to Allah 24 hours seven days. The more they worship, the more privileges they will receive, and their reward will be in the afterlife. The Qur'an does not advise His servant to benefit from wisdom and find your way in this complicated world, but to prostrate yourself before Allah!

Muslims are not foolish, they are human beings like others, and they should become familiar with the truth, and confronting Muslims with logic and acquainting them with more data is the right step. We should tell them that what they have learned from Islam are frightening lies that are dangerous for themselves and for others.

Everything in Islam is stolen

The sect of Islam and its ceremonies have all been stolen from other religions, and this sect has nothing new by itself. Islam means submission and a Muslim should have submission to the will of Allah, which can be anything that depends on who is the caliph from Allah. Islam does not even have ethnicity. Arab means desert dweller and is not a race. For example, a person who lives in the deserts of the United States, Iran, or China would be an Arab, even if his race, skin color, and even language are something else.

When the Arabs (desert dwellers in Jordan-Syria-Gaza) attacked their neighboring countries and plundered their wealth, they also became acquainted with the customs of others. Now, these illiterate and savage Arabs, with a shameful history and culture, wanted to fabricate their own history, rituals, and religion.

The word mosque does not mean "place of prostration", but it is stolen from Zoroastrian's Mazda-kadeh, which means the house of God: Mazda = God and Kadah = place. Praying five times is one of the five times that Zoroastrians pray<sup>13</sup>.

Among the Abrahamic religions of which Islam claims to be one, Islam is the only one that speaks of the Sirat Bridge. This is another story which is originally from Zoroastrianism. According to Islamic beliefs, non-Muslims go straight to hell after death, and Muslims, even those who have been upright to Allah all their lives, must cross this bridge. In the religion of Zoroastrianism, there is a bridge called Chinood<sup>14</sup> that separates those who have done good deeds from the evildoers. The Quranic version of this bridge in the Islamic sadistic way is a bridge that is covered with thorns, and even Muslims and believers are tortured and burned on the way to reach their paradise.

There has been a lot of research about the origins of the Qur'an, and researchers agree that this is a copy and translation of other religions, especially the Bible and the Torah, and there are many inaccuracies in the translation of the language in it, so that the perception of the Qur'an has changed a lot and has a different meaning.

Praying towards the Qibla is a copy of the Jewish ceremony towards Jerusalem. At first, like the Jews, Muslims prayed towards Jerusalem, and after many years, when their accounts were separated with the Jews, they turned towards the Qibla towards Mecca.

The rituals of Hajj and seven times around the Ka'bah are taken from the Jews in a similar manner. The water of Zamzam is also a copy of a spring near Jerusalem, which is sacred to the Jews.

In summary, Islam is totally fabricated and only by patching many calluses of other religions and rituals, an oxymoron called Islam that is forced on others by swords.

<sup>13</sup> Zoroaster does not believe in daily prayers, he believes in good thoughts, good words and good deeds, and he who adorns himself with these three virtues does not need prayers or fasting.

<sup>14</sup> Chinood bridge is in the New Avesta states that there is talk of hell and heaven, but this thought has nothing to do with the ontology of Zoroaster, the teachings of Zoroaster should be sought only in his seventeen hymns "Gathas" and not in Vandidad or other parts of the Avesta.

Sectarian Islam: Hundreds of Islamic Sects all at War

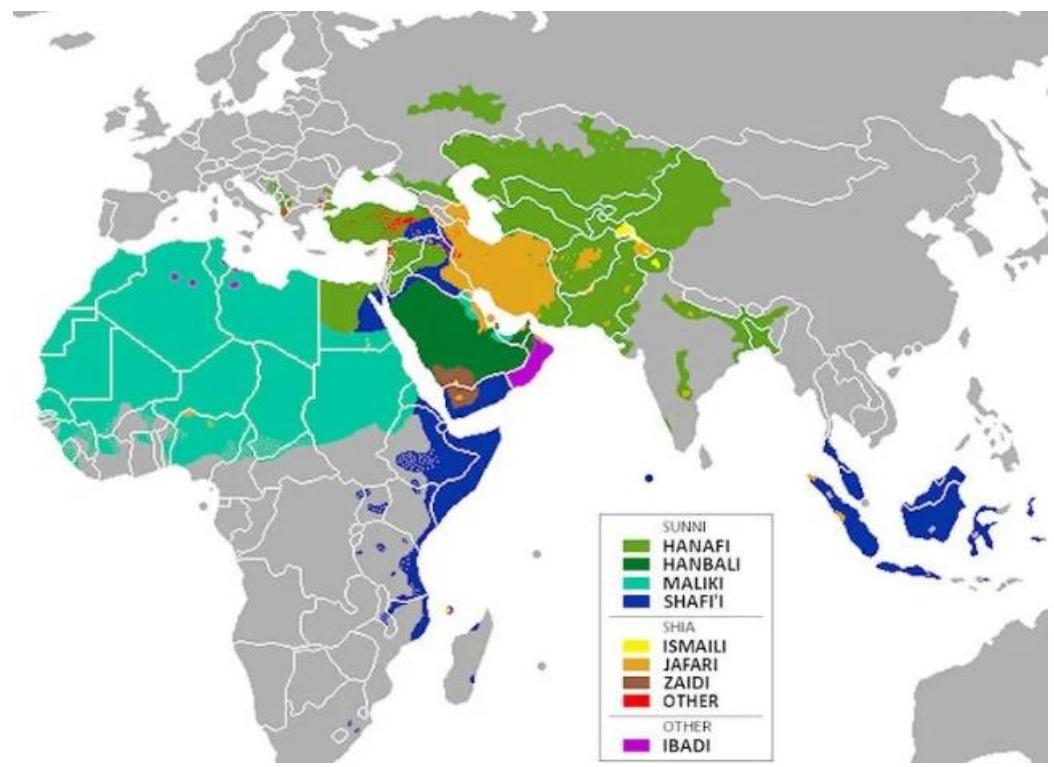

The Qur'anic verses and Islam are fundamentally heterogeneous and contradictory to themselves, which has been proven by many historians. This sect, which itself does not know what it is saying, has been forced on the people by the sword. A child born into an Islamic society is confused by the commands of Islam. There are still hundreds of incompatible variants of the Qur'an in the world, which adds to this internal heterogeneity and incompatibility of Islam. This is why everyone, everywhere, interprets the Qur'anic and Islamic commandments in his own way and with his own Qur'an, and creates different sects. For example, the basis of the Wahhabi sect, which Saudi Arabia pursues, is to follow the instructions of Islam in its traditional form, like the Prophet himself. In the past years, beheading in the streets, cutting off fingers, stoning, and these kinds of Islamic punishment were common in Saudi Arabia. Most Muslims in the world are Sunnis, and 10 percent of them consider themselves followers of the Shiite sect. In the Shiite sect, Ali Abi Talib is considered the successor of the Prophet, and he is called the Imam or the leader, and from then on, the Imamate is hereditary. There are also several types of Shi'a sects, which depend on the number of these Imams. For example, in Twelver Shi'a, there is a belief in the existence of the Twelfth Imam (who was never born) who is said to have disappeared since the age of five, and he can come with his white horse and free the world from oppression and corruption! Another branch of Shi'ism is the four Imams, and the Ismaili sect, after the sixth Imam (Sadiq), the Imamate goes to his eldest son, Isma'il, and this sect itself is divided into other sects. In one of these sects, the Imamate still exists, and now the 49th Imam is alive, and his name is Shah Karim al-Husayni, who is known as Karim Aga Khan who lives in Canada<sup>15</sup>. Another sect that has emerged from the heart of the Shi'a and with which the Shi'a have a very harsh attitude is the Baha'i, in which Bahá'u'lláh is the Twelfth Imam who was finally reappeared. This sect was supported by the British, and they helped the British war with the Ottoman Empire, which led to the defeat and collapse of the Ottomans, so that the British gave Abdul Baha the title of Sir.

Hundreds of Islamic sects all consider the Qur'an to be the word of Allah and Muhammad as the Messenger of Allah. They are all expansionists and want to force convert others into their sect. These sects transcend heterogeneity and consider each other infidels, and according to the Qur'an, infidels should be killed. This is how since the creation of the evil sect of Islam, the lands occupied by Muslims have not seen a happy day.

The path that leads to peace, comfort and progress is at least the discarding of the evil and mafia sect of Islam in any form.

Muslims cause their children to be killed

For a Muslim mother, her son's child is a soldier of Islam, and their daughter is married to a devout Muslim at an early age. The Muslim family has many children, and one of the usual pastimes for parents is mating (not love for each other). In the Muslim family, the only thing does not exist is love, and the children are forced to follow the Islamic command of "father and mother." Muslim families, having many children, do not have a plan for them and do not have any value their education except for religious teachings. In Muslim families, there is no bond and affection between father and child. During war, Muslim children go to war, and if they are killed in it, they will be called martyrs for the sake of Islam, which is a source of pride for the parents. There are Muslim parents who boast of having several of their children killed in the war, and some of them seek to receive a reward from the Islamic government, i.e., that a Muslim kills his child for his own comfort!

Islam destroyed knowledge

Although in Islamic countries lived great scientists, knowledge has no place in them, and they even ridicule it. From the so-called "Muslim" scientists in the world, most are from Pakistan, Iran, and Turkey, and the Arab countries do not come close. For the former countries Islam is still a foreign thing, and many of these scientists are Muslims because they were born from, usually, uneducated Muslim parents, and most of them leave Islam when they are mature enough to know what it is. Iran, for example, has a Zoroastrian religious background that was based on knowledge and science, and its worshippers were not like the clergy of religions such as Jews and Christians, but were themselves scientists who used to create science and had called them Magis. Magi is the root for the English word magic, which is nothing but science based knowledge. The brilliance of today's knowledge can be seen in sophisticated tools such as high-speed communication or space science and exploration among many others.

Scientists in Islamic countries have mostly been educated with established Western methods. Like the Iranian scientist, Ali Javan, who was the inventor of helium neon lasers, had a physics degree from Tehran University and then Columbia University in the USA and performed his research leading to the invention at Bell Laboratories in the United States. He stayed at MIT in the United States until the end of his life. Or Abdus Salam, who was born in India before the separation of India and Pakistan, graduated from Oxford University in England, and there he created his theory of standard models, for which he won the Nobel Prize in Physics.

Islamic countries cannot fundamentally be based on science because Islam and science cannot coexist. In the early days of Islam, Muslims burned all the books in every country they conquered and killed all scientists. In the raid on India, the Indian library was set on fire by the Muslims, which burned for one full month! Umar used to say that all knowledge is in the Qur'an and other books make a person an infidel, so why do we need them anymore? In Surah 29-20, Allah says: " Say: 'Travel in the land and see how He started the Creation. Then Allah will originate the Everlasting Life. Allah has power over all things.", in which He first says: "Go and study the earth and see how Allah began the world", which is a good word encouraging people to do research, but then He adds: "Allah has created all things." which closes the door to any research. In verse 21 of the same sura, Allah's sadistic nature is again revealed: "He punishes whomever He wills, and He has mercy on whomever He wills, and to Him you will be returned."

Muslims believe that the Qur'an transcends the location and time, and that there is a lot of knowledge that with the passage of time, the truth of this book and the religion of Islam will be revealed to everyone. On the one hand, non-Muslims and infidels advance knowledge rapidly, and on the other hand, Muslims are still reading their Qur'an, so that they may find something new in it. Indeed, Islam and the Qur'an have been disaster for the science and people who have been forced to Islam. Examples to know what Qur'anic science look like are:

Surah 18-86 "... The sun sets in a muddy and black spring..."

In 86-6 and 7 " He was created from ejaculated water that issues from between the loins and the ribs."

In 88-20, the Qur'an considers the earth to be flat (not round).

In 65-12, "Allah created seven heavens and seven earths.".

36-38 and 39 "The sun revolves around the earth.".

In 22-5, "The human fetus is a stain of blood.". Again, in 22-65, "If Allah had not held the sky, it would have collapsed to the earth."

In 37-6 and 10 and 67-5, " We have adorned the lower heaven with lamps, and We made them a stoning for the Satan, We have prepared the punishment of the Blaze for them.". So stars are like lamps to light up the Earth's ceiling, the sky, and the meteors are meant to strike the heads of the devils who have come to be rebellious and inquisitive like rockets!

Muslims believe that the secrets and knowledge can be extracted from the Qur'an. What has been said above is only a small part of this "encyclopedia"!

The first step on the path to knowledge is the question, which in Islam and the Qur'an is answered by the sword. In 5-101, the Qur'an asks Muslims not to ask questions: "... Never ask about things that, if revealed, will make you ugly, bad, and sad." Instead of knowing what the stars are and where they come from, the Qur'an asks Muslims to glorify Allah, 52-49. And Surah 5-102 says, "If you ask, you will become disbelievers." We know that the Qur'an's ruling for the disbelievers is death, so what right does a Muslim have to ask?

In 27-65, the Qur'an says: "No one in the heavens and the earth knows the knowledge of the unseen except Allah, and they have no knowledge of when they will be resurrected." I wish that Allah would also inform the Muslims who follow Him a little bit of the "knowledge of the unseen", and the Muslim should ask why Allah did not do so?

In 24-64, the Qur'an says, " Be aware that all that is in the heavens and the earth belongs to Allah, whatever you are, Allah is aware of it..." Does Allah know that this book was written to tell the Muslims that Allah and Islam are nothing but nonsense, and that those who believe have crossed the line of ignorance and irrationality?

In an effort to spread Islam and implement Islamic law, Muslims need an uninformed, illiterate, and naïve people, and they eliminate anyone who wants to inform the people, while Europe after the Renaissance was a platform for the significant development of science and art, and the Christian clergy themselves have contributed to the advancement of knowledge. Many scientists from Europe can be mentioned who were among the great scholars of that period. Examples of some European scientists are Galileo, Newton, Faraday, Maxwell, Kelvin, Lavoisier, Gauss, Abel, Einstein, and Heisenberg, each of whom were giants in the knowledge of physics, chemistry and mathematics. In Islamic countries with a larger size and population than Europe, from the tenth to the twenty-first century AD (1,100 years), which Muslim mathematician, chemist, or physicist can be named?

The world's Christians with a population of 2.4 billion have received 66%, Jews with a population of 15 million in the world have received 21%, and Muslims with a population of 1.9 billion have received less than 1% of the Nobel Prize. However, the findings that led Muslims to the Nobel Prize were all in non-Islamic countries. Famous scholars of the Islamic era, such as Avesina or Razi, were all anti-Islamic, were considered apostates by the caliphs or Islamic clerics. The Persian scientist who discovered alcohol, Razi wrote a book in which he ridiculed Islamic beliefs with logical statements. He was brought to the caliph of the time, and his book was slammed on his head until he became blind.

Islam not only cannot tolerate science, knowledge and progress, but it is also a barrier to its spread. Islam can only survive and spread in the shadow of irrationality and ignorance.

All morning you have been standing next to me...

I'm waiting for you to make a discovery that I can then claim the Quran knew it!

Islam and the Cosmology of the Qur'an

In starting pages of Tabari (9th century AD), one of the early books on Islamic history, it is mentioned the question that has been raised by Muslim scholars about the beginning of the creation of the world: was it first night or day? After many debates, these Islamic scholars conclude that the night was created first because the day came to illuminate it!

The Qur'an has many verses about creation that tells us about Islam's view of cosmology. In the creation of the world, the Qur'an says in 2-29: "It is He who created for you all that is in the earth, then He created the heavens and established the seven heavens, and He has knowledge of all things." Allah clearly expresses His ignorance about creation. Also, in 41-10 to 12, it writes about the creation of the seven heavens and then commands that the stars be lit like lamps.

Does the moon emit light from itself, or is the moon's light a reflection of the sun? The Qur'an answers that the moon has its own light, which is in 10-5: " It is Allah who has made the sun radiant and the moon luminous and has appointed for the moon certain phases so that you may compute the number of years and other reckonings. Allah has created them for a genuine purpose. He explains the evidence (of His existence) to the people of knowledge "

In 18-86 "... The sun sets in a muddy and black spring..."

88-18 and 20 "Do they not cry out how the heavens were raised, and how the mountains were raised, and how the earth was spread out?"

65-12: "Allah has created the seven heavens and seven earths." In 67-3: "He who created the seven heavens in layers, you see no discrepancy in the creation of the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful.

36-38 and 39 "The sun revolves around the earth."

22-65: "If Allah had not held the sky, it would have collapsed to the earth." Let us remember that today we know that the sky is not a roof, but it is gas and air that is held by the Earth's gravity, and that the blue color of the sky is due to the scattering of sunlight from particles and molecules in the atmosphere. And in 52-44, "Even if these disbelievers see a piece of the sky falling, they will still say, 'This is a dense cloud.'"

67-5 "And indeed, We have adorned the heaven of this world with lamps, and We have made it a means of repelling the devils [= disturbing forces], and We have prepared for them the punishment of the blazing fire." Today we know that stars are like the sun, and some of them are much larger, and because they are so far away, they are seen as a bright spot. Allah was so ignorant that He considered the stars to be like lights! The fact that Muslims claim that there is a lot of hidden knowledge in the Qur'an is an insult to the intellect.

15-18: "Except for him who steals, let him hear, for a bright meteor follows him" and 15-19: "And We have spread out the earth, and cast in it firm mountains, and We have caused to grow in it all things in measure.". Meteors are rocks outside the Earth that burn in contact with the Earth's atmosphere, the light of which can be seen. They don't hit anyone's head and evaporate right above the atmosphere. This is also one of the illusions of the Qur'an, which it gives to its illiterate followers by the force of the sword. Similarly, in 37-10, "Except for the one who eavesdrops [on the speech of the upper ones] all at once, and a piercing meteor rises after him."

79-27 to 32, has more about creation: "Is it more difficult for you to create (after death) or the creation of the heavens which Allah has created?! He raised its roof and made it regular. And He darkened His night and revealed His day. And He spread out the earth after that. He took out his water and prepared his pasture. And set up firmly mountains." 67-5: "Indeed, We have adorned the heaven of this world with lamps, and We have made it a means of repelling the devils, and We have prepared for them the punishment of the blazing fire."

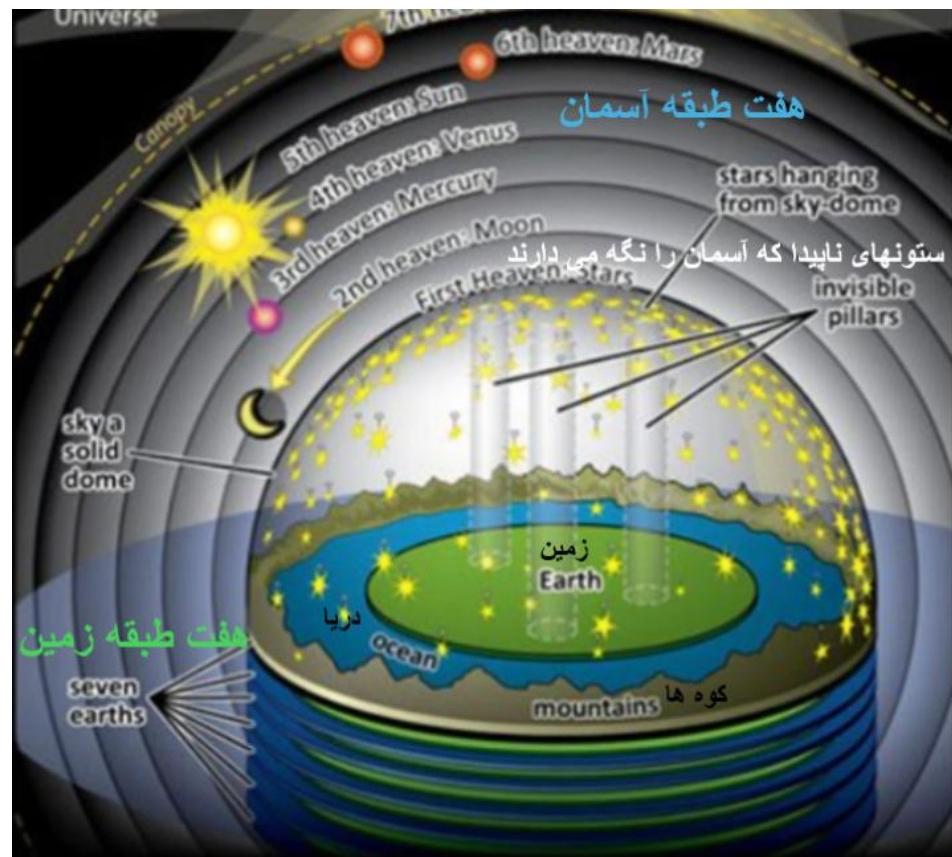

What the Qur'an says is saying is all about the earth and what is on the earth, the mountains, the sky, the sun, and nothing more. In the Qur'an's view, the earth is flat, and the sky is like the roof of a building, for which Allah has raised pillars that invisible. The mountains hold the earth in place like nails (although the Qur'an does not mention the word nail). Today, every child knows that the earth revolves around the sun, but the Qur'an, which contains all the wisdom and knowledge there is (!), did not know this? The Qur'an considers the stars, each of which is like a sun, and because they are so far away, they appear like a bright spot, as lights to decorate the ceiling of the night sky, and some of these stars are ordered to hit the heads of the devils who are eavesdropping! The Qur'an does not know that these "stars that move rapidly in the sky from one side to the other" are meteorites and not stars that burn when they collide with the earth's atmosphere and whose light can be seen from the earth.

The Qur'an says in 36-37 to 40 and 91-1 and 2 that the sun reaches its station and follows the moon, which it never reaches, and this is how night and day come into being: "By the sun and its radiance, by the moon as it follows [the sun]."

Every child today knows that the moon revolves around the earth and the earth revolves around the sun, and they don't care if Allah want it, the sun will go in the same direction that can be calculated with the science of physics, and for several billion years, the laws of physics have ruled the universe, and a messenger of Allah has come in the middle and claims that all this is due to the will of a creature born of his sick mind, whose name is Allah, and so much It is an ignorant person who writes his error of vision in such a way that the sun follows the moon and rests in a place where only Allah knows. Muslims believe that the day will come when the sun will rise from the west, because this is also the will of Allah!

In 54-1, it says "the hour came near, and the moon split the sky split". So, the moon was split in half, and if this is true, it will also undergo changes due to the gravity of the moon of the earth, which should have been felt in the world, but nowhere in the world, from China to the Byzantine Empire, in this time frame, no evidence exists to prove this statement. Did Allah know that the world is not only in Mecca, but also China, Australia, and the America? Did he know that the North and South poles are also on the same Earth? The Qur'an does not mention other planets in the solar system, let alone answer these questions: How many types of stars are there in the universe? What are supernovas? Where do cosmic rays come from and what is their nature? The Universe is expanding, the planets and the Sun have a complex internal structure? And... The Qur'an only says what an uneducated eye senses with the error of their vision, and this is where one can clearly see a fraudster behind Islam.

In the cosmology of the Qur'an, the heavens and the earth have seven layers. Invisible pillars hold up the sky. Stars are lights on the sky (ceiling) for the beauty of the night. The moon emits light from itself. The earth is flat. The universe is only in Mecca and its surroundings.

Islam and Bioscience

According to Muslims, the Qur'an is the word of Allah and all the knowledge there is embedded in it. Is it possible to see in this book how knowledge has been obtained? Do we have an example in history where a quote from the Qur'an is the beginning of understanding how things work, creation, the human body, diseases and ways of dealing with them, and why and why we live in this world, and where we come from, and many other questions? Well, this is how the Qur'an answers such questions: Al-Ma'idah 102: "A people before you asked such questions, then they become unbelievers because of it".

The method of Qur'anic research is found in the following verse: 2-117: "He is the Creator of the heavens and the earth, and when He decrees the existence of something, He says: 'Be!' And it becomes available instantly". And in 2-118 it says: "The ignorant people said, 'Why does not Allah speak to us?' And does He not send down to Us a sign? Thus, did those before them speak, their hearts and their minds were alike, but We have made clear the signs for those who have certain."

One of the foundations of religion, and especially Islam, is miracles and superstitions, and when it comes to miracles, there is no room for science, and "Allah gives life to dead people and animals" as in 2-259. Allah says in 23-38 that "He has created ears and eyes and hearts" for what? Then He gives a complaining reply, "But you give little thanks to Him", which means that you should thank Allah instead of asking question why!

In 64-15 "And when they said to the Messenger of Allah "When Our verses are recited to them, they say, 'These are the fables of the ancients.'". Then the Qur'an continues (64-16) "soon we put a hot sword on their nose". In this way, the Qur'an closes any door for questioning, research, and knowledge.

How do birds fly? In recent years, scientists and researchers have discovered valuable findings. However here is the Qur'anic answer to how birds fly: 67-19: " Do they not observe the birds above them, spreading their wings and folding them? None, except the Allah holds them". So the Qur'anic answer to how birds fly is "because Allah wills". If the Messenger of Allah had seen an airplane flying over him in his time, would Allah still have said to him in a verse, "The airplane flies because Allah keeps it in the sky with its wings spread? and He is all-powerful"? So what is the role of man in designing and building airplanes?

In the creation of Allah, it says 86-5 and 7: " Let the human reflect of what he is created. He was created from ejaculated water. that issues from between the loins and the ribs." This is again an insult to people's intelligence, and especially scientists, that "ejaculated water" comes from the bones of the human chest!

When Muslims do Research: All the Answers Are in the Qur'an

There were no Islamic Scientists: They Were All Anti-Islam

Knowledge is obtained from questioning and curiosity, which Islam does not permit as in the Qur'an, 5:102, and those who ask are infidels and unbelievers and they should be killed according to 9:5. Therefore, a scientist who is Muslim or the Muslim who is a scientist is not a very funny joke. If knowledge grows in a land occupied by Muslims, it is despite Islam, it is due to the nature of curiosity of human but Islam cuts the head of whom is full of questions because it hates questions. When a scientist points his questioning to Islam, Muslims become angry, calling them atheist and unbelievers, and applying the Qur'anic commands "kill infidels".

During the golden age of Islam, in which great scientists appeared, instead of encouraging them, let them teach others or apply their knowledge, Muslims persecuted them, killed them and stopped the society to spread knowledge and wisdom. For example, Razi was an Iranian scientist born in 865 AD in Ray (near today Tehran) during the Samanid period, who was trying to revive the rituals of the magnificent pre-Islamic era. Today, Muslims claim Razi was an Islamic scientist (who discovered alcohol). Zakaria al-Razi, in addition to mastering the science of chemistry and medicine, has written books against religions, prophethood, and especially Islam, such as "Violation of Religions and Miracles of the Prophets", which Muslims refer to as Razi's blasphemy. Razi calls religions the root of wars and prophets deceitful or insane. Razi denounces miracles because they disrupt the laws of nature. Razi believed that human beings are equal, and that prophecy is in its nature the superiority of some that cannot be accepted, because if God was able to give one person an amazing ability, He could give it to everyone. Razi also criticized the Qur'an and considered it useless with its inconsistent structure and incomplete propositions that have no benefit for the people and do not cure the pain or solve a problem. During Razi's lifetime, he was called an "atheist". Muslims brought Razi to the Abbasid Caliph and slapped his book on his head so hard that he became blind for the rest of his life!

Islamists also claim Avesina (980-1030 AD) an "Islamic" scientist. In his philosophical book Shifa, Avesina criticizes the beliefs of religious people and rejects the miracles of the prophets and does not accept Hell and Heaven. Regarding the creation of the world, he says: "If we imagine that God has decided to create the world for a moment, it is obligatory to imagine that He has done an obligatory thing before it, and it becomes more obligatory, and before that obligatory action, a more obligatory, more obligatory, and more obligatory work, and if we continue this thread, we will reach infinity, and since infinity is a nonsensical thing in logic, then the creation of the world is also a nonsensical thing ...". The Muslim clerics of that time called Ibn Sina an atheist, and his books were burned by the order of the Caliph al-Munajid Billah.

This is why knowledge and technology can never grow in Islamic-stricken lands, and scientists from Muslim countries leave their homelands.

Muslims practice sodomy

Seven hundred years ago, Obaid Zakani (1300-1370 AD) wrote in his treatise Delgosha: "A hansom Christian child wanted to convert to Islam. Muslim mullah ordered to circumcise him. When night came, he sodomized him. In the morning, the father asked his son, "How did you find Muslims?". The boy said, "They are strange people. They cut penis during the day and tear the ass at night."

The fact that Muslims practice sodomy is not because they deviate from Islamic orders. The Qur'an speaks of the people of Lot in several parts in which it calls sodomy an evil act (27-54), which has incurred the wrath of Allah. On the other hand, in the Qur'an itself, same-sex ties are also proposed. In 52-24, the Qur'an speaks of a boy "like a pearl in a shell" which is for the sexual agents of Paradise, but it is not said whether these boys are for women or men, but when the Qur'an speaks of a boy (a teenager), he has no intention other than homosexuality for men.

In Nahj al-Balaghah, Ali ibn Abi Talib writes in his sermon 192 about his sexual relationship with the Prophet: "You consider my position in a close relationship with the Prophet in a special position, the Prophet used to sit me in his room, he used to hold me in his arms when I was a child, he used to sleep in his bed, his body was attached to my body, and so on. He smelled his pure smell to me, and sometimes he put a morsel of food in my mouth, and he never found any lie in my speech, nor did he find any mistake in my actions." Therefore, according to the first Imam of the Shiites, the Prophet and himself were homosexuals.

The book "The Kite Runner" by Afghan writer Khalid Hussain talks about the Taliban's sodomy. In the seminaries, sodomy is also one of the characteristics of the mullahs, who themselves are the preachers of the Shiite sect of Islam. Homosexuality is also very widespread among Shiite student of religiouun. Another example can be read from the book "The Heir of Malek Kian" written by Hamid Khajeh Nasiri about Ruhollah Khomeini, who was repeatedly raped by a mullah named Mullah Ramadan as a child. According to Ruhollah Khomeini's brother, "He had laid my brother naked on the mattress, and he himself had fallen on top of him, going up and down, and making a sound that was not unlike the tired dogs of the herd that they used to make when chasing the sheep." Navab Safavi, a Muslim clergy terrorist who murdered the historian Ahmad Kasravi (1946), asks that he spend the last week before his execution in a prison cage with one of his co-religionists, who were sodomizing each other at the time, and all the week's video of the two was captured by prison authorities. There are also sayings about Ali Khamenei (the current dictator in Iran) that he offered himself to men in the Mansouri bath in Mashhad as a child. In the Ottoman Empire, Sultan Mehmed the Conqueror (the conqueror of Constantinople) had sodomy with Radoo Dracula. Radoo was the younger brother of Vlad, who was Mehmed's playmate as a child.<sup>16</sup>

<sup>16</sup>Vlad Dracula rebelled against the Ottoman Sultan later and had bloody wars with him. He would stick wooden skewers in Ottoman soldiers and Muslim people, plant them in the ground, and leave them alone to die. Vlad is a hero to the people of Eastern Europe because he was a barrier against Ottoman Muslim expansionism. There is a lot of lots of fictions that was made of Dracula for being blood thirsty.

In another place, 'Ubayd Zakani says, "A preacher in Kashan said on the pulpit that on the Day of Judgment, the pool of Kawthar would be in the hands of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali and give its water to someone whose ass was clean. Someone stood up and said, let him put it in a jar and eat it himself.".

In Spain, under occupation by Muslims, when it was called Andalusia, its Muslim governor, Mansur, cut off the head of a thirteen-year-old slave who had rejected the offer of sodomy with him.

Wherever there is a Muslim, there is sodomy, and this has been prevalent since the beginning of Islam. Just as the Prophet inserted his penis into the back of Ali Abi Talib like a biological USB in order to enter "divine inspirations" into him, today in the seminaries, professor to student, student to other student, and then to other Muslims, all still follow the same tradition of the Messenger of God. Don't tell Intel (Intel is the innovative USB) about the biological method of transferring data!

Islam ruined art

Many well-known musicians and artists can be named: Michelangelo (1457 AD) painted beautiful paintings on the ceiling of the Florence church in Italy and with his characteristic of patience, he created sculptures, each of which is admired by the viewers. One of these paintings is the creation of man, and one of his famous figures is the statue of David. The Austrian musician Amadeus Mozart (1756 AD) composed the most beautiful music called the classical, which keeps being more pleasant the more one listen to them. None of these tunes or paintings have created corruption in the earth and have not harmed anyone. Many cultures and countries in the world have well-known artists. Dancing, music, painting, and sculpting are in human nature. Whether a young child comes to dance when he hears music or draws when he holds a pencil. Early humans also portrayed livestock in their caves, and this was a way of connecting and messaging with others. In Egypt at the time of the Pharaoh, the shapes were their alphabets.

In Islamic countries, however, art, painting, music, body sculpting, and dancing are "haram". Do you know of any famous artist in Islamic countries who is on par with European, Chinese, and Indian artists?

Drawings of men or animal in the Islamic world were never bought because they were considered "corruption on earth" and sin. Islam cannot cope with beauty, freedom, and art. It is not possible to see any work of art or a painting in the houses of a Muslim, nor can such motifs be seen in mosques, and the reason for this is Islam. There is a hadith (Sahih al-Bukhari: P.O. Box 3:59:338) that the angels do not go to houses where there are dogs or pictures. In another hadith (P.O. Box 7:72:836), Aisha says: "I would not leave anything in which there was a picture or a cross because the Messenger of Allah would destroy them." Also, P.O. Box 7:72:843: "Those who receive the worst punishment from Allah are the painters", even if you want to draw from the Qur'anic sayings, you must be punished in the eyes of Allah. Any photograph or painting that depicts a horse, dog, human, or child is forbidden in Islam. One must ask Muslim believers how a painting of an animal corrupts. Muslims have written a lot about the fact that painting is forbidden and there are even fatwas about it. Nowadays, taking photos is one of the necessities of society, and the ID card must have a picture, and Muslims cannot fulfill their Sharia. If there is a painting or a picture in your house and the Messenger of Allah comes to that house, he will tear up all the pictures. Are the first humans who painted animals on the walls of caves in hell? Or should a child who paints have to go to hell? Michelangelo, Da Vinci, Rembrandt, Picasso, etc. Are they all in hell because they have painted?

Who is not affected by music, who rejoices and laughs at it, who is saddened and weeps, who dances, who gets drunk or who is afraid? Music is like a friend to us, music is an art as old as a person. Even children react to music, dance to it, and their faces become smiling. From the point of view of knowledge, music is rhythmic and patterned, and human loves patterns, and the love for music lies in our nature. Every society has its own music, and even in Africa, tribes exchange messages with other tribes by playing music on tree stumps, which was one of the first methods of long-distance and wireless messaging. However, music is incompatible with the evil sect of Islam and is forbidden. In other religions, there are frameworks for music, but they are not in any way inhibited, and they have indeed been very diligent in spreading it. For example, one of the great artists in Germany, John Sebastian Bach, composed beautiful music with piano and organ for the church, which still has many listeners. This kind of music never gets old.

Dancing is like music in human nature, but it is also forbidden in Islam! Some Muslims say that music that is played for Allah is permissible or if it is not used in the music of its instruments. The origin of this Islamic command is from this hadith, S.B 5590: "There will be a group of my Ummah who will make adultery lawful, and the wearing of silk cloth, wine, and musical instruments. And a group will descend on the slopes of a mountain, and the shepherds will bring their flocks in the evening, and a needy person will come to them to meet their needs, and they will say to him, "Come to us tomorrow." Allah will destroy them by night, and He will make the mountain fall on their heads, and He will make the rest apes and pigs until the Day of Resurrection." In this hadith, in addition to three things that we know are forbidden in Islam: wine, wearing silk, and adultery, the Prophet also adds musical instruments. Some branches of the Islamic sect, such as dervishes or Sufis, play music with a religious hat and dancing is also part of their religion, they should be told that they ignore what the Prophet said. Hadith 5590 goes on to say that such people will have mountains destroyed on their heads and turned into apes and pigs. Which musician or dancer has ever become an ape or a pig? Bach? Bahá'u'lláh? Jennifer Lopez?

In some Islamic countries, such as Turkey, Pakistan, Indonesia, and Tunisia, where there are signs of Sufism, female singers are also seen, but with clothes within Islamic frameworks. In many Islamic countries, dancing is considered illegal and suppressed, and women's dancing is not acceptable in any way. All of this is based on verses from the Qur'an in which music is considered impermissible. In 31-6 it is stated: "And among the people is he who invents idle and false speech (such as false tales and lustful fables that corrupt morals and songs of musical instruments) by any means in order to mislead (mankind) into ignorance of the way of Allah, and to make a mockery of the verses of the Qur'an. They will be punished with humiliation." In Surah 17-64: " Rouse with your voice whoever you are able from among them. Rally against them your cavalry and those on foot. Share their wealth and children with them and promise them. ' But Satan promises them nothing except delusion." The Prophet said: "Whoever listens to a woman's singing, hot lead will be poured into his/her ears on the Day of Resurrection." Singing that is within Islamic frameworks is permissible in Islam, but still in narrow Islamic frameworks!

Islam is incompatible with human nature, and the way to get rid of it is not to reinterpret Islamic commandments, but to return to humanity and freedom, and to throw away Islam and all that is Islamic. The Messenger of Allah and Allah Himself are mentally ill who are only suitable for them in the garbage dump, although Islam also pollutes the garbage.

Islam ruined the clergy

The Zoroastrian clergy were, just like modern days, scientists who gathered their finding by experimentation. They wrote Avesta which was not a religious book but a science Encyclopedia of its time. It is said that Alexander, after he destroyed the Persepolis, stole Avesta from the Persians, and sent them on hundreds of camels to Greece. It is said that what is now called Greek knowledge was really based on the Avesta. Although the Encyclopedia of the Avesta was rewritten, this time it was destroyed by Arab Muslims. The Zoroastrian monks themselves were scientists who are also called Magh, and Zoroaster Pir Moghan is also known as Pir Moghan, about whom Hafez's poems are told. This Magi has been translated into European languages as magic, which we have translated as magic. Indeed, knowledge gives humans abilities such as magicians, which are very common in technological advances today.

Although the Christian Church itself was one of the causes of backwardness in the West and incompatible with science, it had many clergies who were among the pioneers of knowledge and whose names still shine. The number of these scientific clergies reaches hundreds, each the founder of scientific subject, and a few examples are: Gregor Mendel, the science of genetics, Copernicus, the astronomer, Louis Brunette, the botanist, Karl Kehrle, the bee science, Lumaître, the cosmologist from whom the Big Bang theory is, and there is an impressive and long list of other spiritual scientists that can be found by a simple search on the Internet<sup>17</sup>. Among the female priests, there have been many scientists, and that too has a long list<sup>18</sup>, and one example of this is Maria Gaetana Anisi, who wrote the first book of calculus in 1760. Among the Christian priests, there have been many artists, painters, sculptures, and musicians. Christian clergies were involved in the formation of church music and the manufacture of musical instruments such as the organ, and they were also pioneers in helping the poor and orphans and in organizing the registry of births.

Throughout the history of Islam, there are no Muslim clerics who was a scientist nor an artist. Islamic clergy that has not even played a role in the advancement of knowledge, art, or social affairs. The only role that the Islamic clergy has played throughout history has been to protect themselves keep people illiterate and ignorant since the more they know the more they realize the evil nature of the Islamic sect. This is why Muslim mullahs are what they are, whether by lies and superstitions, or by suppression and killing, so that the people do not become aware and are always left in dark and stay ignorant. That is why the evil sect of Islam is the real reason for the backwardness of Islamic countries. It's amazing why Muslims are still not ashamed of their disastrous history of backwardness! According to Ferdowsi (1000AD), Muslims are deprived of knowledge and shame. And Iraj Mirza (1926 AD) says: "The cloak of mullahs is now the flag of ignorance, the flag of corruption and ignorance, hidden under it."

Some Muslims mention the name of an Islamic/Shiite "philosopher" Mulla Sadra. He himself was the object of the wrath of other clerics and is known for his theory of "substantial motion", which is that objects behave in a way that is in their essence. For example, if you drop a stone, it will fall to the ground, because in its essence and in the essence of the stone, it will fall to the ground. In physics, we know that a rock falls to the ground because there is a gravitational force between both objects, and it tells us its exact magnitude also. With the knowledge of physics, we know that the law of gravity is the same throughout the universe and galaxies, and we have been able to predict the motion of planets and stars with great precision. The design and construction of structures or machines have also matured with the knowledge of physics. Mulla Sadra's theory of "substantial motion", in simpler terms, is that the stone falls to the ground because it wants to! Mulla Sadra and his theory of substantial motion have no place in the world of philosophy, in which many thoughts from the time of Aristotle to the present day are studied with precision. Only in Iran there are a few who speak of this Mullah's thoughts in the background of a murmur that neither they themselves nor the listener know what they are saying.

The Islamic clergy has aroused the aggression of many ancient elders, all of whom say about the hypocrisy and debauchery of this sect. Hafez (1300AD) says

They closed the door of the tavern, O God, do not like it, as it opens the door to deception and hypocrisy.

Again, Iraj Mirza says that backwardness is from the cloak of mullahs itself or Islam

Cholera and cloak are like each other, they are of the same essence in creation.

The plague of ignorance is under the cloak that is itself the source of pain and suffering

What was supposed to be a base and a source of knowledge and good character from the clergy was destroyed by the clerical Muslims.

A Muslim cleric is like a cockroach

Islam ruined Nigeria

With a population of 232 million, Nigeria is the largest country in Africa, with 110 million Muslims, the largest number in Africa, who are expanding by invading the Christian south. The most Muslim countries are Pakistan, India, Bangladesh and Indonesia with 96%, 14%, 90% and 87% of their population, respectively, which is two-thirds of the world's Muslims. In Nigeria, no religion considers itself a majority, and with 96 million Christians, it ranks sixth in the number of Christians in the world, and with 103 million Muslims, it is the fifth largest country among Muslim countries. Nigeria is worth exploring from the perspective of how these two disparate religious groups living in the same country are measured in civic indicators. Although this country is neither Islamic nor Christian, the words Sharia are mentioned 73 times in its constitution, Islam 28 times, Supreme Justice 54 times, Muslim 10 times, but there is no word about Christ or Christianity or the Church in it. Muslims live in the north and Christians in southern Nigeria, although there is also a mixture among them, and Muslim-Christian marriage is also very common, and religious precepts are applied to Muslims in the north. There is no unity between these religious groups, and both compete for political positions. Muslims want to apply the commandments of Sharia law in the south as well, which has become a source of resentment for Christians, and the conflicts in the referendums have taken on a religious tone. The Boko Haram terrorist sect, known as the Nigerian Taliban, has been in the north of the country since 2009 and wants to enforce strict Sharia law throughout the country through killings, and is a daily threat to other peoples and religions.

How Islam came to Nigeria and North Africa, as always, began with spreading the word, and when the people did not accept it, it was the sword of the Muslims that came to their necks to accept Islam. It is amazing that for the Arabs, black skin is the origin of inferiority. The Messenger of Allah himself had a white skin (Sahih al-Bukhari) and the Muslim Arabs considered black skin as a sign of Allah's heavenly calamity, an example of which is in 39-60 of the Qur'an: "And on the Day of Resurrection you will see those who fabricate lies against Allah with their faces blackened". In addition, the Arabs considered blacks to be irrational and their only use would be for slavery, so they sent many black boys to slavery after being eunuchs and their daughters to slave trades. Muslims considered blacks to be idolaters, and their murder (as everywhere else) was so common that some converted to Islam to escape death. The children of these new Muslims also forcibly kept their children in this sect, and generation after generation of Muslims blindly lived and became accustomed to the pathological behavior of Islam. After several generations, the Muslims become illiterate, uninformed, superstitious, lazy, and destitute people, and it is here that powerful invaders from Europe set foot in these lands, colonizing the people, and taking for themselves their valuable resources, of which they were unaware. Thus, Nigeria was under British colonialism for a century from 1861 to 1960.

The only Muslims in the world who were sympathetic to al-Qaeda terrorists were Nigerian Muslims. Muslims also sympathized with and supported other Muslim terrorist organizations such as Hamas and Hezbollah. Today, there is a kind of crusade going on in Nigeria, in which Muslims are constantly attacking Christian churches, massacring them, destroying their churches, and building mosques in their ruins. In 2014, Boko Haram terrorists stormed the towns of Gamburo and Angala, killing 310 civilians in 12 hours, leaving the city in ruins. Boko Haram's terrorist behavior has killed 40,000 people and displaced two million, to the point that in 2010, Muammar Gaddafi proposed the disintegration of the country, like India and Pakistan, to end the religious killings.

Most politicians in Nigeria are Muslim, and the birth rate of Muslims is higher than that of Christians, and this increase is very worrying.

Islam ruined Iran

From the ideal of "the right path is one and that is the way of truth" and "good thoughts, good words, good behaviors", superpeoples such as Cyrus, Darius, and many other kings emerged during the Achaemenid era, who established a vast and advanced superpower that stretched from the borders of China to Europe and Africa. Zoroaster's sayings make hearts happy and remove rust from the heart and is full of wisdom. Zoroastrian Iran was the liberator of suffering peoples, and the jewel of Iran was envy of the inferior. Ahriman faced Muslims tried several times, with all their might, to destroy and plunder this glorious land. The kings of Iran crushed these Arab invasions. Until during the reign of Yazdgerd III, for whatever reason, they were able to break the barrier of the Iranian army and by killing, plundering, and transgressing, they inflicted their Islam on the people with the sword. Following the invasion of the inferior Muslims, bloody conflicts between the Iranians and the Arabs lasted for two centuries. The Arabs destroyed everything they saw as splendor and beauty, or knowledge and culture. They killed and burned so much that many libraries, people's knowledge, and arts were destroyed forever. The people who survived were thugs who had become the ears of these newcomers and themselves played a role in the spread of Islam. They wrote grammar for the Arabs and made their names Arabic. Some even considered themselves Arab slaves or had names like children Gholam-Ali, which means Ali can sodomize him from the Qur'an's 52-24. Some of these thugs wrapped a cloth on their heads and gave themselves the title of "Ayatollah (sign of Allah)", while other thugs took up swords and continue to protect this evil sect.

Many Iranians, such as Abu Muslim Khorasani, Babak Khorramdin, and others, inflicted heavy damage on the Arabs, which also led to the transformation of their caliphates and made them very weak, and the result was the expulsion of the Arabs from Iran after two centuries.

From the very beginning of the bloody entry of Islam into Iran, the territorial integrity from China to Europe was damaged. The weakening of Iran left the way open for the Mongols. The Mongols are very famous for their crimes, but they could never be a substitute for criminality in comparison with the Arabs, and moreover, the Mongols did not bring with them another inferior religion, if it were, we would have to pray for Genghis Khan today! However, the same Mongols also became Muslims after a few generations and became more brutal than before, which descended on the Indians and killed millions of people there, which paved the way for the colonization of India by the Europeans, especially the British.

Although the Muslim Arabs had been expelled from Iran, the virus of Islam remained. The Safavid dynasty ruled in the shadow of Islam, in other words, Islam was a shadow government that was gradually expanding its sectarian network in Iran. Some people think that they were British spies, but it can also be said that these were thugs who were dressed as mullahs with a cloth on their heads, and their occupation was to plunder people and rape their honor, and sodomy and homosexuality is one of their characteristics. The main task of this sect was to keep the people backward. The only schools in which children were educated were the schools and the teaching of Arabic and the Qur'an were its textbooks. At the same time, great artists, philosophers, and scientists emerged in Europe, some of whom were the clergy of the churches themselves, and the progress of Europe and the regression of Iran and other Islamic-stricken countries became more rapid.

The envy and hatred of the inferior Muslims for the splendor and beauty of Iran has been an obstacle to any progress in Iran since long after Islam. Muslims have always tried to humiliate Iran and Iranians. Under shadow Islamic rules, Iran became weaker and weaker until during the Qajar era, when the Islamic shadow government created a nation of illiterate and ignorant people, which paved way for the British to infiltrate the government and took control of Iran's trade. The British were aware of the phenomenon of Islam from the very beginning and used it intelligently for their own profitability.

During Khomeini's time, this Shiite Islam came out of the shadows and took over the reins of the country, and they used their grudges of previous centuries to destroy Iran as much as possible. Millions of educated Iranians, who are the country's most precious asset, have left their homeland, and the most inferior and unworthy thugs became managers, ministers, and law makers. Technologies and factories were destroyed, the environment was destroyed, that left a poor and miserable people who are tortured or killed every time when they raise their voice in opposition. In this way, Muslims in Iran achieved their long-standing dream, a ruined Iran.

Islam ruined the beautiful Zoroastrian religion

More than a thousand years before Christ, a free man appears in the east of Iran and spreads the mantra: good thoughts, good words, good deeds. The other is that there is one way in the world and that is the path of truth. Ahura Mazda is the god of this religion, whose literal meaning is existential (Ahura) and great knowledge (Maz = Great and Da = Knowledge). The god of Zoroaster is the one who created the universe and life and is full of knowledge. Ahura Mazda of Zoroaster does not speak or send revelation. The God of Zoroaster neither loves nor hatred, these are the characters of man, not of God, the God of Zoroaster is pure wisdom, he has neither love nor hatred, what he is wisdom and giving. Zoroaster does not believe in daily prayers, he believes in thoughts, words and good deeds, and he who adorns himself with these three virtues does not need prayers or fasting.

Some of Zoroaster's teachings are as follows:

A happy person is one who provides the happiness of others.

Our heaven and hell are in this world and are in our own hands. Good is the answer to good, and evil is the punishment of evil. The result of our life is the result of our actions.

The duty of every human being in his life is hard work, prosperity and progress in the world

God has created this beautiful world for the happiness of man in the good path

Man will achieve whatever he wants. Man's thought is the builder of his life.

God is infinite and has no place and timeless, but He is small as you can understand.

The Iranian and Zoroastrian calendars are a glimpse of the beauty of this religion. Each year has twelve months, each month has thirty days, each day of which was uniquely named (today's seven days of the week is from Jewish calendar). The days whose names were the same as the month were celebrated, like the sixteenth day of each month, is called Mehregan, and in the month of Mehr, this day is the festival of Mehregan. For the remaining five days of the year, fires were lit and year-end fire celebrations were held. These five days were shortened by the sword of the Arab Muslims to one day on Wednesday, and this is what is called the Wednesday-suri (fire celebration) today, when people break their old belongings and replace them with new and make fire.

The Zoroastrian clergies are not like the clergy of the Abrahamic religions, their profession was not to pray and be parasites in society. They are called Magi, and they were scientists. Magi is the root of the word "magic" in European languages, and today we know that knowledge is a kind of magic itself. The Avesta, the book of Zoroastrians, was written from the collection of knowledge of the time in several volumes and they were indeed an encyclopedia that included geology, biology, geography, and many others. The Avesta cannot be considered on a par with the books of the Torah, the Bible or the Qur'an because these are not books of knowledge and are only the fantasies of those who wanted to build a religion for any reason.

Zoroastrians believe in Ashe which means the just structure of the universe in such a way that every action has a reaction and every good or bad has its reward or punishment.

Most Iranians in this vast land, from China to Europe, followed Zoroastrianism for less than two thousand years, and Iran at those era was a shining gem in the world in progress in knowledge and wealth, and the people of other countries of the world had extensive trades with Iran, and a large part of the Silk Road passed through Iran. At this time, the libraries were full of books, the agricultural lands were full of crops, cities were linked with royal roads, and Iran was full of wealth.

Many Zoroastrians, numbering in the tens of millions, were massacred by Arab Muslims, and their assets were plundered as spoils by the Muslims, leaving nothing but a desert-like ruin.

Some Zoroastrians fled to India, whom Hindus call Parsis. Parsis have been the source of significant progress in India. One example is Jamshid Tata, who is the founder of steel technology, nuclear energy, and a research organization called the Tata Institute, where scientists from all over India and the world conduct research in modern science. The Zoroastrian Parsis, with a much smaller number than the Indians, who number more than a billion, have become a source of pride for the country, and Indians smile when they are asked about the Parsis.

Zoroastrianism is undoubtedly a suitable option for Iranians who are becoming more and more aware of the evil of the mafia sect of Islam, and it is everyone's return to Zoroastrianism.

Good Thought, Good Deeds, Good Words

Islam tore Iran apart

Before Islam, the land of Iran was extensive from the east to China and from the west to Europe. It reached the borders of Russia from the north and Africa from the south, encompassing Egypt. This geographical area remained in comfort and like a shining gem for more than 1,500 years and was reduced or enlarged by the invasions and wars of the Turks from the east and the Greeks from the west. Today, if you travel to the countries that were in the ancient civilization of Iran, you will see that their people are very similar to the Iranians of today's Iran from a cultural and linguistic point of view, which is a sign of their unity in the past.

The disaster of the evil sect of Islam came upon Iran and the Iranians, and many were massacred and they plundered this shining gem. Islam turned the world of its day to night, and then, conflicts between Iranians and Muslim Arabs began. With the uprising of Abu Muslim Khorasani, Babak Khorramdin, and Maziar, many of these Arab Muslims were killed, and eventually Arabs could not survive in Iran, but they had already injected their poison (Islam) into the wounded soul of Iranshahr. The first people who were killed by Arab Muslims after their infiltration into Iran were Zoroastrian Magis to destroy Zoroastrianism, and then, anyone who had knowledge or artist was killed, to destroy any pre-Islamic culture and memory (two centuries of silence by Zarrinkoub).

They who stayed alive were thugs and among them some called themselves Ayatollah (sign of Allah) and covered their head with fabrics, and others took up the sword to protect the former. They took life of "infidels" and pursued the path of the evil Arab Muslims. These Ayatollahs were not in harmony with each other until the Safavid dynasty came to the power and introduced a sect of Islam, Shiite, in Iran, and forced people to accept it. One possible reason might be to organize to counter the expansionism of the Ottoman Muslim Empire. The Safavid kings were truly under the illusion of the lies of Islam and numerous superstitions invented by Shiite sect. They invented a character for Ali ibn Abitalib and introduced him to the Iranians like Rostam Dastan from Ferdowsi Epic stories. The Safavid kings called themselves Ali's dog and were proud of it. They even engraved "Kalb Ali" (or Ali's dog) on their swords, which can be seen in museums today. At first, the Safavids made great efforts to unify Iran, but the later kings became more and more believers in Shiite superstition and brought people from Lebanon to Iran who were the same mullahs today. From the very beginning, these mullahs were not only alien to Iran and Iranians but also hated them. The reason for this aversion can be traced to the lack of their intelligence, being illiterate, and backward compared with superior intelligence of Iranians. To hide their roots, these mullahs choose their name as Iranian cities in which they lived, such as Ayatollah Boroujerdi, Ayatollah Khomeini, Ayatollah Khamenei, Ayatollah Sistani, Ayatollah Gilani, Ayatollah Jannati, Ayatollah Taleghani, Ayatollah Vaez Tabasi, Ayatollah Ardabili, Ayatollah Tehrani, etc. We even have Ayatollah Shahristani (that means Ayatollah province!).

These Ayatollahs made homes in every corner of Iran in every city and village, and they were like the watchdogs of the mullahs' mafia network, as a barrier to the literacy, awareness, and progress of the people. They destroyed primary schools and practically any schools and were hostile to any progress. They were supported by the kings of their time, only because of their Islamic beliefs and because they truly believed that this mullah was the representative of Allah.

During the reign of Reza Shah, it became clear that many of these mullahs had not even been circumcised which means they had no faith in Islam. They were thugs in clergy in clownish mullah dresses and cloaks, who found ignorant people whom they could take advantage of.

Since the Safavid era, the Europeans put their feet to the East and took India under its colonial control, another country that was no longer able to fight the British due to the successive damages done by Islam. Russia had also built an empire for itself at this time, and with its wars with Iran, it separated the lands of the Caucasus, Georgia, Armenia, and Azerbaijan! Then the eastern lands of the Caspian Sea, Turkmenistan, Samarkand and Bukhara fell into the hands of the Russians. In the meantime, the mullahs eliminated every experienced army commander who showed brilliance in wars in their mafia manner. Successive defeats in wars or in political confrontations with foreign governments and the subsequent destruction of Iran further eroded the people's pride, and the mullahs looked at all these calamities that befell the Iranian people and laughed at them in their hearts because they wanted nothing else. The British also had influence in Iran, and with the weakness and illiteracy of the Qajar kings and the illiteracy of the people, they could easily plunder whatever they wanted for themselves. The British found oil in Iran and extracted it themselves without obtaining a license from the Iranian government.

The mullahs' mafia network was itself a shadow government, and they incorporated their views into the policies of the governments of the country or the constitution. With the calamities that these mullahs inflicted on the people of Iran and the destruction of the infrastructure of this beautiful country, there was little left of the people, and in the First World War and famine, half of the population of Iran, or nine million Iranians, died of hunger. If you look at the photos of people during the Qajar era, you will be very surprised whether these miserable people were really our ancestors. It is not so difficult to see that what has happened to us is all rooted in Islam, and this is how Islam tore Iran apart.

Islam destroyed India

After plundering Iran, killing and destroying Iranians to the limit of their ability, and when from Iran was nothing left but ruins, Arab Muslims following the Prophet path and invaded Iran's eastern neighbor, India. India, a country of unparalleled beauty, immense capital, and cultures of all colors, was the perfect prey for the savage plunderers of Arab Muslims. The first Muslim invasion of India took place in 712 AD under the command of Muhammad ibn Qasim, in which they were victorious, and after that, they killed and plundered many Indians, enslaved women, and enslaved children to Arab markets. Baba Raul, one of the kings of India, together with other kings in the battle of Rajasthan, defeated the army of 60,000 Arabs in such a way that the Arabs did not dare to invade India for hundreds of years. The name of the Pakistani city of Rawalpindi is in honor of this nobleman.

Centuries passed and Muslims continued to invade India, and what they did to the Indians is horrible. For example, the Afghan ruler Mahmud al-Ghazni invaded India seventeen times between 1001 and 1026 CE. The book "Yamini History," written by his secretary, documents several episodes of his bloody campaigns: "The blood of the infidels flowed so much (in the Indian city of Sanasar) that the river, despite its purity, changed color. And the people were not able to drink it... The infidels left the castle and tried to cross the foamy river... But many of them were killed, captured, or drowned... Nearly 50,000 people were killed." The Iranian historian Wasaf writes in his book "Ta'zi al-Amsar wa Tajriyat al-Asar": "When Alaeddin Khalji (an Afghan of Turkic origin and the second ruler of the Khalji dynasty in India 1295-1316 AD) He captured the city, at the head of the Bay of Kumbay, killed adult Hindu men for the glory of Islam, flowed streams of blood, sent women home with all their gold and silver and jewels. And made about twenty thousand Hindu maidens his private slaves." Or this one: "It was a wonderful show! This method of killing and looting was carried out on a daily basis. At night, the screams of the captive women who were raped deafened the ears of the people... From all those severed heads, pillars were made, and the captive men were brought in to grind corn , and then their heads were cut off. These crimes continued until the city of Agra, and no part of the country was spared." The Indian historian Professor K.S. Lal estimates that the Hindu population in India declined by 80 million between 1000 and 1525 AD, which is unprecedented in the history of the world. The massacre of millions of people took place during several centuries of Arab, Afghan, Turkic, and Mughal rule in India. Indians, with a laudable background such as chess innovation, advanced mathematics, and familiarity with the number zero, which is the basis of today's 1-10 counting, were now being slaughtered under the sword of the Muslims. Muslims burned the libraries of India with all the knowledge accumulated from centuries ago. They say that libraries burned for a full month! As always, Muslims killed men and took women into concubines or slaves and plundered their property. Some Indians converted to Islam for their lives. Muslims were destroying Indian places of worship. The Indians' pleas were of no avail in preventing them from destroying their places of worship. In the eyes of the Muslims, the Indians were infidels, and the duty of the Muslims is to kill the infidels (9-5). The profound damage that Muslims inflicted on Indians and on India for hundreds of years made it so powerless that the Europeans who were looking for wealth all over the world, took this great country under their rule. India became a colony of a small European country, England, with a population of less than 10 million, and in the end of this colonization, India became one of the poorest countries in the world. After the end of British colonialism, India was torn apart and its Muslim parts were separated from it, which were called Pakistan and Bangladesh. One outcome of English colonization of India apart from sucking the what was left of India, was to free Indians from Muslims.

Today, India has become the fifth most powerful country in the world by moving away from Islam and is rapidly climbing the steps of knowledge and technology progress and has made successful trips to the moon, while Pakistan and Muslim Bangladesh are still among the most backward and poorest countries.

Under Muslims invasions over 80 million Indians were killed from 1000-1500 AD

Islam caused the Crusades

The nature of Islamist expansionism, sooner or later results in wars. Most of these confrontations ended in their favor with more force and their criminal temperament, but this is not permanent and force has limits.

In Christian beliefs, Jerusalem is the place where Jesus Christ was crucified, buried and resurrected, and it has a lot of merit for Christians, and they are attached to this city. Many of its citizens were Christians, and in the 4th century AD, the Roman Emperor Constantine ordered the construction of a large temple where Christ was buried, the original cross that Christ was on it was exhumed, and its broken pieces were assembled and placed on its dome, which is called the "Church of the Holy sepulcher". This temple and its cross were highly revered by Christians.

The Arabs who were integrated into Islam took Jerusalem from the Romans in 637 AD. After that, the persecution of Christians and the killing and destruction of their temples and churches began. There are many historical examples of Arab Muslims crimes in history, such as: In the eighth century, seventy Christian pilgrims who did not want to convert to Islam were tortured and then killed, and seven of them who converted to Islam survived. In the following years, sixty Christian pilgrims were crucified in Jerusalem. At the end of the eighth century, Muslims destroyed two churches and a monastery near Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus, and killed its monks. In 796 AD, Muslims killed 20 more monks. In 809 and 813 AD, many monasteries and churches in and around Jerusalem were burned by Muslims. Muslims attacked Christian men and women, gang raped them, and then killed them. On Palm Sunday in 929 AD, a new wave of crimes against Christians began, churches were destroyed and Christians were massacred. Some Muslim rulers were more lenient and took jizya from the dhimmis or Christians (by humiliating them) and placed them in a low position. Other rulers did what they wanted, raping, killing, or extorting tribute from Christians for no reason. In 936 AD, the holiest site of Christians, the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, was not spared from the madness of the Muslims, and the church was destroyed by the call of Allahu Akbar, until in 1009 AD, the Fatimid Caliph of Egypt, the ruler of Amrallah, completely destroyed it so that no trace of it was left. Pope Sergius IV (who died in 1012 AD) said that the church and the city of Rome were not at peace in the wake of these vandalism and persecution of Christians. Amrallah then ordered the destruction of another 30,000 churches in Egypt and Syria.

A smaller church was built there in 1048 AD to replace the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, while they were in constant fear of its destruction at the hands of Muslims, although Muslims made a huge income from the pilgrims. Whenever they wanted to extort money from Christians, they frightened them that they would destroy their church in order to force the Christians to accept the ransom.

In the same years, 1040 AD, the Turkic Seljuks, who had merged their identity with Islam, made their way west from Uzbekistan with a powerful army and took Baghdad in 1055 AD, did not overthrow the Abbasid Caliph and left behind a puppet, like a chief, and invaded Syria and pursued a conflict and war with the Christian enemy. In the Christian lands of Asia Minor, or Anatolia or present-day Turkey, these Muslim Turks were another calamity. The Armenians, who were in present-day eastern Turkey, were the first people to fall under the Muslim Turks, and hundreds of thousands of Christians were either killed or enslaved, and thousands of churches were burned or converted into mosques. In 1077 AD, the Turks, led by Alp Arslan, defeated the Eastern Roman Empire in Malazgirt, which opened the entire land of Anatolia to them. Alp Arslan then ordered, "Attack the cities and villages day and night, kill the Christians mercilessly." As a result of this decree, cities were destroyed, lands were ploughed, and the whole of Anatolia took on the color of Christian blood. What was left were cut down trees, dismembered bodies, and cities that were left to burn in terror or in fire.

The Byzantine Emperor Alexius Comenius (1081-1118 AD) says: "The Christian Roman Empire is under the pressure of the Muslim Turks, who plunder and raid daily, killing Christians or making indescribable mockery of them. Not only do they put the holy places in a strait and destroy them in various ways, but they also circumcise Christian boys and pour their blood into baptismal pools and force them to rejoice in them, then drag them to and fro the church and force them to insult their holiness and the trilogy. Those who disobeyed orders were punished and then killed. In the case of Christian women, Muslims turned virgin maidens into public prostitutes, gang-raped mothers in front of their daughters, forced their daughters to sing and dance, and then replaced the mother with a daughter, and the mother sang, and her daughter was gang-raped. After women, it was the turn of men, and they sodomize them, and then they killed the bishops of the churches.

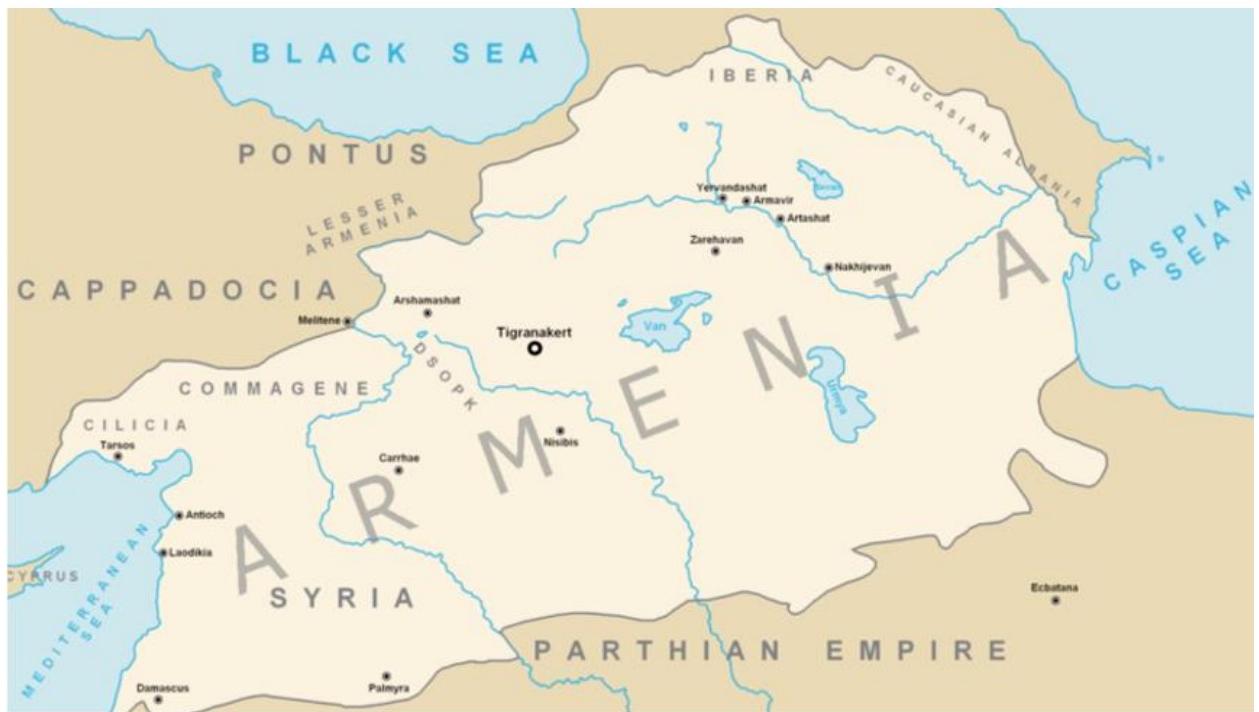

The persecution of Christians in Jerusalem by the Turkic Muslims was much more severe than the crimes of the Umayyad and Abbasid caliphates. Death was above their heads every day, and even worse was the daily slavery and humiliation that befell them. An example of this was the occasional attack by the Turks on the churches that the Christians had rebuilt with pain, blood and heart. The Turks ridiculed Christian ceremonies, broke statues, threatened Christians, and disrespected priests, imprisoning and enslaving them for no reason.

European pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem were beaten by Turkish Muslim soldiers and paid tribute. If the pilgrims came from Italy and Rome, Muslims killed them.

On November 27, 1095 AD at the Council of Clermont, Pope Urban II, after recounting and enlightening the suffering of Eastern Christians from Islam, called for the First Crusade. He said, "Who will prevent this destruction if you don't. Arise and remember the manhood of your fathers like Charlemagne." Pope Orbán called on the people to take up arms and march to Jerusalem, and they joined together and shouted, "God wills." The Pope's goal was the liberation of the Christians of Jerusalem and the liberation of the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

Matthew of Edessa (1075-1148 AD) says that all the men of Italy and Spain came together and created a powerful force. They were like countless sands of the sea. The French elders rose up and took the initiative to retake the holy city of Jerusalem from the infidels (Muslims) and liberate the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. These men were noble and faithful, and they were born with the ideal of good behavior.

And that's how the Crusades began. After years of Muslim crimes, the massacre of Christians, and the destruction of Christianity in West Asia, North Africa, and Spain.

Armenia, a great nation in the east of present day Turkey extended from Caspian to Mediterranean sea separating Persian and Roman empires.
Muslim destroyed numerous churches and killed unnumbered Christians in this land.

Islam destroyed Turkey

The country called Turkey today has an interesting history. In the millennia BC, the Hittite civilization was in this land, with an Aryan race that was considered one of the powers of West Asia for several hundred years. The Hittite civilization then gave way to Pam for six centuries, then to Phrygia and Lydia, and in the fifth century it fell into the hands of the Achaemenid Persian Empire, which organized and administered their lands in a satrapic manner. During the Achaemenid period, trade flourished in this land, and as a result, many cities and ports were built in the north that reached the Mediterranean Sea and in the west that led to the Atlantic Ocean, and a network of roads and highways connected these cities and ports. Some of these satraps built a foundation of incompatibility with the Achaemenid court and rebelled, which, although suppressed, resulted in triggering the Greco-Persian wars. In Macedonia, a territory that included present-day Istanbul, Greece, and Bulgaria, Alexander stepped in and invaded the east, and the land of Anatolia fell into the hands of the Greeks. The Greeks spread their culture over the land of Anatolia and were ruled by the Seleucids, who soon came to terms with the Roman Empire, which was expanding itself into Anatolia and took under its control the borders of present-day Turkey, choosing Constantinople (now Istanbul) as one of its capitals. The Roman Empire then became divided into eastern and western parts, and Constantinople became the capital of the Eastern Roman Empire, which is called the Byzantine Empire.

The seventh century was the beginning of the Arab invasion to the East and West, in which the Sassanid Empire collapsed and West Asia fell under the Arab Caliphate as a whole. The taste of victory, plunder, and invasion of lands had just opened the appetite of the Arabs until the Arabs reached the Byzantine Empire in Anatolia, and it was at this time that Islam, a fabricated religion to confront the Christianity of the Byzantine Empire, was formed, whose slogan was against the trinity of Christianity, which is that "there is no god but Allah, Allah is neither born nor gives birth, and Muhammad is the messenger of Allah." The expansion of the Arabs to the east reached the land of Uzbekistan, and the Seljuk Turks converted to Islam, and after the occupation of Iran, they reached Baghdad, left the Abbasid Caliphate, and marched to Anatolia. In 1071 AD, in the Battle of Malazgirt in eastern Turkey, the Turkic Muslims defeated Byzantium and opened the gateway to Anatolia, occupying the whole of it in ten years afterwards, and small kingdoms were formed in every part. Osman, Shah was one of these northwestern parts of present-day Turkey. He built an army of Seljuk Turks and Byzantine opponents, not all of whom were Muslims, and invaded Byzantium, captured Constantinople, and by the fifteenth century the Ottomans had become a powerful force that was subjugating the Christian lands of Byzantium in Europe one after the other, and then the Balkans, Greece, Bulgaria, and Romania came under their command until they reached Vienna, the capital of Austria, in the seventeenth century. They failed. Following this defeat and defeat from the Russians and the uprising of the people in the 19th century, the retreat of the Ottomans began, and the Europeans liberated their lands. In the occupied territories, the Ottomans, Serbs, Arabs, and Greeks each started fighting and demanded separation from the Ottomans. On the other hand, Al-Jazeera broke out of the Ottoman order during the French invasion. The vast expansion of the Ottoman Empire and its incompetence led to a reduction in the Ottomans' territorial extensiveness, and following their defeat in World War I, the Ottoman Empire collapsed and was occupied by European forces. During the war, Turkish Muslims killed more than a million Armenians in an organized massacre, and Muslims raped them or forced them to convert to Islam. In World War I, the Ottomans not only suffered a heavy defeat, but the empire collapsed, losing all non-Turkish territories and was itself under the military occupation of the Europeans.

When the Turkic Muslims ruled over the Ottomans, the Muslim sultans did these two things most of all: fight and expand the empire, and on the way back from the war, sleep with their many wives in the harems. Another hobby of these sultans, like other Muslims, was sodomizing. For example, Mehmed the Conqueror of Constantinople had sodomy with Radu Dracula, the younger brother of Vlad Dracula, and appointed him as a vassal to the government of Wallacea or present-day Romania.

The slave trade was still booming in the Ottoman Empire until its end. The only thing these sultans did not do was to add to the inner capabilities of the empire because the Muslims had no understanding of it at all. Therefore, the Ottomans did not make any progress in science, and the people were very ignorant, illiterate, and poor, or in short Muslims, the signs of which can still be seen in cities other than Istanbul and Ankara in Turkey. On the other hand, in Europe, science and art grew significantly. After the seventeenth century, braveness of the warriors in wars was no longer enough, at this time science came to the aid of the army and changed the tools and methods of warfare. The Europeans had the knowledge to use more efficient military technology that made them able to win their wars. This is how the Muslim Ottoman Empire collapsed.

On the other hand, after the Ottoman occupation by the Europeans, Mustafa Kemal or Atatürk revolted against the European occupiers and expelled their forces, and subsequently, in a parliamentary decision, the six-hundred-year-old Ottoman Empire was officially abolished, and today's Turkey was formed. Mustafa Kemal knew that the evil sect of Islam was the foundation of the backwardness and defeats of the Ottomans, so he correctly de-Islamized Turkey, replaced the Arabic script with the Latin script, and removed the veil from women.

The Turkish people, who have been under the brutal grip of Islam for centuries, still hold Islamic beliefs, and this sect still has many followers in the country. In an era of democracy and the value of the people's vote, Muslims voice are still being heard, and policymakers are forced to consider Islamic laws in order to satisfy them and gain their votes, which again leads to further backwardness and increases the country's economic difficulties. If today's Turkish politicians had followed the same path as Ataturk, Turkey would have been much more advanced.

Islam destroyed Palestine

We have heard that Israel has occupied Palestine, and if the occupation ends, the conflict between the two will also end. Well, this statement is very incorrect because there is no occupation and there is no people called Palestinians. Even if Israel withdraws from this land, there will still be no reconciliation and peace there. It is true that this is a religious war that has political aspects, and this war is not and is not over the occupied territory. The root of these conflicts is in Surah Al-Baqarah, verse 191 of the Qur'an, which commands: "Kill them wherever you find them, and drive them out as they drove you out, [for fitnah [=polytheism] is worse than murder, [however] do not fight them near the Sacred Mosque unless they fight you there, and if they fight you, kill them as a retribution." Such are the disbelievers." However, the Israelis never expelled the Palestinians from their land. In 1948, the year of the establishment of the State of Israel, the Arab countries, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Jordan, Egypt, and Lebanon declared war on Israel and intended to destroy it completely. After that, they asked the Palestinian Arabs to leave their land so that they would not be harmed in the meantime and return to their homes a few weeks after the destruction of Israel. But the Arabs were defeated, and Israel had no role in expelling the Palestinian Arabs from their homes. After Israel's victory in that war, since the Arabs were Israel's enemies, Israel did not allow them to return.

The term "Palestinian people" did not exist before 1964 and was not used. Indeed, the Palestinians, like the Lebanese, Jordanians, and Syrians, are Arabs. Later, the KGB, the Soviet spy agency, was engaged in a propaganda war against the West at the time, and the word "Palestinian people" became popular, knowing that the people of the world would take the side underdog. If you look at the newspapers of the 1948 war years, you don't see any sign of a Palestinian name. Since the people of the world support the weak, Yasser Arafat also invented the term "Palestinian people", who are under the "oppression" of the Israelis and whose land is "occupied"!

At this time, Israel was a small land that was confronted by all Muslim countries that are its religious enemies. The Israelis defeated the Muslim countries in their 1948, 1967 and 1973 attacks.

The name Palestine cannot be Arabic because in Arabic the letter P does not exist and they cannot even pronounce it as they spell "B" instead of "P". Palestine was used in 134 A.D., and before that the name of the land was Judea, which means the land of the Jews. In order to rule over the land of the Jews and suppress the successive uprisings of the self-proclaimed Messiahs, the Romans expelled the Jewish people from Judea and changed its name to Palestine, which is a biblical name for the historical enemies of the Jews, in order to put more pressure on the Jews, while the original Palestinian people had perished at that time, and there is no remnant of them to this day. Nor does it have anything to do with those who consider themselves Palestinians today. Therefore, since the beginning, Palestine has been a fictitious land, and this name is a land or a region, not a people. The area was still inhabited by Jews. In the 7th century, Muslim Arabs took it and after them it came under Muslim Turks, and the people of that land were Arabs, Turks, Christians, or Jews, and none of them were called Palestinians.

In the twentieth century, the land of Palestine was part of the Ottoman Empire, and was called Southern Syria, not Palestine. After the defeat of the Ottomans in World War I, the region joined the League of Nations, a precursor to the present-day United Nations. League of Nations in the "British mandate for Palestine", made Britain responsible for establishing a state for the Jews, as Jews have been persecuted all over the world for two millennia. The British did not like this responsibility because the Arabs had helped them to win in their war with the Ottomans and did not want to upset the Arabs. Therefore, they gave two-thirds of this area to the Arabs and named it Jordan, and appointed the Hashemite Arab family to rule there. The other third was given to the Jews, which included Gaza and the West Bank, so the only country that has the right to sovereignty over the West Bank and Gaza under international law is Israel.

Following the Arab countries' invasion of Israel, after it was recognized as a state, the West Bank was conquered by Jordan and Gaza by Egypt. Before 1950, the West Bank was again called Judea (or the land of the Jews) and Samaria. For the second time after the Romans, this time the Jordanians called the land of the Jews the West Bank because they wanted to hide that it was a Jewish land. The West Bank and Gaza fell into the hands of Jordan and Egypt, and lasted from 1948 to 1967, and no one called it an "occupation."

In the Qur'an, there are several verses condemning and degrading the Jews, and it considers them the worst enemies of the Muslims and in Muslims recite "Al-Mughdoob 'alayham" from Surah 1 five times a day, which means that the Jewish people are the object of Allah's wrath. Therefore, the basis of the conflicts that are taking place in Israel and Palestine has Islamic and Quranic roots, which have been politicized. The reason why there has been no outcome of the global dialogue for reconciliation between the two is because of these Islamic roots, because Muslims cannot tolerate the Jews, especially now that they have a country that is in the vicinity of Muslim lands. Jimmy Carter's reconciliation talks with Sadat in 1979, Bill Clinton's peace talks with Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin in the 1990s in Oslo, George W. Bush's road map for peace in 2010, and many others did not yield any results. Even the prime minister of Israel was ready to give them 98% of the land that the Arabs wanted, and in addition to that, the land they did not ask for, without consequences. Because the Muslim cause is the total destruction of Israel.

After the 1948 war, the Arabs who fled on the orders of the Arab countries (not Israel) are called refugees, and now their children and descendants are also called refugees, and this has no precedent anywhere else in the world, the children of refugees are not refugees in other lands! When a country defeats another country in a war and takes the land of that country, the victorious country has a total choice over that land, and those who have left do not any right over it, and they must find a way to continue their lives wherever they have fled, and it is not permissible to gain back what they have lost.

On October 7, 2023, Hamas (Islamic Resistance Movement), which does not even mention the name of Palestine, attacked a dance party in Israel, following which it violated and raped women, killing them in a horrific ways, and taking 200 others hostage and taking them away to their hideouts in Gaza. Israel sent its army to dismantle Hamas. Hamas itself fled to its underground shelters and tunnels or hid behind civilians and Arab children. In the meantime, tens of thousands of Arabs and their children were killed, and this war and killing is not over yet.

The nature of Islam is such that it cannot be in peace with non-Muslims. As long as Islam exist Muslim are obliged to be in wars with non-Muslim. The only way to end these wars is to end the evil sect of Islam itself.

The West Bank is the same as Judea and Samaria

Islam's rape of India created two backward countries: Pakistan and Bangladesh

One of the examples that clearly shows the link between Islam and destruction is the two countries of Pakistan and Bangladesh. The Indians, Pakistanis and Bengalis are one, separated only by geographical borders created due to the evil sect of Islam. These Indians have played a prominent role in science and art since ancient times, and the only Nobel Prize in Physics awarded to a muslim was from an Indian/ Pakistani scientist (Abdus Salam). In universities around the world, especially in the United States, a large number of professors from Pakistani, Bangladeshi, and Indians are engaged in research and education. In the advanced industries of Western companies, many scientists from these countries can be found. Like other Islamic countries, Pakistan and Bangladesh are among the poorest and most backward countries. Abdus Salam after receiving his doctorate in physics from the University of Oxford, returned to Pakistan, and there he was assigned to coach the football team of a high school. After a short while he left his homeland to his scientific research to UK.

The founder of Pakistan, Muhammad Ali Jinnah, was a Shia Muslim. The name of Pakistan was meant to be the clean beginning of separation from India. Jinnah was ill at the time and the British knew it, so they left India earlier than the order time so that the separation could take place before his death. After the establishment of the new state of Pakistan, many non-Muslim Hindus went to India, and a million Indian Muslims went to Pakistan, who were called Muhajirs, and a large number of people were killed on both sides, and Muhammad Ali Jinnah regretted the separation of the two countries in the last weeks of his life. In Pakistan, the army took control of the country and killed three million people in Pakistan itself. The country is governed by Islamic law, and any un-Islamic call is punished either by the government or by the "Muslim" people of Pakistan themselves. Islamic madrassas (schools teaching Islamic lessons) have also been established in all corners of Pakistan and are busy brainwashing children, each of whom has the power to be a future Abdus Salam. Thus, there is no progress in these countries, and both from the public and economic point of view, it is a destitute, backward, poor, and terrorist-nurturing country, and the Pakistani elite leave their homeland. India today, is one of the most advanced countries in the world today and monopolizes data technology (IT) all over the world. Today many Hindus are returning to their country. A few years ago, India was the only country whose space rocket landed on successfully on the moon, while the Americans and the Chinese missions failed. There is also a deep enmity between Pakistan and India, and like all Muslims, Pakistan trains and sends terrorists to inflict wounds on India. Hindus walk on the moon, and Pakistanis have the moon on their flag. In Pakistan, a European Christian who had said something about the Prophet that was burned alive in the street. Or in some cities in Bangladesh, music is considered illegal. Such Islamic orders in these two countries have overshadowed the progress of these countries, and Pakistani and Bangladeshi Muslims are still in their dark ages.

Islam turned Afghanistan to the Paleolithic

The land of Afghanistan had long-standing and strong ties with its surrounding lands, and it was only through British intrigues to gain more control over India that it became a country. Prior to that, the western part of Herat, which encompasses Herat, was a part of Iran's Khorasan province. The majority of the population in eastern Afghanistan is Pashtun and their language is Pashtun, which is an Indo-Iranian language, and their origin is from the people of India (present-day Pakistan) who were Buddhist in ancient times and formed the country together with the people of the west of this land, who were mostly of Iranian origin.

Ahmad Shah Durrani (1722-1773) was one of the generals in Nader Shah Afshar's army who returned to the Pashtuns after his death, and the Pashtun Tribal Association elected him as the leader. Durrani built an army of Pashtuns, took the surrounding cities under his command, and invaded India during his 25 years in office. Ahmad Shah Durrani is considered the founder of today's Afghanistan. The Dorani Empire was defeated after the Sikh invasion in 1826. After that, and after the advances of the British and Russians, the land of Afghanistan fell from the commercial boom and went into isolation, and the Sunni sect of Islam strengthened its roots in it. The British occupied Afghanistan to repel the Russians but after many struggles with substantial casualties they fled and left. At this time, Dost Mohammad Khan was chosen as the ruler of Afghanistan. The British invaded Afghanistan again (1878-1880), which resulted in many deaths on both sides, and they made a pact that Britain would not interfere in the Afghan government and that only its foreign affairs would be in their hands. In 1919, with 120,000 soldiers, the Afghans attacked the British in India, and after several skirmishes, the autonomy of Afghanistan was recognized.

From 1926 to 1973, the Kingdom of Afghanistan was created, and along with the efforts of Atatürk in Turkey and Reza Pahlavi in Iran to de-Islamize their people, Afghanistan was also modernized. Shah Mohammad Daud Khan's cousin staged a coup in 1973 to further modernize Afghanistan, but Daud was killed in a communist coup in 1978. The Democratic Government of Afghanistan (1978-1992) again pursued modernization efforts and tried to weaken the religious structure of Afghanistan, which was not achieved with the resistance of Afghan Muslims and a lot of aid from Arab-Islamic countries. Also, Western countries supported Islamic groups and strengthened the terrorist groups of Al-Qaeda and the Taliban until they expelled the Russians from Afghanistan. With the empowerment of these Islamists, in which the Westerners played a prominent role, Afghanistan was transformed into the Islamic Emirate and the orders of Sharia were reapplied in this land. After 40 years of war and carnage in Afghanistan after the communist coup, many emigrated from there, and many of them are in Iran and Pakistan. Although Afghans are hard-working and looking for a better life for themselves and their families, some others have a very primitive and Islamic behavior, as it is a daily news in the world that there an Afghan refugee commits a crime such as rape, murder with knives, or theft. Recently after an Afghan refugee killed two German police officers, the German government has decided to deport all Afghans. Just from these types of incidents and crimes one can understand what Islamic culture means and what is going on in Afghanistan itself.

Ninety-nine percent of Afghans agree with the application of Sharia law. Also, only 30 percent of Afghans believe that the hijab should be a choice for women (Pew 2013) and 96 percent believe that it is their duty to convert others to Islam. Seventy-nine percent of Afghans believe that those who abandon Islam should be executed. Eighty-nine percent believe that adulterers should be killed. What should be done with this attitude?

Since the spread of Islam is in its nature and as the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan considers itself the flag bearer of true Islam, it is feared that this country will be a center for raiding its surrounding lands and will seek to punish the "infidels" as in the past. Afghans consider themselves Muslims first and then Afghans. The Islamic Emirate in any country is a danger not only to itself but to the whole world, and it must be stopped as soon as possible. The Islamic government in Afghanistan cannot have advances in technology, and the production of narcotics is one of its huge revenues. Islam is not only a barrier to the progress of a country, but it also pushes it backwards, and Afghanistan is gradually getting closer to the Paleolithic period.

The re-infiltration of Islam into Iran and its destruction, again

The Islamic government in the shadow of the mullahs-Islamic mafia network, after successive political and military defeats, and the embarrassment and humiliation of Iran and Iranians, led to the collapse of the Qajar dynasty in 1925. At this time, the country was in chaos, and in every corner of Iran, armed groups were fighting the central government, and it was feared that one of the border provinces would be torn apart again. At this time, the British, who had a significant influence in Iran, encouraged an army general, Reza Savadkoohi, who had already reached the position of Sardar Sepah, and supported him to take over the leadership of the country in a bloodless military coup.

Reza Shah first quelled the rebellions and suppressed separatists in all corners of Iran. Then he made attempts to de-Islamize Iran, by forcefully removing women's hijab, stopping the Ashura ceremonies and chest-beating, during which he killed some of the mullahs, and established a new organization in the country. Reza Shah built many primary schools, high schools, and established the first university in Iran (Tehran University). Reza Shah built several highways and railways and began to build many factories for all the kinds of essential products that the country needed. He built the tombs of Ferdowsi, Hafez, Saadi, and Avesina, which attract many tourists every year. Reza Shah also built paths in the mountains for people's recreation and sports. All these constructions, which people still benefit from, were completed in less than sixteen years, that is, until the Second World War in 1941! Reza Shah had warmed up to the Germans, and many of these projects were carried out with the help of German engineers. One of the reasons for this was the refusal of the British to participate in the construction of Iran, as the prominent feature of the British in their dealings with Iran was only the theft of its assets, on this sense they are like the Muslims.

Iran was occupied by Russia, Britain, and the United States during World War II, while at this time it had not yet been freed from its centuries-old blackness, poverty, illiteracy, lack of culture, ignorance, backwardness, and Islamization, and the behavior of the occupying foreigners towards Iranians was very humiliating. At this time, Reza Shah's son, Mohammad Reza, became the king at a young age, and he continued many of Reza Shah's plans. At this time, great figures such as Ahmad Kasravi and Ali Dashti stepped into the arena and revealed the true face of Islam to the people in their books, which provoked the anger of the mullahs. Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the young Shah of Iran, invited Ahmad Kasravi to meet with him after the royal court criticisms of him being anti-Islam, and Professor Kasravi once again told the Shah his concern about the mullahs' and Islam's evil mafia network in Iran. Kasravi also asked the Shah to follow the same policies as his father in suppressing Islam and the mullahs, otherwise they would one day overthrow him from the throne. In response, Shah told of his plans to improve the literacy and increase the number of schools and universities, proposed that if the people became literate, they would abandon superstition and religion. The Shah also left the mullahs free and not only did not prevent the Ashura and Tasu'a (10th and 11th days) ceremonies, but he also built 50,000 mosques for them. The mullahs once again infiltrated all over Iran and expanded and strengthened their mafia network. Ahmad Kasravi was killed by the mullahs' mafia, and his killer was one of the mullahs' thugs of the time, named Navab Safavi, who was a sodomizer and mindless (which is one of the characteristics of Muslims), so that after his death sentence, he requested prison guards to spend the last week of his life in a cell with one of his comrades. Prison guards agreed while secretly filming them, and the sodomy of the mullah Navab Safavi and his companion has been recorded.

Some students, whom the Shah hoped would become more educated by going to the universities, became leftist and laid the foundation for a confrontation against the Shah. The Tudeh Left Party, a puppet of the communist Soviet Union, was created, and then other leftist groups such as the People's Fedayan emerged, a terrorist's group that killed many security forces. In order to confront the leftists, the Shah tried to bring Islam back to the forefront, and the mullahs gained a louder voice, and the SAVAK recruited Ali Shariati to convince youth of Islam instead of communism. The same educated young people whom the Shah planned to leave Islam by being trained and acquainted with the new knowledge of the world, sat at the feet of the mullahs and believed their lies.

Another mullah thug, Ruhollah Khomeini, came to the arena. He had opposed women's right to vote, which was signed by the Shah, and gave harsh speeches in the mosque and denounced the empowerment of women in society, which led to the street revolt of Muslim in 1962. Khomeini had to be executed since he acted against national security, but the mullahs' mafia network came into his assistance and overnight raised his rank to Ayatollah in order to escape execution. Khomeini was expelled from Iran, and he settled in Najaf, Iraq, where he continued to speak against the Shah.

At this time, Iran was progressing rapidly, and the country's construction projects were developing amazingly. However, the governments of the United States and European countries were worried about Iran's advances, and in order to keep Iran under more control, they put up a program of friendship with the Shiites of Iran and broadcast programs in the British and Soviet media with a louder voice against the Shah. The king and the kingdom were attacked from all sides. The students, who owe their education to the Shah, considered the Shah himself to be the reason for the backwardness of the country, and many turned to street demonstrations against the Shah with Islamic and some leftist ideals. Until the Westerners asked the Shah to leave Iran, and after him, many military commanders did not know what to do. Thus, the Western-communist-Islamic conspiracy led to the overthrow of the Shah and Iran fell back into the hands of the Islamic mafia.

In the Islamic Republic, a group of university educated, under the leadership of Mehdi Bazargan with Islamic tendencies took over the government and really made efforts to implement ambitious plans for the development of the country. Less than a year after this government, the mullahs' shadow government, who saw the path of the new government advancement incompatible with their Islamic identity, stormed the U.S. embassy which forced Bazargan to resign. Then, he massacred Banisadr's ministers on June 28, 1981, in a building explosion. The mullahs' mafia came out of the shadows and Khomeini himself became the country's leader. Then, in the meantime, the Muslim and expansionist mullahs also threatened Iraq with exporting its "revolution", which was one of the reasons for Iraq's invasion of Iran, a war in which one million Iranians were killed. In this war, many elite Iranian commanders were killed in suspicious ways, in which we can again see the signs of the Islamic-clerical mafia.

Islam ruined Indonesia

Eighty-seven percent of Indonesia's population, or 240 million people, are Muslim, making it the largest Muslim population in the world. How Islam came to Indonesia has entertained many researchers, and one view is that Mu'awiya invited the king of that land to Islam in a letter, which he refused, and then Mu'awiya's grandson, Mansur, invaded Indonesia with 35 ships and converted them to Islam with the sword. From the 1200s AD onwards, Islam became more widespread in Indonesia because it was more beneficial to many governors of dozens and different districts. The Islam of the Indonesian people did not have the same color and smell of basic Islam, and the people continued their traditional rituals and behavior.

From the 19th century and the first years after 1802, three Indonesians who had spent three years in Mecca and converted to the Wahhabi sect made a farewell meeting with Abdullah Ibn Saud to spread Wahhabi Islam in the Indonesian islands. Ibn Saud became the first king of the Saudi dynasty in 1814 and ruled for four years. The Wahhabi sect believes that Islam should be implemented in its fundamental form, like the Messenger of Allah.

The "Padre" movement (the name of a city in Indonesia) was started by these three Wahhabis of Indonesian descent in Minang-Kabul in Sumatra, Indonesia, and although the people were Muslims, they did not live according to Islamic rules. The three pilgrims asked for help from a Muslim imam named "Tuanko-Nan-Ranche" in that area. With the help of this Imam, the Wahhabi groups were organized in clothes as the Arabs. They attacked anything that did not have taste of Islam first by reminding them, then by harshness, and when it did not work, by killing. The prominent role of women in the Ming-Kabul community was not acceptable from the point of view of Muslims who followed the Messenger of Allah, because from the point of view of Islam, women are half the value as men, and most of the people of Hell are women! Therefore, women should not have any role in the management of Islamic societies! Some of the pastimes of the Indonesian people were gambling, cockfighting, chewing tobacco, smoking, and alcoholic beverages, which forced the Wahhabi Muslim to deal with harshly. The massacre of the people began brutally, and one village after another was looted, destroyed, and taken prisoner from there. These captives worked in the fields like slaves for the cult, and some were sold in the slave market, which became one of the cult's revenues.

The disgruntled Minang-Cabal elders, with the help of the Dutch army, defeated the fundamentalist Muslim sect in 1837. From then on, the Dutch themselves colonized the beautiful and fertile land of Indonesia for a century. The Japanese defeated the Dutch in World War II in 1942 and replaced them themselves. The Japanese treated the Indonesian people much harsher and more humiliating than the Dutch. With Japan's defeat at the end of World War II and coordination with the United States and Britain, Indonesia became independent in 1945.

In the years after the emergence of ISIS, Wahhabism re-ignited in Indonesia, but it did not last long. With the presence of Islam in a land, there is always a ground for the growth of its fundamental species.

Indonesia and one of its islands, Bali, is portrayed as a dream paradise in the Hollywood film "Ticket to Paradise," starring George Clooney and Julia Roberts. 87 percent of the people of Bali are Hindus, and 8 percent of them are Muslims. At the end of the film, the American couple chose to live in Bali rather than return to the United States.

The Muslims, who themselves lived in a paradise like Indonesia, unlike Arabia, were still looking for the paradise given in the Qur'an, while they did not know that they were already there. Even if someday Muslims reach their illusional promised Qur'anic paradise, they will undoubtedly convert it to hell as well since they have no notion of happiness.

Indonesia's paradise-like land

Islam is destroying Europe

The Crusades began against the expansion of Muslims to Christian lands and the mass killing of Christians. The Europeans were able to expel the Muslims from Europe with difficulties and many defeats and deaths, while the land of Armenia, which was in the eastern half of today's Turkey, was occupied by Turkish Muslims in the Ottoman Empire, and many Armenians were killed by the Muslims and all their churches were destroyed or turned into mosques.

After the Crusades, Europeans made significant progress in all fields of science and art, while Muslims still followed the Qur'an, illusions and superstitions and kept moving backward in progress.

After World War II, Germany needed workers to rebuild, and due to a heavy casualty of the war. Many from Turkey went to Germany for work. The behavior of Turkish Muslims made the German people disgusted with them, such that even after several generations, this hatred still exists under the skin of German society. Turkish Muslims have also migrated to other European countries, and they have a significant number in Northern Europe, such as Denmark and Sweden. In the wake of the wars in West Asia (Middle East), from Afghanistan to Iran and Syria, and from Yemen to Africa, mostly Islamic countries, many Muslims escaped to Europe and carried their Islamic beliefs with them. In Europe, refugees were accommodated and paid a monthly subsidy suitable for a simple life. In addition, refugees could go to university, study alongside other Europeans, and work in a profession.

In the United Kingdom, Muslim population reaches more than four million, which is 6.5 percent of the British population. Most of these Muslims are from the country's former colonies of Pakistan, Bangladesh and North Africa. Due to breeding more children, Muslim population is growing more rapidly than that of Europeans, and it is believed that by 2050, the number of Muslims will outnumber the British, and it is feared that in the context of Western democracy, Muslims will play a greater role in European politics, which has frightened many Europeans, who have reminded policymakers in their meetings.

There is not a day that the name of a Muslim is not mentioned in an upsetting event in the world. Some examples are as follows. Last year, a Muslim believer, Abdullah Qureshi, went to a distant city in England and attacked five Jews there. The British authorities identified him as mentally ill but did not find him guilty. While he is not really mentally ill, he is a Muslim, even though they are both the same.

An Afghan named Maysam rapes a six-year-old boy and an eight-year-old girl in Germany. He is deported from Germany to Switzerland, but Switzerland did not accept him, and now there is no sign of him, and he is believed to have escaped.

At the Madrid train station, 193 passengers were killed in an explosion by a Muslim.

In 2015, a bombing by Muslims in Paris, France, killed 130.

In 2016, in the French city of Nice, a Muslim ran over 230 people with his truck, killing 86 people.

Muslims, who have been sheltered by Europeans, attack people in the streets with knives and plunge them into the necks<sup>19</sup> of "infidels." There are so many such incidents that many companies such as www.slash-pro.com, sells "anti-neck-knife" clothing that has long collars and anti-knives.

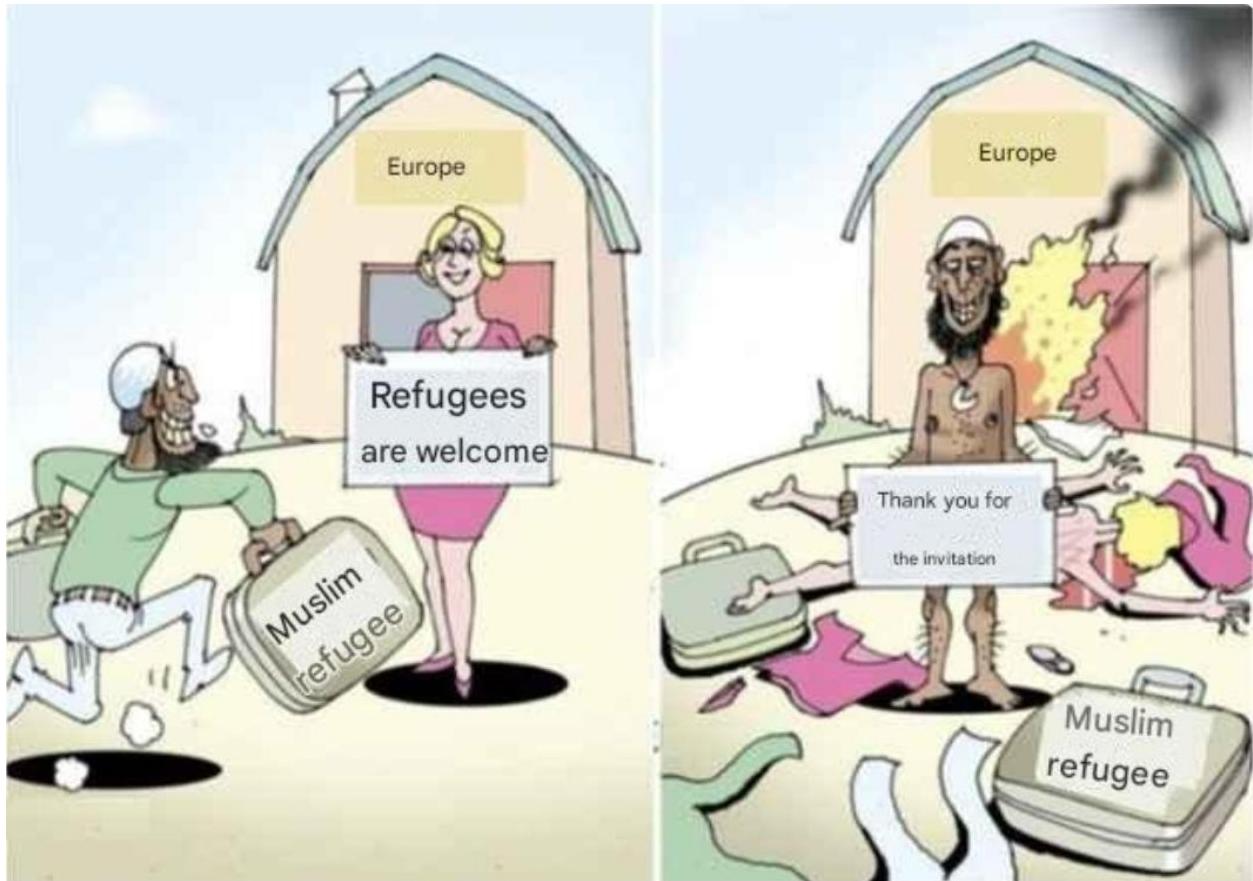

Such crimes are daily in a Europe that is moving towards Islamization, and in response, policymakers are afraid of harsh treatment of Muslims, and instead of standing up to Islam, they call the people who are fed up with it "Islamophobic", and even some lawmakers consider Islam a religion of "peace".

A Muslim who immigrates to Europe considers the Christian people of that land to be misguided (Qur'an 1-7: al-Dhaalin) and wants to kill them following the teachings of the Qur'an (such as 9-5). Muslims consider European women to be prostitutes and Muslim men rape them and consider it their Islamic duty. One example, in the city of Rotherham, England, between 1997 and 2013, 1,400 girls were raped, and some of them were killed. Some of these aggressions were gang rapes. This behavior is advanced to the point that some white girls under the age of 20 have been held captive by these Muslim groups for years and are repeatedly raped. Whatever sign of Christianity that Muslims see, they destroy it like a cross. Just last year in a small French town, Muslims destroyed a cross that had been in the town square for 700 years.

With immigration and high childbearing, Muslim population in Europe is increasing, which in turn will lead to the spread of Islam and the application of Sharia law in Europe. The day will come when Iran will be freed from the evil of Islam and non-Muslim Europeans will flee from the "Emirates" of Islamic Europe and take refuge in Iran.

<sup>19</sup> Qur'an (47-4): Therefore, when you meet the unbelievers smite their necks, then, when you have killed many of them, tie the bonds. Then, either free them by grace or ransom until war shall lay down its loads, in this way, it shall be. Had Allah willed, He would have been victorious over them; except that He might test you, the one by the means of others. As for those who are killed in the Way of Allah, He will not let their works go astray.

Refugees are accepted in Europe, and Muslim refugees in Europe attack the “misguided” Christians of European

Islam devastated Spain

Many have accepted this legend that during the Muslim rule, from the eighth to the fifteenth centuries, Spain flourished. It is also believed that during this period, the coexistence between Muslim, Jewish, and Christian religions emerged under the Islamic government of Andalusia, and knowledge and philosophy flourished, and many beautiful buildings were built. It can be seen how the money of Arabs and Muslim countries creates myths and washes blood. Knowing Islam and the teachings of the Qur'an, one should at least suspect such legends.

Modern research<sup>20</sup> challenges these myths and sheds light on what happened in Spain during the Islamic period. What Muslims did in Spain was like what they did to Iran. After the invasion of Spain, the Muslim Arabs were first surprised to see the magnificent cities built during the Roman rule, such as Toledo and Cordoba, and called them "Mada'in" (which means a great city), then they looted and destroyed them... The same thing they did to Ctesiphon.

During the Umayyad Caliphate and the spread of Islam to the West, the lands of North Africa became Islamic and reached Morocco. The north of Morocco is less than ten kilometers from the sea to the south of Spain. It is not surprising, then, that the last desire of Muslims to continue what they have in their nature, expansion, killing, plunder, and aggression, this time over the beautiful land of Spain. Again, in Spain, the destruction of Christian and Jewish churches began, and mosques were built in their place. The qibla of these mosques were directed towards the south of Spain to Morocco was the birthplace of Abd al-Rahman, the new ruler of Andalusia, and not the Mecca of Hijaz!

The Christians and the Jews had to either adopt Islam or pay the jizya, along with humiliation, which is the command of the Qur'an 9-29: "Fight against those of the People of the Book who do not believe in Allah and the Last Day, and do not forbid what Allah and His Messenger have forbidden, and do not become believers in the religion of truth, so that they may pay the jizya with humiliation." Many cities, such as Reccopolis, were destroyed, leaving no more than ruins. Many Christians and Jews, who were called dhimmis, were executed or forced to leave their homeland, and those who remained were forced to convert to Islam. On the orders of Mansur of the Umayyad family, the books of many ancient Greeks, dictionaries, poems, philosophy, and law were burned because they were un-Islamic. Caliph Joseph destroyed all the beautiful Christian and Jewish churches.

After the victory of the Christians in Spain and the expulsion of the Muslims in 1492, there was no sign of Christian churches left, and what was left were scattered Christian slaves living in lowlands. Other examples are the cities of Valencia and Granada, where very few dhimmis remained.

During the period of Muslim rule, the law was such that the People of the Book, Christians, and Jews were considered second-class citizens. For example, if a Christian kills a Muslim, even if it is in self-defense, it is punishable by death, but if a Muslim kills a Christian, even if it was intentional, he should not be sentenced to death.

In the courts, the testimony of a Christian or a Jew was not accepted when the lawsuit was related to Muslims, and when there was a dispute between a Muslim and a Christian, the Christian testimony of half a Muslim man was of value, which is the same as the rights of a Muslim woman.

In Islamic Andalusia (Spain), female genital mutilation and stoning were very common, and the famous philosopher, Ibn Rushd, criticized it. Christians and Jews were employed as experts, scientists, or physicians who had benefits for Muslims, and their rights were always lower than those of Muslims. The Muslims' hatred of the Jews led to their mass murder on several occasions.

A Muslim man could take four wives who could also be a Christian, and their children had to become Muslims. But a Christian man was not even allowed to look at a Muslim woman.

Another caliph, Abd al-Rahman III, was famous with numerous beheadings. In one day, he beheaded a hundred Christian prisoners while looking at it from the balcony of a garden. This caliph had sodomy with a thirteen-year-old Catholic boy, and when the boy had at one point rejected him, he ordered him to be decapitated after being tortured. After his maid servant refused to sleep with him, Abd al-Rahman plunged a burning candle on her face and burned it, destroying her beauty. There is more to be said about Abd al-Rahman's crazy (and Islamic) behavior in killing his concubines and killing anyone who left Islam or secretly converted to Christianity and even killed his son because of his inclination to Sufism. Among other things, this caliph hung black boys to be a counterweight to drain from the wells of the palace.

Women in Muslim Spain, as in the teachings of the Qur'an, had only childbearing like plants in Muslim society (2-223). For this reason, poverty was very prominent in the Islamic society. It was an honor for women to undergo circumcision.

Slavery and slave trading were also very common in the Islamic society of Andalusia. The white, golden-haired slaves obtained in raids on Christian lands were more valuable. In 912 AD, during the Umayyad caliphate, a black African girl was sold for 300 gold dinars, an illiterate white girl was sold for 1,000 gold dinars, and if she could sing, she was sold for 14,000 dinars. Abd al-Rahman III had three thousand seven hundred and fifty slaves in his court, six thousand three hundred women in his harem, and his army consisted of thirteen thousand seven hundred and fifty warrior slaves.

During the period of Muslim rule in Andalusia, between one million and one million and two hundred and fifty thousand slaves were bought and sold. Muslims were among the first slave traders, and the newly arrived English learned it from the Muslims.

Finally, in the wake of the Crusades, Christians expelled Islam and Muslims from Spain after seven centuries, and today this country is one of the most spectacular countries in Europe. Moroccan Muslims still go to Spain, but to work and collect tomatoes from the fields there.

Two Faithful High School Friends

Ahmad Kasravi<sup>21</sup> (1890-1946) met with Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, in which he enumerated the dangers of Islam and the Shiite mullahs for the young Shah, who would one day dethrone him. In response, the Shah said that he wanted to eradicate religious ignorance by spreading education among the people. Indeed, the Shah made great efforts in the expansion of schools, both in quality and numbers, but and at the same time, he also built many mosques and himself played a role in the spread of Islam among the youth.

Several high school students, although they were brilliant and gifted, they had strict religious and Islamic tendencies. These same graduates joined leftist or Islamic groups with government scholarships, but in return they struck at the roots of the Pahlavi monarchy. Many of the "intellectuals" in suits and ties of that era had Islamic tendencies and helped the Islamists and mullahs to overthrow the progressive monarchy of Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, and after Islamic "revolution" the students of the "Imam's Line" stormed the American Embassy and took American diplomats hostage for years.

In the year of the Islamic Rebellion of 1979 in Iran, two faithful (Muslim) friends, Reza and Mehdi, received their high school diplomas from one of the best high schools in Tehran, Kharazmi, and both were admitted to Sharif University of Technology (ex. Ariamehr) with high ranks in the national entrance exam. Reza chose chemical engineering and Mehdi chose electrical engineering. After a year, there was a "cultural" revolution which led to the closure of universities for several years. Mehdi left the university and went to the Seminary of Qom to become a mullah. After the universities were reopened, Reza pursued his chemical engineering education and then obtained his Ph.D. in the same field in Canada. Mehdi pursued his studies in the seminary and shone there, reached the position of Ayatollah, and changed his last name to one of the cities of Iran!

Dr. Reza returned to Sharif University of Technology and became a professor there, and after a few years, because he was a devout faithful Muslim, was appointed as the president of this university. Ayatollah Mehdi<sup>22</sup>, with his mastery of the English language, was interviewed by the BBC and American television channels and became famous in the Western media.

At the time when the Islamic Republic for pretending they have space technology, flew a spaceflight to space and since students at Sharif University of Technology were involved in the design, construction and flight of that rocket, Iranian media interviewed Reza, the president of the university. In this interview, Dr. Reza expressed his wish that "prayers would be held on other planets"! In other words, Reza wished to spread Islam by going beyond the earth, which of course is the wish of every Muslim. As we know from the shameful history of Islam, the spread of Islam means frantically attacking, plundering, killing, raping and enslaving others. Reza did not understand until the end that the purpose of space research and knowing the universe and the stars

<sup>21</sup> Ahmad Kasravi, attended Islamic seminary to become a Shiite mullah but he noticed the depth of corruption within the seminary and dropped out. Kasravi then authored several seminal books on the history of Iran, Islam and Shiite which angered Shiite clerics and was assassinated by a Shiite mullah thug and sodomizer, Navab Safavi.

is to expand our knowledge, to get to know the world, ourselves, and our God better, and to get closer to him. Alas, one of the most intelligent people falls into the trap of Islam and falls into such a low position.

Reza died at the age of 60, and according to his high school friend Mehdi, "he remained faithful until the end of his life!". Reza is an example that being smart or even graduating with a doctorate in a complex engineering field does not necessarily lead to a better understanding of Islam or avoiding superstition. This is an example of people who have been told since childhood that you are a Shiite, and he remained a Shiite without question. If he was a Christian or a Buddhist, it is thought that he would remain the same.

Mahdi is a fiery Muslim who continues to live in the Qom Seminary wearing the cloak and turban of the Shiite mullahs. He believes that there are hidden knowledges in the Qur'an and the Hadithes (narratives) of Shiite Imams. This is what Omar said when he set fire to the libraries of Iran! Mahdi is a reactionary Shiite cleric who believes that the Shiite imams, who had no profession in their lives other than killing, eating, and mating with concubines, and many of them were themselves borne by concubines, which makes them bastard according to Islamic orders, who did not leave any valuable writings and offered no solution for people's hardships, are amazing creatures and want more research into their disgraceful life.

In his website, Ayatollah Mahdi answers people's religious questions, of which this is just one example. A man asks the Ayatollah:

"Hello. The ruling on the use of artificial sex devices such as, vibrators, dildos, etc. What happens during marital affairs?

Answer: There is nothing wrong with using these devices during intercourse with the wife, but it is not permissible to insert anything into the woman's vagina other than the husband's body parts, based on obligatory precautions."

Looking at Ayatollah Mahdi's website, what can only be said is regret and one can see what primitive and incorrect thoughts can be found in his speeches or writings. He truly considers the Qur'an to be the word of Allah! If Ayatollah Mehdi had pursued engineering and with the gifted person he was at youth, he would undoubtedly have been able to find a solution to people's problems by using scientific methods, but unfortunately, he is into superstitions and studying worthless and irrational writings such as the Qur'an!

Reza and Mehdi are examples that show how Islam transforms a sharp-witted young person into a Muslim, and getting educated in math and science does not necessarily lead to avoiding superstition and religion. Unfortunately, such delusional and Muslim graduates are not few, and the reaction of the freedmen is only regret. By recognizing these examples, we can see again how Islam turns people backwards. Therefore, wishes of Ahmad Kasravi must be followed and not let the idea of Islam pollute our children, and we must destroy this evil sect. This is where we should salute Kasravi's soul.

Islam transforms green countries into arid deserts

A look at the map of the world and the comparison of the position of Islamic countries and other countries reveals another unfortunate reality. Islamic countries are desert in color. Or most of the desert lands are in Islamic countries.

For the desert dweller (Arab<sup>23</sup>) whose life is Bedouin, drinking camels, and eating lizards, it is impossible to imagine progress and greenery in the land they occupy. Muslims, like the Arabs of the early days of Islam, must rob and steal the property of others, kill men, and enslave women and children, and sell them into slavery.

We do not know what the ancient life map of Iran was like, but what we see today indicates the desertification of this land. Khuzestan, which was one of the centers of the Achaemenid kings, was one of the best and most beautiful places on earth, but today it has become a desert. Until more than 100 years ago, the "Pelicans of Tabas" were still seen in the "Sea of Tabas", which today we know as the deserts of Tabas. The river that passed through Shiraz is called the Khoshk (dry) River today. The lake of Qom is called the lake of salt or salt. Lake Urmia has also become another salt marsh with the efforts of Muslims. The root of all these territorial changes is only the occupation of this land by Islam and the rule of the Muslims.

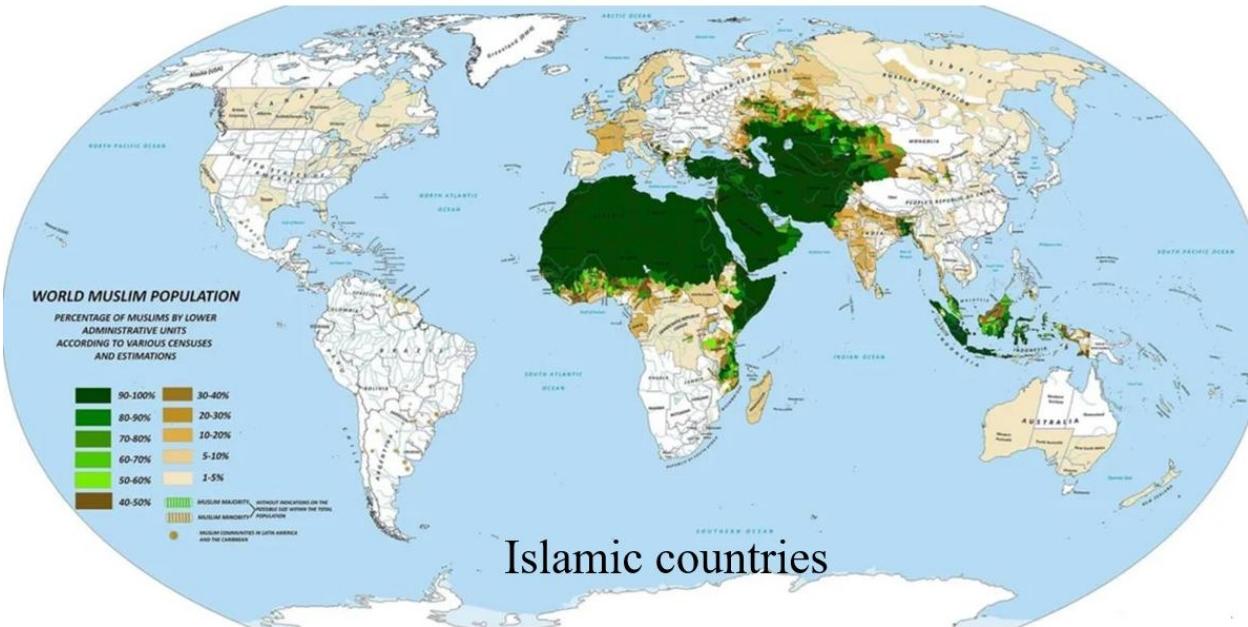

The way Muslims deal with droughts is prayer and prayer, and they think that by going straight to Mecca and saying the names of Allah and Muhammad, it will rain, and the drought will disappear, while the Kaaba itself is in a very hot, dry and vegetated land! If Allah could, He would have made the surroundings of Mecca green.

During the enslavement of the people of Africa during the disgraceful past of Islam, Muslims killed 112 million of them, about one million people a year! With these statistics, it is clear why the lands occupied by the Muslims in North Africa are called the Sahara.

In the lands that are in the clutches of Islam, Muslims do not believe in progress, beauty, green life and a better life. Islam seeks to keep Allah happy, and Islamic and Qur'anic superstitions, superstitions, and heart-wrenching ceremonies. Whenever they encounter difficulties, they pray and recite verses from the Qur'an so that perhaps their imaginary Allah will look at them and throw a bone on their table. The evil Islam hurts and belittles people so much that they become deprived of themselves, or leave their homeland, or do not move on their own, and do not make any effort to improve their lives and their habitat. All of this can be part of a response to the desertification of Islamic lands.

<sup>23</sup> Arab is not a race or nation, but its dictionary meaning is "desert dweller", and therefore desert dwellers wherever they are like in America, Africa, or East Asia are all considered Arabs. In the Qur'an, "Arabi" is repeated several times, and it means the "Arabic language", and the Qur'an itself does not consider Arabs to be a nation. The Arabic language is that spoken by the people who lived in that land, which was somewhere near the south of present-day Jordan-Syria and Palestine, and not the Hijaz.

World's deserts and Islamic lands are correlated

Muslims are like insects and rats

Coexistence with other living beings changes people's behavior. Arab Muslims lived in the desert and lived with reptiles and insects and ate them, as Ferdowsi says, "the snake eater, Ahriman (evil) face", and their drink was camel's urine. So, it is not surprising that their temperament has become like insects and mice.

Like insects and mice, Muslims have high birth rate, many of whom are sent to be killed in the way of spreading Islam. Rats also infest homes in large numbers, eating anything and making every corner their home. Insects and mice are nuisance, and when they get close, they bite, and people drive them away or kill them. Muslims also always disturb people and enjoin them to follow Islamic behavior or get punished, and if they are able, they will do harm or sting. People also drive Muslims away or destroy them. But Muslims are as poisonous as insects and rats, and they come and bite again.

Rats and insects bring with them contagious diseases that have killed millions of people throughout history. Muslims also bring with them the disease of Islam and make the society sick and spread it through selected killings, i.e. killing elites and keeping idiots who are faithful. Islam has hundreds of millions of people have killed or has been responsible for their death over its shameful history.

Talking to cockroaches and rats, to live peacefully together, is a joke, and it is like talking to Muslims or reminding them of the evil nature of Islam, because these conversations make the pious Muslim angrier. Therefore, Muslims should be treated the same way as with insects and mice.

Islam made the mafia

The first mafia organization was established in Sicily, Italy. The mafia is a group of families that owns a district and under its cover they carry out crimes such as bribery, gambling fraud, money laundering, killing for money, drug trafficking, and the prostitution trade in an organized manner. Such is the structure of the mafia. The leader of the group is called "The Godfather" and has advisors. In the lower rank is the "deputy" who oversees the heads of the gangs. Each gang has its own soldiers who commit crimes that the mafia orders. Today, the mafia commits horrific crimes in many forms all over the world and fighting them is a global problem.

Arab Muslims occupied the "Emirate" of Sicily from 965 to 1072 CE, for nearly a century, and the word "mafia" is from Italian, but it is derived from the Arabic word "معفى" which pronounce "ma'afi" which means exempt from punishment. So, it is not surprising to know the origin of the Mafia is Islam, because it is both Arabic and began in Sicily at a time when the "Emirate of Sicily" was under Muslim rule. The pyramidal structure of the mafia is like that of a Muslim caliph whose godfather is the caliph. In this way, Islam invented the mafia.

Islamic sects, such as the Taliban, the Islamic Republic (in Iran), ISIS, and others, have succeeded with the same mafia methods, killings, and successive explosions, and in at least two of these sects, they were able to occupy Iran and Afghanistan with their terrors and crimes. They send their ignorant followers (like mafia soldiers) to kill their opponents all over the world to achieve their evil agenda.

Another characteristic of Islam is that it commits crimes freely without fear of its consequences, because it knows that the mafia network of Islam is its guardian. In the West, and especially in Britain, speaking against Islam is considered Islamophobia and is a crime that carries a prison sentence. In Islamic countries, criticizing Islam or insulting their Prophet is punishable by death, and this is because this mafia cannot tolerate being attacked.

The spread of Islam is the only motivation for Muslims

What does Islam want and where does it want to go? Why does it kill millions of people and not be ashamed? Why does it ruin everything? What does Islam bring to the people with its shameful history? Why do two billion still consider themselves Muslims?

Answering these questions is not so difficult. Islam is based on lies and superstitions and has forced people to do so by deception, force and killing. Whoever fall into Islamic faith they themselves become the flag bearers of the lies of Islam, and it is with them that Islam pursues its existence. Some of the writings of the Qur'an are the wishes of the Prophet, in which banditry, plunder, rape and slaughter are rampant and he indulges his desires in the name of Allah. Another part of the Qur'an is the plagiarism of books of other religions.

Islam is a religion of fear and believes in the fiery Hell, in its sadistic Qur'anic form. If you are not faithful, you'll be killed, and if you do, you're so stupid that you believe anything. This is how Islam screens the ignorant from the wise and creates a generation of "Muslims" who believe in irrational beliefs more than their predecessors.

Islam began from a savage tribe and since inception it invaded other lands, plundered them, stole their property, raped women, and enslaved children. This sect has no concept for a homeland, and what they say as value is property, so its goal is to acquire more assets. The Mongol desert dwellers also behaved in the same way, constantly attacking their nearby villages and towns and plundering their possessions.

Islam has undergone many changes throughout its disgraceful existence and has become a tool in the hands of an autocratic ruler who controls a land with which to suppress the people and engage in autocracy and selfishness. Wherever Islam sets foot, the knowledge and culture is destroyed. This is how the spread of Islam is the spread of ignorance.

Islam destroyed the nation

Muslims consider themselves to be part of the Muslim Ummah, which means that they are descendants of Abraham, and the children of their mother (um) Hagar, who according to Muslims was the mother of Ishmael. In Christianity, there is nationality, for example, Germans are Christians, and they are proud to be Germans, or for the French or the British, their nationality is very valuable, and it is something other than their religion. In the eyes of the Islamic government, nation and homeland identity does not exist. For example, you cannot say that I am Iranian, and I am a Muslim, because from the point of view of Islam, being Iranian is not recognized, and if you are a Muslim, you are considered a member of the Islamic Ummah. This is why in Iran, with its very illustrious pre-Islamic past, being Iranian is very valuable, and that is why Muslim leaders are trying to destroy everything that is Iranian to distance nationality. Everywhere else in the world, Muslims do the same, and people in different countries call them the Ummah of Islam. These same nations of Islam have become sectarian throughout the shameful history of Islam and have always been at war and killing each other.

In the United States, blacks have been harassed by whites for a long time, because of which many black Americans have converted to Islam without knowing what Islam is, or having read the Qur'an, or even being able to pray. The leader of Muslim blacks Americans, Louis Farrakhan, calls his sect the "Nation of Islam", which is the Islamic Ummah and not American.

Every sign of the glory of the past is destroyed by the Islamists

Islam, the Jinn of the Magic Lamp of Western Countries

Many believe that the inefficiencies of management in Iran are due to the infiltration of the foreigners especially British, and they consider the Islam that has taken control of the country is controlled by them. Indeed, Islam has been around for a much longer time before the European or British arrivals. Islam itself is the agent of what has been in its nature: bloodshed, murder, rape, theft, slavery, misogyny, sodomy, and so on, none of which have anything to do with the Western world. Moreover, these same Westerners have resisted the barbaric temperament of Muslims, for example, forcing them to abandon slavery and respect the human right and women.

In the Crusades, which were initiated by the expansion of the Muslims and the brutal and mass murder of Christians in West Asia, North Africa, and even Europe, the Christians invaded the lands that the Muslims had taken from them in their raids, including Jerusalem, Spain (Andalusia), Eastern Europe, and Africa, which took place in 1091-1291 and then from 1291-1775 AD. Muslims kept being defeated more and more retreated larger areas. During these centuries, a renaissance emerged in Europe, in which knowledge, art, and music flourished while Muslims were still bound by Islamic-Qur'anic superstition and the suppression of all forms of learning and thought. The Europeans' superiority in knowledge also affected their military technologies, and they not only developed new weapons but also optimized their efficiency. In addition, the British built precise clocks and were able to make long journeys by mastering navigation<sup>24</sup>. Thus, from the fifteenth century onwards, newly awakened Europeans traveled to distant lands, found and controlled the New Continent of the Americas, and greatly increased their wealth. Then they colonized India, which had been under the slaughter and plunder of Muslims for centuries, and what was left of it Europeans stole them. Europeans went to Africa and learned the slave trade from Muslims and shipped many black slaves to the Americas. Then they found oil and other scarce sources in Iran and the Arab lands and stole them all. The rulers of the Islamic-stricken lands and their illiterate people did not know what a great wealth of their land was being stolen from them by the Europeans, same people whom they had been in the Crusades a few years earlier. The Muslims, who had become illiterate, ignorant, irrational, and unmotivated after several centuries under the Sharia of Islam, were easily deceived by the knowledgeable Europeans. Europeans also infiltrated the Iranian governments, which during the Qajar dynasty it reached its peak.

The abundant natural resources in the Islamic lands did not quench European's thirst, and by forming puppet governments in these countries, they continued to plunder their assets. It took two centuries for the Muslims to come to their senses and expel the Europeans from their lands. The backwardness caused by the dominance of Islam and Sharia over Muslims is an unpleasant reality that Europeans were aware of it and used to their advantage. The Europeans had great knowledge about West Asia with scrutiny and in-depth insight. They even made us aware of our glorious ancient past before Islam, the same history that Muslims had tried to hide. Many of the writings of scholars of the Islamic period were translated into their own languages and read in their universities.

In Islamic lands, however, the scholars of the Islamic period were all anti-Islamic, and as they were considered apostates they were locked in prisons, or they were very ignored such that they could not advance knowledge in Islam occupied lands, so neither a university nor a high school was established. Reading the Quran was the only thing that was taught.

The Europeans were also aware of Islam and its evil nature, and they controlled it for their own profits. Whenever a government official was against their interests, they would find a way to eliminate them. For example, the prime minister Amir Kabir, wanted to make reforms during Qajar period, the British supported the Baha'i sect, who killed this great man. The Baha'is also became an asset for the British in their wars with the Ottomans and was one of the reasons for their victory in World War I. British government supported Iranian Shiite mullahs by regularly delivery money to them from India, so that they have their support. This caused a huge disaster for Iranian people since mullahs' function was to spread ignorance and now with British money they intensified their Islamic mission.

In Iran, Pahlavis made admirable progress in Iran and Britain and the United States again provoked and supported the Shiite sect to ensure Iran's backwardness and their control over it. In Afghanistan, during the Soviet occupation of that country, the United States and Europe supported a Wahhabi oriented sect, al-Qaeda, to suppress the communists and then they empowered the backward sect of the Taliban who eventually dominated Afghanistan. In the past two decades, the Wahhabi sect of ISIS was again supported by western and Arabic governments to curb the disobedience of Iran, Iraq, Syria, or Shiites. Today, Western countries not only do not have much of a challenge with backward and Islamized countries such as Iran and Afghanistan, but they still use them to their advantage. One example of this is the sale of weapons to Arab countries out of fear of Iran, which pours billions of dollars into the pockets of Western weapon companies.

Islam is like a jinn in the magic lamp for the Europeans and Americans, and whenever they need it, they bring it out. To get rid of the clutches of this Islamic jinn, Allah itself, His Messenger, and everything that has the color and smell of this evil sect should be thrown out.

The sects of Islam are like the jinn, the magic lamp of Western nations.

What should be done with Islam?

Islam is a dangerous terrorist sect with mafia structure whose goal is to kill its opponents, destroy, rape, steal, plunder, slavery, misogyny, and expand itself as much as possible. The ideal of Islam is indeed the destruction of everything. Many have attempted to reconcile with Islam in some way, and created various branches and sects, but since they all had Islamic roots, they ended up destroying themselves. Islam turns lands a desert, has no value for living and nature, and considers the response to any disobedience to the Qur'anic commands by killing, or that non-Muslims of the People of the Book must pay jizya or taxes while being humiliated.

In this book, we traveled through the old times and different lands. We reopened Islam's history and saw that everywhere the set foot in the world, its evil nature has been consistent without exceptions, but Muslims are not ashamed. There still educated people from Islamic countries who still consider the Qur'an as the words of Allah without reading it!

We learned that when Islam came to Iran, destroyed it, and genocide many our predecessors, which amounts to tens of millions. It destroyed the beautiful Zoroastrian religion and turned the fertile and water-rich land of Iran into a desert. The number of Muslims slaughtering Indians is not even imaginable, more than eighty-two million! Slavery in Africa and 112 million deaths! But the deeper tragedy is that there are still hundreds of millions of fiery Muslims in separated part of India, namely Pakistan and Bangladesh, who are destroying these lands more and more every day. Many of these Muslims have taken refuge in European countries, taking Islamic beliefs with them, and they do not want to admit the reason they fled was because of Islam and Sharia. These same Muslims bring their Islamic law in Europe and want to turn infidel Europeans into zombies like themselves. Muslims crimes against European citizens is a daily routine these days.

The way to confront Islam is first to know its nature and to realize that Islam is not a religion but a terrorist sect that has no goal other than destruction and expansion. Therefore, Islam must be destroyed. Islam has a cancerous nature and infiltrates in minds through lies and superstitions. Some join this sect for fear of being killed, and others are Muslims who, after a few generations, do not know anything about the past and do not know what Islam is and do not believe in it, but call themselves Muslims. Islam has influence in all corners of the world, and the way to confront it is to cut off these branches and influences. Islam should be introduced to policymakers around the world and reminded that Islam is not a religion and cannot continue to exist under the guise of freedom of religion. Islam should be outlawed all over the world, and anyone who tends to this sect should be treated like a mentally ill, and if they are incurable, they should be separated from society.

Muslims should be made to understand what will happen to them if we exchange polytheists and infidels for Muslims in the Qur'anic verses. For example:

9-5: "So when the sacred months have passed, kill the Muslims wherever you find them, and seize them, and besiege them, and lie in wait for them in every ambush.

2-191: "And wherever you find victory over the Muslims, slay them, and drive them out as they drove you out, for Islam is worse than murder, and fight them near the Sacred Mosque, and if they fight you there, then kill them, for this is the recompense of the Muslims."

In Islamic countries, the mafia network of Islam, which is linked by the mullahs, must be destroyed such that no sign of Islam is left and cannot take advantage of people's lack of knowledge and place itself in their imagination. People should be informed about this evil sect, and that Islam is a disease, and a Muslim is a dangerous mental illness that must be eradicated from society. Along with that, expand knowledge, art, and sports, and pursued love and life.

Numerous books are written that expose and condemn Islam and expose its fabrication, but many people do not read them or are not aware of their existence. Therefore, it is necessary to enlighten people in other ways, and it is one of the most effective methods of cinema. The true story of the beginning of Islam, and pedophile, womanizer, murdered Prophet of Islam should be reminded. The countless crimes of Islam in history, only a part of which is mentioned in this book, should be mentioned to people and policymakers through films and plays. In order to destroy Islam, along with everything that is Islamic, we must destroy this evil belief in people's minds and replace it with science and love.

In countries where Islam is prevalent and are called "Islamic government", the pity for the people is a hundred times greater. Islam and Muslims have no shame in crimes and can consider any corruption permissible under the guise of Islam. With all the inefficiency of Islam and the destruction of lands, Islam does not go away with logical conversations. The way to get rid of Islam has been shown to us centuries ago by Abu-Moslem- Khorasani, Babak Khorramdin, Maziar and others, and we must follow what they did and end Islam. The way to deal with Islam is not through kindness since Muslim take it as weakness but by uncompromised confrontation and their isolation.

To fight Islam, one must first have knowledge about its nature and confront it with extreme force since there are no other ways to convince Islamist of their evil nature. An exile government should be formed with its prominent branch, a strong army, with commanders and soldiers who have immense love for their homeland. At the right time, this army will bring a final blow to the Islamic regime and pave the way for rule of law and a government made of experts. This army must become be strengthen and eliminate Islam all over the world. This is just the beginning. What follows, like the Achaemenid kings and Reza Shah, is building and progressing and happiness.

The free world is sprinting towards progress, while Muslims ideal is return to beginning years of Islam.

End of the book.
